OIL SHARES ARE BOUGHT LATE IN DAY

Stock Market Breaks Out of Narrow Trading Area and Gives Demonstration of Strength.

UTILITIES AND AVIATIONS UP

Easing of Credit Conditions Called Influence in Trade—Points of Strength in Rail Group.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Responding to a further easing of credit conditions, the stock market today broke out of the narrow trading area within which it has been moving for the last fortnight and gave a rather impressive demonstration of strength. Trading picked up measurably in the late rally, which was featured by the heavy accumulation of the oil shares and a brisk demand for a select assortment of aviation and public utility issues.

More than a score of individual stocks broke into new high ground for the year, with final quotations showing a long list of net gains ranging from 3 to 17 points.

Reduction in the call money rate from 8 to 7½ per cent, with indications that the rate would work lower later in the week, and predictions of another sharp decrease in brokers' loans tomorrow stimulated the buying movement.

Aircraft Stocks Rise.

High current earnings, rumors of new consolidations and plans for the opening of air routes provided the background for the advance in the aviation issues. Wright Aeronautical soared 17 points above yesterday's close. United Aircraft which sold around 78 3-8 when admitted to trading in the middle of last week, soared nearly 14 points to a new high record at 109.

Large blocks of oil stocks, which have been overhanging the market, were bought by pools and powerful financial interests. Sinclair was one of the most active features, with heavy accumulation also apparent in Atlantic Refining Simms Skelly, Superior and other low and medium-priced issues.

Some Rails Higher.

Rails, which have been lagging behind the general market for weeks, also showed several points of strength. New Haven was marked up 2 points in the late trading and Chesapeake & Ohio ran up about 4 points. Express shares were again buoyant, Adams and American Railway each selling about 10 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

Foreign exchange trading was extremely dull, with the principal European currencies showing practically no change.

Grain markets displayed a firmer undertone. Wheat rallied about a cent a bushel on reports of a better demand for the commodity, and corn advanced 1 to 2 cents on a bullish Government weather report. Cotton prices were slightly reactionary on reports of more favorable weather.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent and appeared to be in plentiful supply at that figure, with no calling of loans reported up to early afternoon. Time money was a shade easier, 60 to 90 day maturities being available at 8¾ per cent, as against nine earlier in the week, while the distant maturities were quoted at 8½ per cent.

Pressure Off Steel.

Lifting of selling pressure from U. S. Steel common, which had sagged 2 points ot 182¾ on liquidation by holders disappointed at the terms of the new stock offering and then regained its loss, had a bullish effect on sentiment. Further weakness also cropped out in Superior Steel, which sold down to 60 as against a recent high of 73¾, but the other independents received good buying support. The Iron Age Review reported that "incoming business in finished steel is no longer equal to shipments except in the Chicago district," but pointed out that a letup in bookings was not unexpected in view of the unusually heavy commitments of producers. At the close Superior Steel was off 3¼ net at 64¾.

International Telephone soared 12 points above yesterday's final price, and Commercial Solvents, American Railways Express, General Electric and Ingersoll Rand closed 5 to 12 points higher.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on pages 38, 39, 40 and 41.

COOLIDGE LIKELY TO GET A FREE FISHING LICENSE

Connecticut Legislature Gives Governor "Complimentary" Power.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 17.—The Legislature by rising vote yesterday adopted a hastily drawn bill giving Gov. Trumbull authority to issue complimentary fishing and hunting licenses. Probably the first such license will be given Former President Coolidge who it seems, went fishing Monday in a brook "somewhere in Connecticut," and returned home with a "good string of fish."

The season for brook fishing for trout opened Monday, but Connecticut law requires fishermen to take out licenses, and to report their catch to the fish warden. The law also limits a day's catch and fixes a minimum on the size of trout to be legally caught.

ATTERBURY TELLS OF CO-ORDINATING RAIL, BUS, PLANE

President of Pennsylvania Road Says It Is Necessary to Hold Place in Modern Transportation.

TRAVELERS GET WHAT SERVICE THEY WANT

Outlines to Valley Manufacturers Plans for 46-Hour Coast-to-Coast Routing.

A railroad company, to hold its own in the modern business world, must co-ordinate rail, motorbus and airplane transportation and provide its patrons with whatever form of service they desire, declared W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in a brief address at the Mississippi Valley Manufacturers' and Wholesalers' Conference at Hotel Jefferson today.

Atterbury told how his company had absorbed motorbus systems paralleling its lines, had augmented its train service with motorbus lines, had experimented in methods of competing with truck lines transporting freight, and, at present, was developing the Transcontinental Air Transport, which is expected soon to establish combination rail and airplane service from coast to coast.

"My viewpoint of a railroad," he said, "is that it is just as essential a tool to you as anything you have in any of your shops. I believe that you are not going to travel the way we want you to travel, and we have got to make our service fit what you want.

Bus Systems Absorbed.

"Instead of making the bus lines our rivals, we have gradually absorbed the bus systems paralleling our lines and have co-ordinated the service for the benefit of the traveling public. As an example of how this co-ordination has worked out, on last Sunday the Pennsylvania System transported 3500 passengers on steam trains and 5000 passengers on busses from Philadelphia to Atlantic City.

"In the trucking business we allied ourselves with important trucking interests in large cities in order to co-ordinate truck and train service. Between New York and Philadelphia 2500 trucks are operating parallel to the Pennsylvania and taking our business. As a result, we have developed a container service, by which freight can be loaded in containers at the industry, transferred to trains and delivered to its destination in shorter time than our competitors can offer.

Coast-to-Coast Service.

"In the airplane business we thought we would get in early and help direct the intelligent development of this form of transportation. Our organization developed into the Transcontinental Air Transport. We propose to leave New York in the evening, go over the mountains in a sleeping car, transfer to a plane at Columbus, O., fly to Wyanoke, Ok., transfer again to a sleeping car, then to Clovis, N. M., and transfer to plane again.

"Within 46 hours after you leave New York, we expect to land you in Los Angeles or San Francisco, saving you two days in your trip across the continent. As soon as we are satisfied that this form of transportation is as safe as human ingenuity can make it, we intend to start the service. When we do start we know it will be successful.

"We bought 10 planes and we have been testing them. I couldn't recommend something that I had not tried myself, so last Sunday I went to Chicago by train and flew from there to Omaha on Monday. By rail it is about 500 miles and the trip takes about 13 hours. By plane it took us just 3 hours and 20 minutes."

Lindbergh Showed the Way.

Atterbury paid passing tribute to St. Louis and Col. Lindbergh. "After all," he said, "it was the Spirit of St. Louis that pointed the way to our progress in aviation. When Col. Lindbergh flew across the Atlantic, it showed what was possible. Some of us knew the possibilities before, but we couldn't get it across in that picturesque way that Lindbergh did. He made the people of the world realize what the airplane meant in transportation."

Atterbury arrived in St. Louis this morning in his private car. By invitation, he spent a few minutes at the manufacturers' conference and then lunched with a group of St. Louis business men at the Noonday Club. He will depart tomorrow for New York.

In an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter, he said this trip was for the purpose of getting bet-

HOLDUP MAN CAPTURED IN CHASE FROM BANK

Teller Shouts "Go to Hell!"—Ducks Out of Range and Gives Alarm.

A man walked into the North St. Louis Trust Co., Grand boulevard and Hebert street, shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, pointed a pistol at the head teller, Roy Kruer, and presented a penciled note which read:

"If you value your life do not attempt to give an alarm. I am prepared to shoot my way out. Hand over the large bills in neat piles."

Kruer, who has been held up before, shouted "Go to Hell," and dropped to the floor of his cage, at the same time pressing a button which set off a siren in the bank and flashed a signal to Police Headquarters and the Dayton Street Police Station.

The man turned and ran from the bank. He was chased by Dan Reiser of the Guarantee Service Co., who had just driven up to the bank in an armored truck to collect some checks. In an alley in the rear of the bank Reiser captured the fugitive, and turned him over to police.

The prisoner said he was Edward Gorman, 36 years old, a painter, of Montreal.

At Dayton Street Police Station Gorman said he arrived in East St. Louis from Peoria early today and came to St. Louis later, taking a random street car ride north on Grand boulevard.

"I saw this bank and decided it would be easy to stick up," police said he told them. "I wrote my note in the North Side Y. M. C. A. and walked into the bank and presented it. I needed easy money and this looked like the place to get it."

BABE RUTH MARRIED IN NEW YORK CHURCH

Small Group Attends Early Morning Ceremony—Pair Plans No Honeymoon.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Less than an hour after daybreak, Babe Ruth, king of baseball's home run hitters, was married in St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church today to Mrs. Claire Hodgson while a small group of early morning worshipers bent to their prayers.

In strange contrast to the boisterous diamond personality of the New York Yanked slugger, the wedding took place in the quiet dignity of the neighborhood parish, conducted by the Rev. William H. Hughes, shortly before the regular 6:30 o'clock mass. Aside from the bridal party of six, there were less than 60 persons in the church.

Ruth arrived at the church with his small, dark-haired, attractive bride 25 minutes before the ceremony and joined other early worshipers in the almost vacant pews. A few minutes later Father Hughes stepped before the altar, called the names of the baseball star and Mrs. Hodgson and performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ruth remained for the short mass.

Once the ceremony was over, Ruth, clad in a blue suit with a white shirt and tan shoes, promised two altar boys autographed baseballs, and escorted the smiling bride down the aisle and into the battery of cameras.

The pair stopped only a minute with newspaper men and then hurried away in Ruth's automobile to the 11-room apartment of the new Mrs. Ruth at the corner of Riverside Drive and Eighty-Eighth street.

While waiting for the informal wedding breakfast with the small bridal party that accompanied them to the church, Ruth greeted newspaper men. He was soon in shirt-sleeves, escorting his visitors proudly about his new home, while Mrs. Ruth busied herself making everyone comfortable.

"We're not going on a honeymoon," she smiled to questioners. "We're going to work now and win another pennant."

"That's right," said the Babe.

The marriage today was the second for both the Babe and his bride. Ruth's first wife, Helen Woodford Ruth, died three months ago in a fire that destroyed the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder in Watertown, Mass. Frank Hodgson, first husband of the bride, died several years ago. She has a daughter, Julia, 9 years old.

MAJORITY AGAINST SOVIET PROPOSAL FOR DISARMAMENT LOUDEN DECLARES

President of Preparatory Commission Says Consensus of Opinion Is Evident.

THEREFORE URGES NO VOTE ON PLAN

Instead Would Allow It to Figure Merely as Discussion—It Called on U. S. to Scrap 800,000 Tons.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, April 17.—President Louden of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission, late today announced that it was evident a big majority of the Commission was opposed to accepting the Soviet project presented by Maxim Litvinoff, Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, as a basis of the work of disarmament.

He was in favor, consequently, of not taking a vote on the question and of allowing the Russians to introduce their fundamental ideas as discussion proceeded on the commission's own draft treaty.

The soviet disarmament proposals for scrapping 800,000 tons of United States warships were explained at today's session.

Gen. Alexander Langovoff, Soviet military expert, in defending and explaining Litvinoff's proposals, pleaded for a maximum of 10,000 tons displacement for warships, as against 35,000 tons fixed by the Washington conference. He charged that the 10,000-ton cruisers being constructed now would have a displacement of 14,000 when they took the sea.

The soviet proposals, he said, contained these four points:

Reduction instead of mere limitation of armaments.

Extensive reduction of the armaments of larger countries, but lesser reductions for smaller nations.

Consolidation of peaceful positions of the nations.

Cites Size of German Ships.

He called attention to the limit of 10,000 tons set for German warships by the allies and said their action proved that size was as large as was needed for defense, and small enough to prevent aggressive warfare.

Langovoff declared that the method of limitation of tonnage elaborated by the Russian Government would prevent derogations which he insisted the system fixed by the Washington treaty permitted.

"In limiting the caliber of guns of warships, renouncing airplane combat and prolonging the life of warships, we weaken the destructive force of naval warfare and diminish the budgets of navies," he said. "In proposing the immediate scrapping of airplane carriers and the gradual replacement of enormous warships by ships of 10,000 tons, we suggest that this be achieved by 1942, the date by which certain of the powers must replace their old ships under the terms of the Washington treaty."

For Fewer Submarines.

Referring to submarines, Langovoff explained that the abolishment of undersea vessels was not proposed until total disarmament was feasible, but the Russian plan wanted them reduced to defensive proportions.

J. Valdes-Mendeville of Chile said that he looked upon the soviet draft project as a surgical remedy which needed the presence of skilled doctors. He opposed referring the plan to the Technical Committee and expressed belief that the commission should follow its own draft treaty.

France, through Count Massigli, likewise rejected the soviet scheme as impracticable because it was too mathematical. Massigli insisted that the necessities of defense of the different countries varied in accordance with geographical and other conditions. He urged adhering to the Preparatory Commission's draft treaty as offering the best hope of progress, and said he was convinced that the soviet plan was putting the cart before the horse in seeking to concentrate at this time on figures of actual reductions instead of striving to achieve that agreement on methods of limitation which would justify convoking an international conference.

ARRAY OF LAWYERS DOESN'T HELP CASE, JUSTICE TAFT SAYS

If Clients Knew Truth They Would Not Have So Many Counsel, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Litigants before the Supreme Court were told by Chief Justice Taft yesterday that they did not aid their cases by having a large number of counsel. The announcement came in connection with the argument of a patent infringement controversy in which three attorneys wished to be heard on one side and two on the other.

"So many counsel do not help the court," the Chief Justice declared, "and if clients knew the truth they would not have so many counsel."

FINDS MELLON MAY HOLD POST WITHOUT CONFIRMATION

Senate Committee Defers Until Friday Passing on His Business Connections.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Senate Judiciary Committee, after deciding today that Andrew W. Mellon had a right to remain in the Hoover Cabinet without his nomination being resubmitted, deferred until Friday a determination of whether his business connections would bar him.

More than 100 precedents were found of Cabinet officers who had continued in office from one administration to another without having their nominations again sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Considerable discussion arose, however, as to the second phase of the resolution of Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, questioning the right of Mellon to hold office in the face of an an old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in trade or commerce.

The question also was raised over Mellon's connections with the Overholt Distillery Corporation, of which he was at one time a stockholder. There is an old statute forbidding a revenue officer to be engaged in the whisky business.

AURORA DRY KILLING INQUIRY IS VOTED BY ILLINOIS HOUSE

Kane County Officials Scathingly Criticised in Resolution; Poll Is 81-50.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 17.—Scathingly criticising law enforcement officers of Kane County, the Illinois House of Representatives today approved a legislative investigation of the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King in a dry raid at Aurora. The vote was 81 to 50.

Mrs. De King was shot to death in her home near Aurora, March 25, after county dry raiders had forced their way into the place. In breaking in they knocked her husband, Joseph De King, unconscious. She was shot, it was said, when she ran to her fallen husband. At this point the De Kings' 12-year-old son, Gerald, picked up his father's pistol and shot one of the raiders, Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, in the leg.

The legality of the search warrant on which the raid was made has been questioned.

ROBBERS SHOOT TWO GUARDS IN $38,392 PAYROLL HOLDUP

In Auto, They Crowd Taxicab to Curb in New York Street and Escape With Money.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Shooting a policeman and a bank guard with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, five robbers escaped today with a payroll of $38,392 being taken in a taxicab to the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Bethune street, on the lower West Side.

The money had been drawn at the Chatham-Phenix Branch Bank at Fourteenth street and Eighth avenue. It was in custody of Patrolman Joseph Clancy and John McKane and Eugene Corley, guards employed by the bank.

When the taxicab had almost reached its destination an automobile crowded it to the curb and from it the robbers opened fire, which was returned by Clancy and McKane. The patrolman was shot twice in the head and Corley once through the leg.

One of the robbers seized the tin box containing the money, waved it at his companions. Then all of the robbers jumped into their car and drove away.

ATLANTIC COAST HIT BY GALE AND SNOW

Gale Reported From Maine to Virginia — Tide Near Record in New York Harbor.

LINERS KEPT FROM REACHING PIERS

Great Injury to Fruit—10-Inch Snowfall at Oneonta, N. Y., 11-Inch at Towanda, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia was strewn with wreckage today, piled up under the battering of a northeast storm.

While wind and waves sank small craft, demoralized shipping and damaged shore structures along the coast, there was heavy snow in Western New York and Pennsylvania.

In New York Harbor a tug and two barges were sunk.

Six liners were held outside the harbor waiting for the weather to moderate before proceeding to their piers. The tide in the harbor rose to within a foot of the top of the Battery wall and was close to the record, being four feet above normal.

At Bell Harbor in the Rockaway district a three-story frame dwelling collapsed when the tide brought the high waves within reach of it.

50-Mile Wind in Maine.

The wind reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour along the Maine coast. A five-masted schooner in Casco Bay was torn from her moorings and thrown on the rocks. Ships in port were lashed to their wharves. Communication lines throughout the State were down.

In Central Vermont the rain turned to snow. Roads in the mountains were blocked and telephone and telegraph service was crippled.

Fruit growers in Maryland, Virginia and Delaware reported heavy damage to orchards as the storm beat blossoms and buds from the trees.

The wind attained a velocity of 78 miles an hour at Atlantic City, and 8.66 inches of rain fell during the last 24 hours. At Point Pleasant Beach, N. J., a mile section of board walk was swept to sea.

At Avalon, N. J., a family of four was rescued by Coast Guardsmen after the spring tides and heavy seas had surrounded their bungalow.

In Western New York and Pennsylvania the storm assumed the aspects of a blizzard. At Oneonta, N. Y., 10 inches of snow fell. Wind piled up six-foot drifts.

Scores of motorists were marooned at Towanda, Pa., where the snow reached a depth of 11 inches. There were sleet and snow at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and throughout the Wyoming Valley.

Two Freighters Aground.

The freighter Pontia, 3283 tons, owned by the Union Shipbuilding Co. of Baltimore, and the Columbine, 456 tons, owned by the Union Steamboat Co., were washed on the mud flats near Beford, N. J., in Sandy Hook Bay. Small boats were washed ashore or out to sea all along the storm front.

More than $200,000 worth of whale oil which had just arrived from the Antarctic aboard the whaling ship Sir James Clarke Ross was spread upon the waves around Pier No. 6 at Tompkinsville, S. I., by the sinking of the oil tank barge Fred E. Hasler, owned by the Atlantic Oil Transport Corporation. The barge sank early in the morning alongside the whaling ship. No one was aboard.

The tug Perth Amboy III of the Tice Towing Co. foundered off New Brighton, S. I. Two barges she was towing broke away and she was whirled into the trough of the seas. Her 14 men transferred from her just before she sank to the Perth Amboy II, which was near.

The Teddy Burke, a tank barge, foundered also near New Brighton, when in tow. Her captain scrambled onto the tug Tisdale.

Estimates of damage along the north shore of New Jersey ran as high as $500,000. Cottages and bungalows were washed into the sea, bulkheads destroyed and shore boulevards damaged.

CARMEN ACCUSE COMPANY OF PLOT TO INCREASE FARE

Trolley Concern Will Seek Higher Rates Regardless of How Wage Matter Is Decided, They Assert.

ATTEMPT TO SHIFT CRITICISM CHARGED

Letter of Union Says Firm Uses 'Unfair Propaganda' —Cites 17 Pct. Gain in Management Cost.

Charging that the Public Service Co. is preparing to ask for a 10-cent fare regardless of the outcome of the wage case of the conductors and motormen and is trying to shift criticism to the employes, the local union of street car men today sent a letter to the company replying to the "Transit News" issued Monday on the subject of possible higher fares.

As has been told, the "Transit News" distributed Monday asked the question, "Will car fares be increased?" and in answer indicated that if the wages of platform men were increased, a fare higher than the present 8-cent rate would be necessary to enable the company to receive what it considers a fair return on its property.

The wage case of the platform men, who are asking for an increase in the maximum hourly rate from 67 cents to 72 cents an hour, has been before the State Public Service Commission as a board of arbitration since last October.

Says Public Did Not Vote.

In the letter of the local union, signed by M. J. Douglas, president, and L. A. Graesser, financial secretary, the statement is made that the public did not "have an opportunity to vote on the recent 17 per cent increase in local street car management cost and on the $88,000 in annual salaries paid to four of your officials, one of whom merely permitted his name to be used to give the management local color."

The text of the union's letter follows:

"The street car men deeply resent the unfair propaganda contained in your 'Transit News' of April 15.

"Through it you obviously attempt to prepare the public for a 10-cent carfare request and you also improperly seek to shift, in advance, to the street car men the public criticism you expect from that request.

"You say, 'If carfares are to be kept down wages must not be increased, they must be decreased.' That statement coupled with your recent expensive newspaper advertisements to the effect that you are not now earning 7 per cent on your investment clearly indicates that you will ask for the 10-cent fare regardless of the action of the Public Service Commission on our requested increase in wages.

An Economic Untruth.

"Your statement that 'our men are already receiving higher wages than the average paid in other cities' is an unfair half-truth and an economic untruth, because you well know that a comparatively low wage in a small city in most instances excels 67 cents or more per hour in a large city like St Louis, where rents and other living costs are much higher than in the small city.

"You complain that the public had no opportunity to vote on the wages of the carmen as it recently voted on the wages of the firemen. Neither did the public have an opportunity to vote on the recent 17 per cent increase in local street car management cost, and on the $88,000 in annual salaries paid to four of your officials, one of whom merely permitted his name to be used to give the management 'local color.' Unfortunately the public does not have the right to vote on the 8 or 10 cent fare.

"If, instead of discharging 125 motormen and conductors and 150 shopmen as you have done recently, you had increased the number of cars on the street so the passengers could obtain seats or at least squeeze into the cars, so the busses would not take so many of our passengers, then the revenue received from the additional car riders would well enable you to pay reasonable wages and a fair return on your investment.

Comparison With Firemen.

"Your comparison between us and the firemen is unfair in that the firemen receive $2160 per annum and have every other day off, while the street car men work 365 days per year and have an average annual earning of $1554.76.

"In the last two years the company has secured two fare increases, while our wages have remained the same for over five years.

"In Chicago, street car men receive 76 cents per hour, in Detroit, Boston and San Francisco, 75 cents, in Cleveland 72 cents, in Pittsburg 70 cents, in St. Louis 67 cents.

"We have felt that the Public Service Commission should be permitted to decide our wage case without any attempt on your part through misleading propaganda to influence public sentiment in your favor, pending the decision. New York Night Club Hostess on Trial

HELEN MORGAN.

HELEN MORGAN TRIAL DELAYED, JUDGE IS ILL

U. S. Agent Tells of Buying Liquor at New York Night Club.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Sudden illness of Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas today while presiding at the trial of Helen Morgan, actress and former night club hostess, caused adjournment today until afternoon. Miss Morgan is being tried for maintaining a nuisance at the Helen Morgan Summer Home, where, it is alleged, liquor was sold.

Two champagne bottles and five ginger ale bottles stood on Government counsel's table in the courtroom today. The champagne bottles, each half filled, had "Lason Brut" labels, and the Government-printed legend "champagne." The ginger ale bottles, each also half full, had four Government labels marked "whisky" and one marked "brandy."

L. C. Tyson, one of the Government agents who visited the Summer Home, where he asserts he purchased liquor and insists that Miss Morgan joined the party and helped consume part of it, had just begun his testimony when Judge Thomas adjourned court.

Previous to opening of the trial today, Nick Blair, one of the owners of the club, for whom a bench warrant was issued yesterday when he failed to appear and forfeited his bond, appeared and pleaded guilty of maintaining a nuisance. Sentence was deferred.

John J. Mitchell of Washington, a Government agent, the first witness yesterday, said he first met Miss Morgan to talk to her at the night club last June 23, one of seven visits he made to the club.

"What did you tell her you were doing in New York?" Miss Morgan's attorney asked.

"I said I was here on a combination business and pleasure trip," Mitchell replied. The spectators, who had just heard the agent tell of spending from $50 to $100 an evening in his quest for evidence, laughed.

Mitchell said that on his visits to the club, generally accompanied by another agent and the agent's wife, he purchased champagne and brandy, the latter on Miss Morgan's recommendation. He said she sent the waiter to get some brandy from "the house."

The Japanese delegate also opposed the project because it provided for actual reductions whereas this question of figures should be left to the forthcoming international conference. He declared that the preparatory commission was merely empowered to build the technical structure for a conference and appealed to Litvinoff not to insist upon fixing the figures of armaments, believing that this would hasten an accord.

Germany, through Count von Bernstorff, approved the fundamental ideas of the soviet plan but agreed with the Japanese that the question of figures should be left to the later international conference. Von Bernstorff urged giving closer examination to the soviet principles because they pointed the way to genuine reductions, eliminated inequalities now existing in the armaments of the Powers by leveling armaments, lessened the possibilities of aggression and protected civilian populations by prohibiting the dropping of bombs from the air.

CONTEST IMPENDS IN CONGRESS OVER DEBENTURE PLAN

Senate Committee's Action in Including Proposal in Farm Measure Expected to Lead to Warm Fight.

BY CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Senate Committee on Agriculture, it was learned this afternoon, has thrown a monkey wrench into the smooth-running machinery set up by the House for the execution of the Hoover farm relief plan.

The committee, in secret session, yesterday voted to incorporate into its farm relief bill the so-called debenture plan advocated by the National Grange. The debenture plan is a first cousin of the discarded equalization fee. All the members of the committee who were present—nine of them—voted for the debenture scheme. Chairman McNary, who opposed th plan at first, cast his vote for it on the showdown. Capper of Kansas also favored it.

The fight for it in Committee was led by Norris of Nebraska.

McNary and one or two others on the committee held out for awhile on the ground that it would do no good to put in a provision that would probably lead to a Presidential veto. The bill will be introduced in the Senate tomorrow. It will bring the Senate Committee squarely into conflict with the House Agricultural Committee, which has reported a bill in strict accordance with the ideas of the President.

Indicates Warm Fight.

The action of the Senate Committee presages a warm fight in the special session over farm relief. Members of the Committee said that if the Democrats could be brought into line for the debenture plan, it would almost certainly go through the Senate. The Progressive Republicans are expected to favor it.

"There can be no logical reason for any friend of the equalization fee to vote against the debenture plan," said one Committee member. "It is the next best thing to the equalization fee.

"It will go through the Senate unless the President takes a positive stand against it."

The vote for the plan in the committee was taken after it had heard two experts of the Department of Agriculture. While their statements were guarded, the committee got the impression that they saw considerable merit in the proposal.

How Plan Would Work.

The plan is simple. As worked out by the Agricultural Committee, it provides for the issuance of certificates, or debentures, on farm exports, which certificates may be used in the payment of import duties. The debenture is fixed at one-half of the tariff rate on the exported commodity.

Take wheat, for example. The duty on wheat is 42 cents a bushel. Under the committee's plan, the exporter of wheat would receive for each bushel exported a certificate with a value of 21 cents. This certificate would be transferable and could be used by any importer in payment of duties.

The scheme would apply to all the major farm products—wheat, corn, hogs, cotton, etc. A special provision is made as to cotton, on which there is no tariff. The debenture in this case would be fixed at the arbitrary figure of 2 cents a pound, with the proviso that if a tariff is placed on cotton, it shall be changed to one-half the tariff rate.

Applies to Food Products.

Food products into the manufacture of which go any of the specified crops also would be brought within the benefits of the plan. Such a product would be entitled to a debenture in proportion to the amount of the farm product used in the manufactured article.

One criticism which has been made against the debenture plan is that by guaranteeing the farmer a fixed price on his product the world price plus one-half of the tariff—it would inevitably result in overproduction.

In an effort to answer this objection, the committee included a provision that when the production of a given crop over a five-year period increases beyond a certain per centage (varying in the case of the different crops), the value of the debenture shall be lowered proportionately.

Like the House bill, the Senate Committee's measure provides for the establishment of a Federal Farm Board with broad powers. The bill does not require that the board adopt the debenture plan, but gives it the right to use it along with the co-operatives and the other measures of farm relief approved by the President.

The plan, according to committee members, is used successfully in Germany, Sweden and other countries. They describe it as the only measure, short of the equalization fee, that will realize the announced desire of the administration to "make the tariff effective to the farmer."

"It is the simplest plan of farm relief that has ever been offered," said one member, "and it will work."

GERMANY WOULD LOWER INDEMNITY BY $250,000,000

Counter-Plan Offered for Amount of Annual Payments Lower Than That Suggested by Allies.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 17.—The German counter plan for paying reparations, presented to the allied experts of the second Dawes Committee by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, this afternoon, is understood to offer about 1,000,000,000 marks (about $250,000,000) less than the Payments would continue 37 creditors demand. years instead of the 58 years proposed by the allies in their memorandum. The German offer envisages annuities beginning at $264,000,000 and rising to $348,000,000.

Schacht seemed in an affable mood when he arrived at the Hotel George V, where the committee has been meeting. He submitted with good grace and smiles to being photographed.

Germany's memorandum was read both in French and English, after which almost all the delegates participated in a discussion lasting an hour and a half. Emile Moreau of France and Sir Josiah Stamp of England were the chief speakers.

The points of views separating Germany and its creditors as well as the figures that each had presented were so far apart that it was decided further negotiations in committee would be necessary before a plenary session could hope to do anything toward reconciling the divergent propositions.

Consequently all figures and all documents which had been brought forward by both sides in the 10 weeks that the conference has been in session were turned over to a committee headed by Lord Revelstoke. This committee will study them and report to the next plenary session.

The conference was then adjourned subject to call by Owen D. Young, the chairman.

The German offer of 1,100,000,000 marks (about $264,000,000) was 600,000,000 marks (about $144,000,000) less than the 1,700,000,000 marks beginning payment understood to have been suggested by the allies. The high-water mark of 1,450,000,000 marks (about $348,000,000) was almost 1,000,000,000 marks (about $240,000,000) less than the allied high-water mark of 2,400,000,000 marks (about $576,000,000).

The allies' offer to Germany is understood to have fixed payments over a period of 58 years, the first 37 of which were to have a sliding scale of annuities and the last 17 a stationary figure. The present value of the allies' claims was said to be $10,000,000,000, and eventual amount $24,000,000,000, with annuities starting between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000.

Julius Eysman, the company's vice president in charge of traffic, and a number of other officers of the Pennsylvania accompanied Atterbury.

SENATE SALVAGES PART OF SPOILS IN BUDGET MEASURE

Transfer of Tax Collections Blocked After Secretary of State and Auditor See Governor.

MODIFIED BILL APPARENTLY SAVED

Democrats at First Ready to Abandon Entire Plan but Later New Tactics Are Proposed.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 17.—Politics' demand for perpetuation of the spoils system yesterday destroyed one of the strongest provisions of the proposed budget legislation in the Senate, and for a time threatened the success of th program. Probably in the end th Senate will pass a fairly acceptable budget bill.

The Republican Senators, aided by a few Democrats under political obligations to Republican officeholders, saved the spoils for the officials. The Democrats, to avoid the charge of killing budget legislation, are virtually certain to bring the bill in its mangled but far from ruined form from the informal calendar and pass it.

Defeated in their efforts to combine in one department, the proposed budget and revenue commission, the supervision of all tax collections for State purposes, the Democratic Senators were at first disposed to let the entire governmental reform program fail, attempting to place its defeat on Gov Caulfield's administration. But on second thought and a realization o the political aspects of the situation, there developed last night among them a growing disposition to get as much of the program through as possible.

Politics Early and Late.

Since early in the legislative consideration of the bills, politics ha played a strong part in the maneuvers. At the outset the Governo summoned to his office a group o Republican and Democratic legislators and outlined his ideas t them. Chief among the details h recommended was a provisio transferring to the new commissio the supervision of the income an inheritance tax collections, now i the offices of the State Audito and State Treasurer, respectively The new commission was to succeed to the duties of the presen Tax Commission, which now ha supervision of all property an personal tax assessments and supervision of the corporation franchise tax. The proposed new duties would put the entire tax machinery of the State in one department, which also would prepar the budget for submission to th Legislature.

According to thoroughly reliabl information, Senator Donnelly (Dem.), Lebanon, foresaw a situation which developed, that officials now having those duties woul bring pressure to bear to hol them, and asked the Governo what would be done in that even The Governor is said to have replied in practically these word "There will be nothing to do except to be hard-boiled about it."

Becker Wins a Point.

The Democratic Senators prepared the bills along the lines suggested at the conference with th Governor, and then Secretary o State Becker and Auditor Thompson began to exert pressure. Afte they had had a conference wit the Governor, a conference whic it is reported, was marked by exceedingly vigorous language b Becker, the Governor abandone his hard-boiled stand and informed the Senators that he desired that they not only leave th tax supervision where it was, bu that they should amend the central purchasing bill to permi Becker to retain supervision of th letting of all printing contract though all other purchases of every kind for the State were to b transferred to the purchasin agent.

Ralph lost in his fight to pr serve the printing to Becker, lo ing two Republicans, Curfman o Nodaway and Earlin of Oza County, but he won throughout the fight on the budget bill.

TO TIGHTEN INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS IN STATE

House Engrosses Bills to Permit Examination of Firms' Books.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 17.—Amendment of the State income tax law to authorize the State Auditor to examine the books of taxpayers or prospective taxpayers, to require payment of the Missouri tax on income earned outside the State under certain conditions, and otherwise to tighten up the income tax law, is provided in two bills engrossed yesterday by the House. The bills now go on the House calendar for passage.

Similar measures are pending in a Senate committee. The proposals were introduced in both houses at the request of State Auditor L. D. Thompson.

One of the amendments would require all individual residents of Missouri to pay the State income tax upon all income in excess of the authorized exemptions, irrespective of whether part of it was earned outside of Missouri.

Another amendment would require all business concerns to pay the tax on half of the net income earned in other states on business transactions that originated in Missouri, in addition to the tax on net income on transactions wholly within Missouri. Under this amendment a Missouri firm shipping goods from within the State and selling them in another state would have to pay a tax on half of the net income derived from the sale.

These two amendments are designed to nullify a provision written into the income tax law by the 1927 Legislature, that was intended to exempt business firms and individuals from paying the Missouri tax upon income earned outside Missouri. A seeming conflict in the 1927 amendment has resulted in the State Auditor holding that business firms were subject to a tax on that part of their business outside the State, which originated in Missouri, and that individuals must pay the tax on income in excess of exemptions.

Ralph lost in his fight to preserve the printing to Becker, losing two Republicans, Curfman of Nodaway and Earlin of Ozark County, but he won throughout in the fight on the budget bill.

Cave Issues Ultimatum.

When Senator Cave of Callaway County, majority floor leader, lost to the Republicans on the budget bill amendments, he placed the bill on the informal calendar, and said it was his intention to let it die there unless the Governor changed his attitude and brought the Republican Senators into line for the tax supervision transfer.

But, politically, the situation is this: Representative Bales (Rep.) of Newton County, has pending in the House a budget bill, not as extensive nor as effective as the Senate bill, but a reasonably good bill. Through administration influence it could be passed in the House and sent to the Senate. This bill was taken up hurriedly in the House this morning and engrossed. If killed by the Democratic Senate the responsibility for the death of budget legislation would be on the Democrats.

The Democratic Senators are not likely to permit this to occur, and the probabilities are that the Senate bill will be called from the informal calendar within the next few days and passed, the Republican Senators being committed to it.

If that is done the responsibility for the legislation will be shifted to the Republican House

It is realized generally that little in the way of economy would be accomplished by the creation of a budget commission. Its value would lie in a more efficient distribution of the money available for expenditure by the State. The real economy program was in the central purchasing bill and in the provisions for tax supervision by the budget commission

Contrast in Collections

Senator Cave in the debate yesterday pointed out that while the Federal Government, with higher exemptions, collected approximately $58,000,000 in income taxes in Missouri, the State collected approximately $2,000,000. He attributed the reason to failure of proper supervision, saying that "it could hardly be expected the elective officials, dependent upon the people for re-election, would be as strict in the enforcement of tax collections as appointive officials no tdirectly dependent upon the votes of the people.

While the purchasing bill has been engrossed in the Senate and undoubtedly will be passed there, its enactment into law is extremely doubtful. When the bill reaches the House, Becker will renew his fight to save his printing spoils, and the indications are he will be successful. The State university and the Highway Department will bring influence to bear to be exempted from its provisions, and may be successful. If Becker gets out from under the bill it will not be accepted by the Democratic Senate and will fail of final passage.

Dr. Brooks Sees Caulfield.

Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, called on Gov. Caulfield yesterday afternoon with a protest against placing university purchases under the State purchasing bill.

Although the House last night engrossed the Elmer bill for consolidation of departments, it will have little chance of passage in the Senate, the general opinion of Senators being that few benefits would come from it. Elmer does not attempt to abolish minor departments and transfer their duties to other departments, but merely provides for a continuance of present departments under the supervision of others.

The budget bill, though emasculated as to one of its principal features, is probably as good a measure for purely budget-making purposes as it would be possible to get under the limitation of the State Constitution, and if it is passed, a step toward more efficient government will have been taken. The plans for consolidation of departments to eliminate waste and extravagance have failed through political pressure and the central purchasing program is in a bad way, but there is a bright prospect for a long step toward progress in the budget bill.

U. S. Court of Appeals Makes Ruling in Denver Injunction Proceedings.

The United States Court of Appeals, sitting here, today affirmed the decisions of United States District Court of Denver, Colo., upholding the power of a Board of Education to establish cafeterias in public schools.

The case grew out of injunction proceedings filed by a taxpayer of Denver against the Board of Education, seeking to prohibit the operation of school lunchrooms on the ground that the lunchrooms were private enterprises and that taxation for mercantile purposes violates the principles of democratic government.

The District Court dismissed the injunction suit. The decision of the higher court holds that the Board of Education was within its power in establishing lunchrooms and cafeterias in the schools and that such enterprises are part of an efficient school system. The decision points out that the lunchrooms were not operated for profit.

Lunchrooms are operated in St. Louis high schools and in several grade schools. No question concerning their legality has ever been raised here.

FINED $25 FOR INSERTING MISLEADING ADVERTISEMENT

William E. Carruthers, St. Louis manager of the Hoyt Brothers Co., manufacturing chemists of Newark, N. J., was found guilty on a charge of misleading advertising and his fine fixed at $25 by a jury in Judge Bader's Court of Criminal Correction yesterday.

Testimony showed that Carruthers had inserted a want ad for salesmen on July 23 1928 in which he promised a $25 a week salary, and later signed contracts with prospective salesmen in which the $25 salary was to be conditional on their selling $40 worth of perfume, soap and household articles of the company in their first six days' employment. Carruthers, in his own defense, testified that he had not inserted the advertisement, produced testimony to show that the advertisement which appeared was not according to the original copy, and said that all salesmen who entered into contracts with his firm were familiar with the conditions of the contract.

Carruthers was originally convicted on the same charge Aug. 28, 1928, sentenced to 90 days in the workhouse and fined $500 by Judge Butler in the Court of Criminal Correction. Later he appealed and obtained a change of venue and a new trial in Judge Bader's Court.

SALOON KEEPER AND WIFE ARRESTED IN DRY RAID

Joseph Stasiak, proprietor of a saloon at 1556 South Third street, and his wife, Josephine, were arrested by the police liquor squad yesterday following a raid on the saloon.

"Oh Mom, some officers want to see you," Stasiak is said to have called out to his wife as the detectives entered the saloon. Detective Sergeant Wille says he saw Mrs. Stasiak pour the contents of large coffee pot into the sink in her kitchen, adjoining the saloon, when her husband called out. Wille says he detected an odor of alcohol in the coffee pot and the sink.

A large quantity of beer was found in a room in the rear of the saloon, Wille reported.

PROMOTER STRUCK WEALTHY OHIOAN, DRIVER TESTIFIES

Samuel O. Bell of Baltimore Held for Manslaughter in Death of Arthur Morgan Smith of Cleveland.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Samuel O. Bell, Baltimore oil expert, was held in $10,000 bail on a charge of manslaughter yesterday when Reuben Gilbert, a taxicab driver, testified he saw Bell strike Arthur Morgan Smith, wealthy Cleveland business man in the mouth in a drunken row in front of the Hotel Marguery early Thursday.

Smith died in convulsions Friday afternoon from a fractured skull which three physicians who examined him had failed to note.

Bell has said he did not strike Smith, but only pushed him to prevent him entering the cab in which Bell was taking Mrs. Robert L. Brown, wealthy resident of Lexington, Ky., to the Hotel Plaza.

The affray was the aftermath of a party at the apartment of Mrs. Robert W. Schuette, former widow of Harry L. Harkness, millionaire sportsman, in the Hotel Marguery.

Admits Serving Liquor.

Mrs. Schuette admitted in court yesterday that liquor had been served at the party. Bell previously had said that several of the guests were drunk and that six quarts of champagne and two of Scotch whisky had been furnished.

At the hearing yesterday Theodore Vondorn, attorney for Bell, asked for a dismissal on the ground that no motive had been shown for the alleged fist fight in which Smith is thought by police to have received his fatal injury.

"There is a motive," Assistant District Attorney Pascocello told Magistrate Corrigan. "When the case reaches the proper tribunal we will show that the fight was caused by the friendship between Mrs. Brown and Mr. Bell."

Vondorn objected vigorously to this statement.

The appearance of the Park avenue guests of Mrs. Schuette's at the dingy homicide court in Mulberry street caused an uproar. Crowds pressed forward to see the modishly gowned women called as witnesses.

Says Bell Struck Smith.

Gilbert, a taxicab driver, said he saw Bell strike Smith in the mouth as he was stopping his cab in front of the Marguery.

"Did you see Bell strike Smith?" the Assistant District Attorney asked. "I did."

"What was Smith doing while Bell was striking him?" "The other man—Smith, I mean—he looked like he was trying to protect himself. He had his hands up."

"Did you see him strike back at Bell?" "I can't recall."

Gilbert then testified that he had walked over to the taxicab in which Frank W. Spencer, the chauffeur, was sitting at the wheel and said, "You're not going to let that man lie there, are you?"

Spencer paid no heed to him and drove away with Bell and Mrs. Brown, Gilbert told the Court.

"When Spencer drove his cab away I went over to the man lying on the sidewalk and slapped him in the face to arouse him. He was semi-conscious," Gilbert said.

He then told of going to look for a policeman. He testified he brought a policeman back to the Marguery on the running board of his cab.

"The policeman wanted to take the man into the hall of the apartment," he added. "I offered to take him to the hospital, but the policeman didn't follow my suggestion."

Driver Sticks to Story.

Vondorn, Bell's attorney, cross-examined Gilbert closely but the driver stuck to his story. He admitted, however, he could not tell who started the fight. He testified several persons were around at the time, but said he did not know who they were. From Vondorn's cross-examination it was evident he had in mind the possibility he might have been slugged after Bell and Mrs. Brown left.

Mrs. Margaret Schuette said she had lived at the Marguery since 1915 and had known Smith two years. She also knew Suzanna Smith, 8-year-old daughter of the Cleveland business man, who had come to New York with him on a pleasure trip several days before his death.

Mrs. Brown Testifies.

Mrs. Brown then took the stand. She said she had known Bell for six or seven years, and told of going to Mrs. Schuette's after dinner.

"Everybody was sober all evening so far as I know," she said. "It was about 2:30 a. m. when we left. The women waited in the lobby while the men went to look for cabs."

She said Bell got her a cab, put her in it and took her to the plaza. She denied seeing any fight, but admitted that Bell was annoyed when they were in the cab on the way to the hotel. She did not know what he was annoyed about, she said.

Bell was released in $10,000 bail.

East St. Louis Oil Station Held Up.

An armed man yesterday held up William O'Neill in his filling station at 1800 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, and took $30.

CHASED IN AUTO, FIRED ON, THEN ROBBED OF $150

Manager of Kroger Store, Attacked in 1700 Block of North 20th Street, Runs Into Parked Cars.

Thirteen holdups were reported in the city and county last night, four shots being fired in one of the robberies.

Henry Hoffmann, manager of a Kroger store at 3849 South Broadway, driving toward his home at 1945 Sullivan avenue, at 6 o'clock, was trailed by two men in a green Ford who attempted to crowd him to the curb in the 1700 block of North Twentieth street. When Hoffmann increased his speed, two shots were fired into his car, one passing close to his head and striking the windshield. Hoffmann lost control of his car and it crashed against two parked automobiles. Hoffmann was robbed of $150.

Attracted by the shooting, Frank Jasonback, 1732 North Twentieth street, emerged from his house to investigate. The robbers fired twice at him. Jasonback hurried back in the house, and the robbers drove away.

When Glenn Neals, 6504 Michigan avenue, and Miss Lillian Budde, 7106A South Broadway, slowed their automobile for a turn at Morganford road and Alma avenue, they were held up by two men who took the car and $14.50.

Other holdups: Mrs. Frances Punch, 4963 Fountain avenue, slugged by young man near her home and robbed of handbag containing $2.10, jewelry and key; E. W. Moss, 8414 Tennessee avenue, robbed of $5 and automobile, which later was abandoned; Walter Noll, 3349 McKenzie avenue, and Mrs. Louisa Clark, 2712 South Thirteenth street, robbed of $15 and automobile, later abandoned; Erwin C. Wenom, 4976 Lindenwood avenue, $34.50; George Lay, 3118 Geyer avenue, $11; Eugene Mann, 5537 Palm street, gold-trimmed purse; Emil Balfay, 5701 Bartmer avenue, $6; Wallace Stewart, 6043 Clemens avenue, $9.50 and $250 check; filling station at 4066 Page boulevard, $15; filling station at Delmar boulevard and Hanley road, $25.

Hut in Byrd Camp Named For Webster Groves School

Student at Nerinx Hall Gets Letter From Member of Expedition Telling of Life in Antarctic—Pilots on 'Hamilton Ave.'

Nerinx Hall in Webster Groves, the high school conducted by the Sisters of Loretto as a preparatory school for Webster College, has a namesake in Little America with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. A letter received yesterday from Lieut. Thomas Mulroy of St. Louis, chief engineer of the expedition, related that he and his roommates had painted a sign above their quarters identifying it as "Nerinx Hall" after receiving a copy of the school's monthly publication.

His letter was addressed to Miss Olivia Deichmann, a senior student in the school and member of the staff of its paper, the Nerinx Key. Miss Deichmann met Mulroy a year ago while taking flying instructions at Lambert-St. Louis Field. They have corresponded regularly since he joined the Antarctic expedition and last November she inclosed a copy of the school publication in a letter to him.

In his letter he promises to bring her in return for the paper a baby seal or penguin, which, he says, "are our only friends down here."

Telling of the naming of his hut he writes that "it is nothing like the Nerinx Hall of Webster Groves. The trouble we have down here in Nerinx Hall is that some of the airplane pilots and dog drivers have an idea it is a store room instead of living quarters. You can find anything from a dog harness to an airplane motor or wing in it."

Famous Street Names.

The rest of the camp he describes as follows.

"We have named the different streets around the huts after famous streets in the States such as Broadway, on which Commander Byrd has his quarters. At one end is the gasoline dump and the other end runs into the ice barrier into which we have cut huge caves to store our airplanes during the winter months. Next is State street, on one side of which is located the messroom, cook house and food pits. The radio shack, machine shop and power plants are on the other side.

"Next comes Hamilton avenue, where all the High Hats live, at Nerinx Hall, such as pilots, mechanics, weather men, dog drivers and what nots. At one end of Hamilton avenue we have the dog pits in which we keep some 90 to 100 dogs. When it's cold, and you are comfortably sleeping, they start to fight. That means, if you have the duty, which everyone gets for 24 hours at a time, you have to dress and go out and quiet them. They are sure a howling success at times.

"Most of our activities will start in November, 1929, which will be the beginning of our spring and the beginning of your winter.

Last Letter for Months.

"This will be the last mail from here leaving on the City of New York bound for Dunedin, New Zealand, some 2300 miles from here, for the winter months. Hoping that we are all safe when she returns for us in December, 1929, and that we will be homeward bound in February, 1930. The States sure will look good to us. It will be like coming to life again after being buried for two years. It does not seem long to some but it will be to us after these long winter nights which have a total of 24 hours of darkness from the middle of March to the end of October, and the temperature drops to 80 degrees below zero."

The letter was received aboard the City of New York, Feb. 22. It bears a special cancellation stamp designed for the expedition, which portrays a dog team, a sailing vessel and a camp in the Antarctic wastes.

Miss Deichmann is the daughter of W. D. Deichmann of Berry and Manchester roads. She has been taking flying lessons for a year, but has not yet obtained a license. She and Mulroy have discussed tentative plans for a flight across the Pacific when he returns from the Antarctic.

Mexican Textile Strike.

PRESIDENT HOOVER PRAISES EINSTEIN

Honors "One of Foremost Scientists of All Time" at Birthday Celebration.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The Albert Einstein Jubilee Committee celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the German scientist at the Metropolitan Opera House last night.

"Prof. Einstein ranks high among the foremost scientists of all time, who have enriched mankind by their invaluable contributions to thought and human progress," President Hoover wrote. "It is very fitting that distinguished educators and other public-spirited Americans pay this tribute to Prof. Einstein."

Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior and one of the speakers, said: "Here is a single-handed scientist. He, like Lindbergh, went alone. Einstein goes alone into a great new field and brings back to us these facts, creates new things. He becomes, consequently, to us a hero and rightly so."

Others who spoke included Mayor James J. Walker and Dr. Friedrich von Prittwitz-Gaffron, German Ambassador to the United States.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 17.—Albert Einstein has expressed through the Associated Press his pleasure over the mass meeting held in his honor last night in New York, in the following message to the audience:

"You meet to celebrate a myth bearing my name. This proves, however, that in our time, amidst all the ill-omened striving after power and luxury, there still lives an appreciation for the eternal aims of the human spirit. That makes me happy."

TOM SLICK INCORPORATING HIS OWN OIL COMPANY

Oklahoman Who Sold Holdings for $30,000,000 Month Ago Is Back in Game.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Thomas B. Slick, called the "Wild-Catter King" of the oil fields, has filed incorporation papers for his own company, to be known as the Tom Slick Oil Co. A month ago Slick sold his Mid-Continent Oil holdings to the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. for $30,000,000, announcing he would take a year's vacation.

The new company will have a capitalization of 600,000 shares. There was no announcement of any plan to offer any of the shares to the public. Slick, who is 46 years old, began his career in the oil fields as a mule driver, tool dresser and driller. In 1911 he struck oil and founded his present fortune, becoming the largest individual operator.

WOMAN ROBBER GETS EIGHT TO 16 YEARS

Convicted of Larceny in Connection with Abduction of Pennsylvania Policeman.

By the Associated Press.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 17.—Rita H. Doran, alias Mrs. Edward Gingiman of Montour, Ia., and New York City, yesterday was convicted of two charges of larceny in connection with the abduction of a State highway patrolman and his enforced participation in the theft of an automobile last October. She was sentenced to eight to 16 years in the industrial home for women at Muncie, Pa.

The defendant, who is 26 years old, was accused of larceny of the revolver of State Highway Patrolman Russell Troup of Harrisburg, and the theft of the automobile of Wilmer Cameron of New Texas, near here.

The woman, alleged leader of a gang which included two men, Edward Touhey and Wilbur Cole, was credited by the patrolman with having saved his life and effected his release near Baltimore when the two men sought to slay him. Cole and Touhey are now serving terms in the Ohio State prison for a bank robbery at Madeira, O. Miss Doran was arrested in Montour, Ia., and was brought here for trial.

Miss Doran testified that she had been abducted in New York City and taken to Philadelphia, where she was forced into a life of crime. She said that Cole and Touhey stole a car in Philadelphia after she had lured a man, at their request, to their apartment.

They forced her to accompany them in the stolen car, she said. While driving toward Lancaster, she said, their car was stopped by Patrolman Troup for having illegal headlights. Then she recounted the kidnaping of Troup, his enforced participation in the theft of Cameron's car and his subsequent release near Baltimore.

She denied that she had participated in the abduction of Troup and said she had nothing to do with holding him prisoner in the car.

POLICE STOP SHOW AT TEXAS GUINAN'S CLUB

Invoke Permit Ordinances—Unable to Make Place Close at 3 A. M.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Prevented because of a legal loophole from making Texas Guinan's new night club observe the 3 a. m. closing order, the police early today silenced its orchestra and arrested eight waiters on sanitary and liquor charges.

The management of the Club Intime, at which Miss Guinan now is hostess, had circumvented the curfew by declaring the club to be part of the Hotel Harding.

Shortly after the entertainment started this morning, detectives ordered Karl Dopita, an assistant manager, to produce his cabaret license, and when he was unable to do so served a summons returnable in court on Monday. A patrolman was stationed in the place to see that the music and show were not resumed.

While another assistant manager was explaining to the 60-odd guests why the entertainment had been stopped, five detectives of the so-called "dude squad" entered. They made a concerted rush for the kitchen, where the club's 11 waiters were ordered to show their health department permits to handle food. Six were unable to do so and received summonses for violation of the sanitary code, returnable in court tomorrow.

On the way to the kitchen one of the detectives found a bottle of liquid under a table and arrested two waiters on charges of illegal possession. He said one of them threw the bottle under the table, near which the other was standing.

Discouraged by the repeated police interruptions and deprived of entertainment, music and dancing privileges, the guests departed after hissing and booing the police.

The police raided three other clubs early today and arrested employes on charges of possession of liquor.

Miss Guinan was not present during this morning's raid. She was found not guilty of the charge of maintaining a nuisance at the Salon Royale, her former club, by a jury in Federal Court last week and then engaged in a verbal tilt with Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, who declared her acquittal was "an affront to law and order." Texas countered with a demand for an apology and said the commissioner was only jealous because she had crowded him off the front page.

MRS. JOHN W. JOHNSON DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Widow of Gov. Lon V. Stephens Suddenly Stricken at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. John W. Johnson, who until her second marriage a year ago was Mrs. Lon V. Stephens, widow of a former Governor of Missouri, died of a heart attack at her home in St. Petersburg, Fla., early today. She was 68 years old.

A telegram from her husband to her brother, Lewis C. Nelson of 23 Lenox place, said that the body would arrive here at noon Friday, accompanied by the husband and Mrs. Scott Heuer, who has been with Mrs. Johnson at her winter home in St. Petersburg.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday at Cabanne Methodist Church, Bartmer and Goodfellow avenues. The pastor, the Rev. R. B. Kimbrell, will be in charge. The body will be taken to Boonville, Mo., home town of Gov. and Mrs. Stephens, and will be interred there Saturday morning, Bishop W. F. McMurry, conducting services.

Mrs. Johnson had been ill for several months, but her condition apparently improved with the coming of spring, and it was her plan to come to St. Louis within the next few days.

The marriage of Mrs. Stephens at the end of March, 1928, to Johnson, then 29 years old, a St. Petersburg clothing store clerk, was a surprise to her St. Louis friends.

The acquaintance between the young man and the elderly widow, as told at that time, grew out of a visit to Mrs. Stephens' winter home by Johnson, after he became acquainted with one of her nieces. Johnson lived until 1927 in Fargo, N. D., and left high school there in 1917 to enlist in the Navy. He did not see active service, being kept at Great Lakes station. His father, a sporting goods dealer, removed to St. Petersburg two years ago, and the young man went to work in a store there.

Mrs. Johnson was Miss Margaret Nelson of Boonville before her marriage in 1880 to Lon V. Stephens, then a Boonville newspaper proprietor. Mr. Stephens was elected State Treasurer in 1892, and Governor in 1896. At the close of his term in 1901, he and Mrs. Stephens removed to St. Louis. Gov. Stephens died in 1923, leaving a considerable estate to his widow.

Gov. and Mrs. Stephens were active in the affairs of the Methodist Church, South.

Mrs. Charles Leonard of Boonville is a surviving sister of Mrs. Johnson. Dr. Arthur Nelson of Cooper County, who was Democratic nominee for Governor in 1924, is a nephew.

COUNTY LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS RE-ELECTS OFFICERS

MAN WHOSE AUTO KILLED PATROLMAN IS SET FREE

H. A. Williams, Tried for Manslaughter, Dismissed When Judge Sustains Demurrer.

Herman A. Williams, a switchman, 5424 Nagel avenue, was cleared of a charge of manslaughter yesterday when testimony failed to show carelessness on his part in the killing of Patrolman Joseph McGovern, 7515 Minnesota avenue, struck by his automobile at Arsenal street and Iowa avenue, last Nov. 11.

According to testimony, Williams, driving home from work, swerved his car to avoid another car, driven by William Breunig, 3004 South Thirteenth street, who was making a turn. Nevertheless, the cars collided and Williams' car ran onto the sidewalk, striking the policeman.

Circuit Judge Hall sustained a demurrer by Williams' lawyer, on the ground that the evidence was insufficient.

AN UNUSUAL EXHIBITION AND SALE OF PAINTINGS

The aim of the NEWHOUSE GALLERIES is to correct the false impression that fine paintings necessarily mean large paintings at high prices. Scarcity of inches does not indicate triviality and unimportance. Fine little pictures are painted by our best artists, and our effort in assembling this sale and exhibition has been to get together finished and representative canvases by our leading painters, in the sizes now demanded by most of our modern homes.

Particularly Low Priced for the Occasion.

High Blood Pressure Shortens Your Life

How to Stop it—Read This.

It may surprise you to know high blood pressure is so serious that insurance companies refuse to issue policies to those who have it. All because it shortens life.

High blood pressure gives little warning and until certain symptoms take hold, you do not know it. They are head pains, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness.

Often one bottle of Norma will bring reduction in blood pressure and stop the symptoms which distress and worry you.

Norma is a physician's prescription. It worked so wonderfully in his personal practice that it has now been placed in Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores or any drug store so that people everywhere can obtain it. Check the uncertainty of high blood pressure by reducing it with Norma.

LEADERS PUZZLED OVER PRESIDENT'S VIEWS ON TARIFF

Chiefs at Loss to Understand What He Meant by Suggesting Reorganization of Commission.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—President Hoover seems to have put congressional leaders in a quandary by some of his recommendations for changes in the tariff act affecting the Tariff Commission.

They are at a loss to understand what he had in mind when he wrote in his first message that the commission should be reorganized. They will seek amplification and also will inquire whether it is his desire to have these recommendations written into the bill now being drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Interpreting the language of the chief executive in its most literal sense, some leaders said there would have to be legislation abolishing the present commission and setting up a new one under a different plan of operation than that laid down in the tariff act of 1922.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, Republican leader in the House, said he was confident Mr. Hoover wanted to have a commission composed of men of the broadest attainments who would arrive at reasonably speedy conclusions on tariff rate changes and whose recommendations to the chief executive would command the confidence of the country.

Smoot for Amendment.

Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee suggested that the present act might be amended to increase salaries which would attract the highest class of men for service on the commission. However, he was uncertain as to just what the President had in mind.

Terms of the present members of the commission under their 12-year appointments expire one by one during each of the alternate years between 1930 and 1940, so that normally a reorganization of the personnel of the body could not be affected during the present term of President Hoover.

Methods of finding foreign valuations have been one source of disagreement among the commissioners in the past, although in more recent years if there have been internal disturbances they have been kept within the confines of the commission headquarters.

Differences in Costs.

Chairman Marvin and other members of the commission have contended that the delays in making recommendations to the President on rate changes have been due to the requirements laid down by Congress as to how the differences in the cost of production at home and abroad shall be determined.

This situation was recognized by President Hoover in his message in which he stated that "the formula upon which the commission must now act often requires that years be consumed in reaching conclusions where it should require only months."

The chief executive made no specific recommendation for a new formula, but one favored by some members of the commission is that of invoice values together with other easily determined quantities entering into the making of a rate equalizing production costs.

ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION PLANNED IN JUNE POSTPONED ONE YEAR

Work on New Arena at 5700 Oakland Hampered by Weather, Manager Announces.

The St. Louis Exposition, planned in June as the opening attraction for the new arena under construction at 5700 Oakland avenue, has been postponed for a year because of delay in finishing the building, it was announced last night by George H. Holcombe, general manager of the National Exhibition Co. Adverse weather conditions have hampered work on the building, he said.

The building is being erected as a permanent home for the National Dairy Show which will be held there Oct. 12 to 19. The arena will have a seating capacity of 12,500. There will be no columns to obstruct the view.

CAUGHT AFTER SEVEN YEARS

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., April 17.—Doyle Massey, escaped North Carolina slayer, who had eluded authorities for seven years, was captured by a posse yesterday after a two-day chase in the wilds of the Sacramento Mountains.

Known as Jake Smith in logging camps in Otero County, N. M., where he worked, Massey and a companion, Roy Smith, were wanted for stealing a trunk. Smith was captured with him. The posse was ordered to apprehend the pair after they had disarmed two Deputy Sheriffs sent to arrest them. Massey was convicted in 1921 of killing Harrison Roberts and sentenced to 18 years in the North Carolina State prison. He escaped after serving six months.

ow is it that Konjola triumphs these cases that have baffled so y other medicines and treat- nts? The answer is this: Konjola a comparatively new medicine, comes on the scene after the er things tried have failed. And Konjola welcomes and meets se tests is being explained by the njola Man, who is at the Wal- en Drug Store, 515 Olive street, Louis. This personal representa- of Konjola is here, not primar- to sell Konjola, but to tell all o suffer what this glorious com- nd of 32 ingredients—22 of them juices of roots and herbs—has e and is doing. Konjola stands ne on its records; there is no ne- ity of making claims and prom- for this super-remedy. After all, ults are what count, and Konjola n be counted on for results in new, undant and glorious health. Medi- es, like men, are known by their eds. A typical example of Kon- a at work is shown in the experi- ce of Mrs. Mollie Bauer, R. R. No. Box 108, Oakville, Mo., a short tance from St. Louis, who said to Konjola Man a few days ago:

"I am grateful, indeed, for the rious health that Konjola gave Especially so, because all other dicines and treatments failed ut- ly. For the past eight or ten rs I suffered from stomach trou- e and neuritis. My condition was bad that it was almost impossible r me to attend to the work of my ge poultry farm. After every al I bloated dreadfully with gas, lching spells were frequent and in- gestion pains very severe. The uritis settled in my arms and af- ted them so much that I could t raise them above my head. adily and rapidly I grew worse d in seven weeks I lost forty unds. In fact, I was a physical eck, lacking strength, energy and bition.

"I did not have any faith in med- es or treatments and when Kon- was recommended I scoffed at idea of this medicine benefiting However, my friends insisted t I give it a trial and I have m to thank for the health I en- now, for finally I decided to e Konjola a trial, and it was at I should have had in the first ce. The first bottle showed me t I had gotten hold of an honest dicine and one that would do all t is claimed for it. My stomach s strengthened and cleansed. Food ests perfectly now and I am rap- regaining my weight and ngth. The neuritis pains were minated almost over night and y have never reappeared. It took t three bottles to restore my lth, and today I hardly know that was ever in poor health. Praise to Konjola—it is a boon to suf- ring humanity."

The history of Konjola is made up one triumph after another, just the one recounted here. No suf- rer can afford not to give Kon- a a trial.

The Konjola Man is at the Wal- een Drug Store, 515 Olive street, is city, where he is meeting the blic daily, introducing and ex- ining the merits of this master dicine.

MISSOURI HOUSE GETS FARM BILL ON HOOVER PLAN

Measure Provides for Creation of Stabilization Corporations to Get Federal Aid.

By BOYD F. CARROLL,
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 17.—Provision for creation of agricultural stabilization corporations, to place Missouri farmers in a position to obtain aid under the Federal Farm Board bill now before Congress, if that bill is passed, is made in a bill introduced in the Missouri Legislature last night by Representative Elmer of Dent County.

Elmer's bill is an enabling act, creating the right to organize stabilization corporations in Missouri, and does not provide any direct State co-operation or financial aid in farm relief measures.

The bill in general follows the outlines of the Federal Farm Board bill drafted by the House Agricultural Committee of Congress, insofar as that bill proposes establishment of stabilization corporations under laws of the various states.

It would enable three or more persons to establish a stabilization corporation in Missouri, to cooperate with the proposed Federal Farm Board, and to obtain loans from the proposed Federal revolving fund of $500,000,000, or any similar fund provided by Congress.

The stabilization corporations, under terms of the bill, would be empowered to act as marketing agencies for their stockholders or members, to receive advances from the Federal Farm Board for working capital, and to use such capital in the purchase, storage, or other disposition of the agricultural commodities for which the corporation is designated as the stabilizing agency.

These corporations would be empowered to issue no par value common stock, and issue it to individuals or co-operative farm associations which become shareholders in the corporation. The bill contains no provisions as to the amount of stock that may be issued, and no restrictions as to the amount of property that must be behind the stock. It specifically provides that no liability shall be chargeable against the holders of the stock.

The Elmer bill requires such corporations shall set up and maintain such reserves as shall be required by the Federal Farm Board, before paying any dividends out of marketing operations, but is vague as to other requirements affecting financial stability of the corporations. One section provides that if the capital and reserve of the corporation is impaired or wiped out by losses, the losses must be paid out of any subsequent profits earned by the corporation, and in no event shall be assessed against stockholders in the corporation.

Another section requires such a corporation to "exert every effort to avoid losses and to secure profits for its stockholders," but prohibits the withholding of any commodity from the domestic market, that would result in distress to domestic consumers.

MARY DUNCAN, MOVIE ACTRESS, IS MYSTERIOUSLY INJURED

Tells Conflicting Stories of Fall From a Stranger's Automobile.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 17.—Conflicting reports as to the manner in which Mary Duncan, stage and screen actress, received cuts and bruises resulting in her confinement in a hospital here, puzzled police today.

Miss Duncan told two stories. At first she said she had accepted a "lift" from a strange motorist "about 50 years old," when an automobile in which she was going to a motion picture studio broke down yesterday. She said the motorist seized her and that she fell from his speeding car when she broke away from him. She said she was picked up by two men and brought to the hospital. Later the actress said she had fallen out of the stranger's automobile after she had grown faint from the smell of several paint cans in the rear seat and had attempted to open a window in the car. She explained that her clothing had been torn when the driver attempted to prevent her from falling out.

Police detectives and motion picture studio officials later reported that Miss Duncan had suffered some injuries in a fall from a ladder at her home.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave his patients for years.

NORRIS AGAIN TO HEAD SENATE JUDICIARY GROUP

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senate Republican leaders have begun filling vacancies on committees in that branch. They have found rivalry for places on some of the major committees, including those on Foreign Relations and Interstate Commerce, but no trouble in completing their organization is expected.

There had been a rumble against Senator George Norris of Nebraska, who bolted the party in the last campaign to support the Democratic presidential nominee, ex-Gov. Smith, but the Republican chieftains are ready to return him again to his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee.

AT 90 WINS BILLIARD GAME FROM RIVAL, 86

Capt. W. F. Henry and John M. Gomes Open "Perpetual Youth" Tournament.

Capt. W. F. Henry, 90-year-old G. A. R. veteran, leaned over the edge of the table and squinted at the position of his cue ball, which was out of reach.

"Better use the bridge," grunted one of the ringside spectators, who, with 75 others, packed Charles Peterson's billiard theater for the opening match of the fourth Perpetual Youth tournament.

"Nope," replied Henry, "make it this way." And cocking his right leg perilously up on the table, he sprawled over the green cloth, stretched at full length, and stroked. The cue ball clicked off the object ball, spun against two cushions and then clicked against the red ball, for a billiard.

Later, peering cloudily through thick-lensed glasses, he reeled off a run of three, the highest consecutive score of the game, and eventually defeated his opponent, John M. Gomes, another Union army veteran, 10 to 7, despite Gomes' comparative youth of 86 years. The match went 59 innings.

The match inaugurated the annual championship event of the Perpetual Youth Billiard Association, an organization sponsored by Peterson, acknowledged star of fancy shooters, and limited in membership to men of 70 years of age or more.

Comments From the Stands.

"If I had a dollar for every year of age represented here," said Peterson, as he surveyed the audience," "I could——"

"Keep still, Charlie, the man is shooting," admonished Alex Selkirk, the master of ceremonies with the pleasantly malicious face, a familiar figure at auctions in the town car belt.

"Chalk up, John," someone taunted Gomes as he measured the possibilities deliberately.

"Leave me alone," growled Gomes. His opponent had just made a run of three.

Gomes shot and missed.

"Should have tried your niblick."

"Dirty billiards, I call it, very dirty billiards," opined the master of ceremonies, as the balls rolled into a difficult position for Henry.

"Come on, Caesar," jibed a spectator as Gomes' turn came again. The reference was to the imperial cast of the player's head and face, which, however, unconventionally sported sideburns. The gadfly at the ringside leaned his chin on his cane, a la Judge Landis. On his lap rested a light gray "campus crusher," with a tiny band.

The Caesar in sideburns confounded his nemesis this time. He not only made his shot but batted out another one, and canes were tapped on the floor in approval.

"Nice shot, John," conceded the gadfly.

Not So Brilliant Today.

"Mr. Gomes is not so brilliant today," said Gomes sadly as his third effort missed, intimating that in the realm of billiards there were days and days.

"That was a nice try anyway," someone suggested.

"Yes, but it didn't count," replied Gomes.

"There's many a good shot that doesn't count," came from someone in the darkness, and an awkward pause paid tribute to the truth of the epigram.

About 80 men are members of the Perpetual Youth Association, 42 of whom are taking part in the tournament. The event began here four years ago and has been widely copied.

Next week, two of the entrants, Dr. C. P. Woodruff and P. H. Callahan, will play their match in G. A. R. uniforms.

OGDEN, Utah., April 17.—Glenn Austin, 34 years old, of Jackson, Mich., was killed yesterday when his balloon crashed to the ground here. A carnival crowd of several hundred persons witnessed the accident.

Austin who was attempting to ascend, had gained an elevation of about 200 feet when the balloon began to sag. He pulled the cord to release a parachute, but it failed to open.

HOOVER INDORSES POPPY SALE

Approves Campaign in Letter to Veterans of Foreign Wars.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 17.—President Hoover has indorsed the eighth annual "Buddy Poppy" campaign the week prior to Memorial day, May 30. In a letter to Eugene P. Carver Jr., national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, the chief executive said:

"The annual 'Buddy Poppy' campaign under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the United States, is a fitting symbol of the sacrifice of those who died in the service of our country, and should remind us of the obligations and sacrifice demanded of all good citizens in times of peace. The fact that the manufacture of these poppies gives employment to disabled ex-service men in the hospitals and elsewhere, adds to the worthiness of the cause. I am glad to give my hearty indorsement to this worthy enterprise."

KIMSEY, BROWNS' PITCHING 'HOPE,' SENT TO TULSA

"Chad" Kimsey, one of the standout "prospects" of the Browns' pitching staff, has been sent back to Tulsa, to which club he was under contract. His departure will probably cause great grief to Manager Dan Howley of the Browns, who previously had expressed the view that Kimsey was a whale of a pitcher and he hoped to be able to keep him.

In a telegram to the Post-Dispatch a week ago Howley, when asked what he intended to do with Kimsey wired: "I want to keep Kimsey—he looks good."

Business Manager William Friel admitted today that Kimsey was to be sent back to Tulsa.

L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the Browns, said he did not know how much salary Kimsey wanted, because the player would not name what he himself considered a fair figure.

"He said what we offered was not enough," McEvoy said, "but when we asked what he wanted, he said he didn't know. If he doesn't know, how are we to figure?"

Members of the Brownie team expressed their regrets that Kimsey would be lost.

"He would have saved a lot of games for us," all the players interviewed agreed.

Although the club officials were reticent, it was reported that the Browns offered Kimsey a $600 raise over his Tulsa contract and that Kimsey preferred to pitch for Tulsa.

Although said to be under contract to Tulsa, Kimsey's transfer to the Browns by purchase could have been effected without much trouble. Phil Ball is owner of the Tulsa Club.

Kimsey, a youthful giant, is more than 6 feet tall and weighs 205 pounds. He has had only two years of professional baseball, hurling his first season for Muskogee and last year for Tulsa. It was his work on the mound that virtually won the flag for Tulsa, last year.

At school Kimsey earned "letters" in baseball, basketball, football and track and field sports.

He was regarded by the Browns' coaches and players as a splendid prospect.

LOST AGNES AT $35.90 FOR $2 WINS AT HAVRE

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 17.—There was not much to enthuse over in a racing way at Havre de Grace today. The program was made up of five claiming events and two purse races. The fourth race, at a mile and one-sixteenth was ruined by a bad start, Sans Terre, Friedjof Nansen and Sun Altos were away so badly they had no chance and Fields on Friedjof Nansen pulled up his mount after a quarter mile. The winner turned up in V. Kaiser's Maxiva, which was perfectly ridden by Jimmy Smith. Danger Signal was second and Rockhawk third. Rockhawk, Danger Signal and Milaria alternated in the lead to the far turn where Maxiva rushed to the front and drawing away, won by two lengths. Danger Signal beat Rockhawk half a length for the place. The track was heavy and the weather cold.

The Montpelier Stable put over a long shot in the opening event when Lost Agnes was an easy winner, leading every step of the four and a half furlong journey. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sunaibi, coupled with Sun Palatine, was second and G. D. Widener's St. Prisca third.

Lost Agnes is by Out The Way-Golden Agnes and bred to go in the mud, and she showed she liked it. Erickson got her off well and she ran into a long lead. She saved ground on the stretch turn and won galloping by four lengths. Sunaibi was just as easily second over St. Prisa. The winner paid $35.90 for $2.

Favorite players came into their own in the second event, when they put over E. B. McLean's Nymph King, ridden by Pascuma, with H. T. Archibald's Folking second and Sagamore Stable's Beau Wrack third.

It was at six furlongs and Folking rushed to the front, with Nymph King second, about a length back. In the stretch Folking began tiring and Nymph King closing gamely, took the lead a hundred yards from the finish and won going away by two lengths. Folking saved the place by three lengths from Beau Wrack.

Herb Ashby Wins.

A very ordinary field of maiden 3-year-olds and up, performed in the third race. Sun de Meur was favorite but was beaten a head by Herb Ashby. Chatternella was third and Confab fourth.

Chatternella led to the far turn where Herb Ashby rushed to the front and holding his advantage, won in a drive by a head. Sun de Meur beat Chatternella five lengths for the place.

WALKER TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST ACE HUDKINS, KEARNS DECLARES

RETURN MATCH IS SOUGHT BY THREE CITIES, MANAGER SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 17.—The rings' wildcat—Ace Hudkins, blond thatched, two-fisted middleweight phenom from Nebraska—having clawed to bits the boxing hopes of Armand Emanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, today snarlingly surveyed other fistic domains to conquer.

He gazed truculently towards Rumson, N. J., where the middleweight king, Mickey Walker, is sojourning. It is with Walker that the "wildcat" first would like to do battle. Hudkins claims he was "jobbed" out of the decision in the title bout with Walker in Chicago last July, and that when they meet again the New Jersey bulldog will not be so fortunate.

That Walker is willing to accommodate Hudkins in his desire was made known here by Jack Kearns, his manager. Kearns said the match undoubtedly would be made, and "before long." He stated that he had received offers from promoters in New York, Chicago and this city for the fight.

Ancil Hoffman, San Francisco promoter, holds a contract with Walker calling for a $150,000 purse for the champion if he defends his title in California.

After his decisive triumph over Emanuel at Wrigley Field here Monday night Hudkins draws no weight line. His brother-manager, Clyde, said that he already had offers for a match between Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, and the "wildcat." Both Paddy Harmon and Jim Mullens, Chicago's rival promoters, are trying to arrange such a bout, he said.

Hagen Wants All Players to Show In Cup Matches

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, April 17.—Walter Hagen, captain of America's ten-man Ryder Cup team which arrived here yesterday to play a picked team of British golf professionals at Leeds starting April 26, wants as many of his men as possible to get into the international match. He has suggested that the two who start in foursomes drop out of the singles, because all of the American stars are anxious to do their bit.

The members of the British team and hundreds of golf enthusiasts gave the Americans a hearty welcome. The facilities of numerous courses have been placed at their disposal so that they can start practice immediately.

MILLIKIN U RELAYS TO BE HELD SATURDAY; MORE THAN 100 ENTRIES

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ill., April 17.—With entries to the ninth Millikin University relays well over the 100 mark, the Big Blue Prep school carnival promises to be the largest held downstate this spring.

Pretty close to 1000 youngsters will gallop about the Millikin cinder path Saturday. Leo T. Johnson, athletic director has estimated.

Chicago entries include Tilden, Hyde Park, Carl Schurz, Deerfield-Shields and LaGrange high schools, and practically every conference outside of the Cook County area have entered performers.

Robert Metcalfe, Tilden flash, is expected to be the outstanding performer of the day. His assaults will be chiefly directed at marks in the century and 200 sprint events, set by his predecessor, Jimmy Patterson, another Tilden athlete, who set the Big Blue invitational meet records in 1920. The Chicagoan has been timed 9.8 in the 100-yard route, and 21.1 in the 200-yard dash. Patterson's records are 10.1 and 23.1 respectively for the two dash events.

Tilden's relay team of 1927 hung up the quarter mile, and half mile marks for the Class A schools. Metcalfe, Kiss, Porzell and Reynolds composed the Chicago quartet.

All of last year's champions in the seven relay events are sending teams to defend their honors. Atwood has lost only one runner from the quartet that set the present record in the Class B half mile. Marion, also is shy one fleet foot from the group that ran the feature mile relay and the mile medley last spring. Lawrenceville has lost a man from the team that won the quarter and Class A half mile relays last year.

Collinport had no mishaps. Sun Palatine broke slow.

*McLean entry.

Nymph King, outpaced for the first three furlongs, came to the outside of the pacemaker when put to a drive, responded courageously, wore Folking down steadily and was going away at the end. Folking, hard ridden to take command, was rated along until challenged and began tiring thereafter. Beau Wrack raced well up but lost much ground entering the home stretch. Classy was unable to improve her position. Benish Way broke slowly showed a high flight of speed and was eased up when he tired.

$2 Mutuels paid: Nymph King, win $5.60, place $3.30, show $2.60; Folking, place $5.50, show $3.70; Beau Wrack, show $4.80.

Kitty Pitcher	112	9	4	1½	9^{2}	10	10	10	J. Smith	106.60

Herb Ashby sluggish for the first quarter mile, settled in his stride on reaching the back stretch, moved into contention rapidly, assumed command entering into the home stretch and under a severe drive, just lasted to outstay Sun De Meur. Latter raced forwardly made a bold rush in the final furlong and was wearing the winner down at every stride. Chatternella went very wide at the first turn, raced Kitty Pitcher into early defeat. She tired badly. Confab showed a good test. Camp Lady had a rough ride. Agnes Wynne weakened. Kitty Pitcher stopped.

$2 mutuels paid—Herb Ashby: Win, $9.40; place, $5; show, $4.10. Sun De Meur: Place, $3.80; show, $3.40. Chatternella: Show, $10.50.

FOURTH RACE—$1200, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles: Start bad; won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:06 p. m.; at post 6 minutes. Winner, b. m. 6, by Golden Maxim-Kiva. Trainer, V. Kaiser. Time, :25, :50 2-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:44 2-5, 1:51 1-5. Value to winners, $850, $200, $100, $50.

Friedjof Nansen	115	3	8	8	Pulled up				G. Fields	2.55

Maxiva reserved off the pace for first six furlongs, moved to the leaders with good speed, took command entering the home stretch and was shaken up at the end. Danger Signal, always a factor, was in the deep going early, came out into the better footing in the stretch run to close gamely. Rock Hawk saved a lot of ground entering the home stretch and outfinished Sun Altos. Latter, away poorly was used too much to reach the front. He would have been closer with a more intelligent ride. Milaria quit. Sansterre swerved in front of the stall gate at the start and blocked Friedjof Nansen and Sun Altos. The former was pulled up.

$2 mutuels paid: Maxiva, win $5.80, place $4, show $3.50; Danger Signal, place $9, show $6.20; Rock Hawk, show $6.50.

FIFTH RACE—$1200, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles. Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 4:35 p. m. At post 1 minute. Winner, b. g. 4, by Seth-Ferona. Ruban Rouge	107	1	7	8	8	8	8	8	R. Leischman	15.40

Ferseth, allowed to remain off the pace for six furlongs, moved up when called on, came to the outside and, finishing fast, wore Inlaid down and was going away. Inlaid rushed into a long lead saved ground, but began tiring when placed to punishment. Parchesie worked his way up steadily and was in close quarters during the final furlong but closed willingly. Miss Maryland placed forwardly early, weakened badly. Forest Lore was away very slow. Royal Charge stopped.

$2 mutuels paid: Ferseth, win $20.70, place $7.20, show $4.70; Inlaid, place $3.70, show $3.20; Parchesi, show $6.30.

MISS WILLS TO START ON TRIP ABROAD, TODAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The United States sends its second detachment of athletic talent to Europe aboard the Aquitania tonight, barely 24 hours after the arrival of the American Ryder Cup squad at Plymouth, England.

Where men were the dominating figures in the first invasion of a week ago, women occupy the spotlight this time, for aboard the Aquitania will be Helen Wills and her tennis racquets and Glenna Collett and her golf clubs.

Miss Wills is returning to scenes of past triumphs; Miss Collett, after three previous failures, is going to England for another shot at the British women's golf championship.

Miss Collett, the present American champion, plans to go direct from Southampton to St. Andrews, where the British women's titular play begins on May 13. She expects to return to the United States by the first of June.

Miss Wills, the national women's champion and holder of the Wimbledon and French titles as well, has scheduled an ambitious program, which includes defense of her British and French titles and participating in team matches against picked French, Dutch and German teams. She expects to sail for home on July 13. Miss Wills' partners in the team matches, Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco and Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., are to sail for Europe next Wednesday.

The famous tennis star is to be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. C. A. Wills, and Miss Harriet Walker of New York. Miss Collett's mother, Mrs. Ada Collett, will be her daughter's traveling companion.

The Aquitania will carry other well known golf stars, Bill Mehlhorn and Tommy Armour, professionals, and George Von Elm, former amateur king. Mehlhorn expects to play in the British open and the Yorkshire News tournament. Von Elm and Armour will concentrate on the open, although the former also may be a starter in the British amateur.

CLINSTOCK TO WRESTLE JONES HERE TONIGHT

Berlenbach Will Try a "Comeback" As Pro Wrestler

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.

NOW that the fistic trail is definitely barred to him, Paul Berlenbach is going back to his first love—wrestling.

The former light heavyweight boxing champion, who smashed his way to the top of the division and back to the preliminary class in 44 bouts, hopes to gain a license as a professional wrestler from the State Athletic Commission. Berlenbach was an amateur wrestler of note and member of the Olympic team before fisticuffs found him. He is only 28 years old. He won the 15-pound boxing title from Mike McTigue in 1925, losing it to Jack Delaney in 1926.

Two former All-America football players, Jim McMillan of Illinois and Charley Strack of Colgate University, will meet tonight in one of the wrestling bouts on Promoter Tom Packs' card at the Coliseum. It will be Strack's first appearance here.

The former Colgate athlete, in addition to starring in football, won the National A. A. U. heavyweight wrestling championship four times, and was Olympic winner once. He has met with fair success in the professional field.

McMillan, who follows the example of the champion, Gus Sonnenberg, in the liberal use of the flying tackle, several nights ago gained a decision over Jim Clinstock, the Indian who will oppose Paul Jones in the advertised feature match. The Clinstock-Jones event will be to a finish.

Hannes Bauer the German, will go against Roy Steele of Seattle in the one-hour time limit semi-windup.

A substitution in the card was made necessary with the injury of Tommy Marvin, who was scheduled to oppose George McDowell in the 30-minute opener. Ad Herman of St. Louis will appear against McDowell. Marvin suffered a slight injury in training.

I SEE Dan Cupid took a shot
At Babe the mighty Son of Swat,
To hearten us and cheer us.
As cross-word puzzle fans would say,
The Babe stepped out the other day,
And signed with Col. Eros.

'Twas noticed on the training trip
Bambino had begun to slip
And was no fences breaking.
And so the wedding bells will chime,
As Babe considers it is time,
A home-run he was making.

Our two-game series was a tie,
And while it made the patrons sigh,
The issue wasn't vital.
And, so as neither side could win,
The local battle ended in
A deadlock for the title.

Our local talent all displayed
Mid-season fettle as they played
Their various positions.
It served to whet our appetites,
And primed us for the keen delights
Of coming exhibitions.

Owner Wrigley is confident the Cubs will land the pennant. However, before awarding the bunting to the King of Chicle it will be necessary to go through the formality of playing out the schedule.

Otherwise they could notify the Yankees to get ready and play the world series right now and have it over with.

Besides there are seven other clubs in the National League if you count the Phillies and Braves.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., formerly [illegible] and international women's tennis championship winner, and her [illegible] year-old daughter, Dorothy, were in St. Louis today, the guests of Miss Eugenia Chouteau of [illegible] Maryland terrace. They arrived in St. Louis yesterday.

The Bundys departed at noon for New York, where they will embark for England. Mrs. Bundy plans to compete for the Wimbledon Women's International tournament, which she won the title 24 years ago. Mrs. Bundy, who is 42 years old, has retained much of her strength and tennis prowess, as was shown by her recent play in California and by her participation in American events in recent years. She believes she is almost as effective today as she was when as Miss May Sutton she won the American women's tennis championship at the age of 17. It was in the following year that she went abroad and won the international title.

Mrs. Bundy is the mother of [illegible] children. Dorothy is accompanying her to Europe and already has become a very formidable player under her mother's coaching.

POLICE AND FIREMEN MUST OCCUPY SEATS IN CHICAGO COLISEUM

CHICAGO, April 17.—Jim Mullen today signed Jack Berg, English lightweight, to box Phil McGraw, Detroit, in one of four 10-rounders at the Coliseum April [illegible]. It will be Mullen's first fistic venture since the panic resulted at the Jackie Fields-Young Jack Thompson bout three weeks ago.

In order to keep all aisles cleared and everyone seated at all times, Mullen has decided to enforce strict rules. Even the house police and fireman will occupy seats in the reserved sections. Heretofore, police, firemen and others have entered the arena on employes' tickets, which gave them no seats, and resulted in choking the aisles.

CLAUDE BRACEY TO MEET TIMM AND OTHER ACES IN CENTURY DASH

the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 17.—great host of track and field thletes will assemble here April 7, for the twentieth annual Drake elays. This Western track classic ies with the Penn Relays on hat date, and it is expected that erformances will outclass marks xpected in the Eastern classic.

It's no secret that the Drake officials expect a new world's record n the 100-yard dash. Upon Claude racey, sensational Rice Institute printer, Drake officials pin their opes.

At the Southern Methodist reys last month, Pracey clipped a enth of a second from the world ecord of 9.5 in the preliminaries. he following day, aided by a ight breeze, he galloped the route n 9.4.

The Texas youth will face the ick of college dash men in merica. Included are Jud Timm f the University of Illinois and harley Root of the University of hicago; George Simpson of Ohio, ack Elder of Notre Dame, Loren ape of Iowa, Phil Larson of Wisonsin, Eddie Tolan, Michigan; eier of Iowa State and Daniels f Texas.

New Vault Mark Expected.

Two sophomores undoubtedly ill crack the pole vault record f the Drake Relays. Tom Warne f Northwestern and Henry Canby f Iowa will provide the competiion. Warne of Kokomo, Ind., olds the edge on the Mount Pleasnt, Ia., youngster. The Purple tar set a world indoor record of 3 feet 7¾ inches at the Illinois eet, one-quarter of an inch igher than Canby's best effort. t the Texas relays the two tied t 13 feet 3½ inches.

Four boys from Illinois, who set he new world's mark of 17:40.2 or the four-mile baton event at he Texas relays, are counted on o turn in an excellent performnce. Captain Al White, Dave bbott, Freddie Stine and "Bo" rlovich make up the famed quaret tutored by Harry Gill.

The half-mile relay team from he Illini institution also can be ncluded in the list of prospective ecord breakers. They have qualed the title of 1:27.5 the 1923 llinois foursome set at the Drake eet, equaled by the 1925 Wolvere quartet of Michigan.

Portmess of Northwestern has lready turned in a mark of 24 feet 7¼ inches in the broad jump, 4½ inches farther than the relay mark set by Hubbard of Michigan in 1924.

McIntosh Is Ruled Out.

Since Jack MacIntosh has been uled out of the carnival because f his freshman competition, Illinoisans won't worry much about the high jump mark. The Monmouth ace holds a mark in the Little 19 conference of 6 feet 2¾ inches, which exceeds the Drake mark 1¾ inches. Shelby of Oklahoma is the next bet to place in that event, having turned in a mark of 6 feet 1½ inches.

Other relays records, too, are ue for a tumble. The Illini quaret has been timed in 42 flat for the 440. Chicago University stars have turned in previous marks of 3:18.3 for the mile relay, and 7:53.9 for the two-mile course.

Behr of Wisconsin heaved the 16-pound pellet four inches less than the Drake mark of 48 feet at the Irish invitation meet. Bevan, the Emporia Teachers' entry in the javelin, has turned in a performance of 206 feet 11 inches, bettering the Drake mark by nearly 11 feet. The relay mark has been bettered some 15 feet in the discus event by Rasmuss of Ohio State.

Bob Simpson, track coach at Iowa State College (Ames), hopes that his pupil, Robert Hager, can lower the mark of 14.8 seconds in the high hurdles, set by himself while wearing the colors of Missouri University in 1919—the oldest mark on the Drake record ook. Lawson, Nebraska hurdler, as already equaled the mark.

BEARDSTOWN ATHLETE INJURED BY JAVELIN

Hart was injured yesterday when he was struck by a javelin that slipped from the hand of Vincent Long, high school student, who was hurling the pointed shaft preparatory to competing in an interclass track meet that was in progress. Hart's physician said that, unless infection set in, the wound was not serious.

SPRINT STARS EXPECTED TO SET NEW RECORDS IN DRAKE RELAYS

CLAUDE BRACEY TO MEET TIMM AND OTHER ACES IN CENTURY DASH

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 17.—A great host of track and field athletes will assemble here April 27, for the twentieth annual Drake Relays. This Western track classic vies with the Penn Relays on that date, and it is expected that performances will outclass marks expected in the Eastern classic.

It's no secret that the Drake officials expect a new world's record in the 100-yard dash. Upon Claude Bracey, sensational Rice Institute sprinter, Drake officials pin their hopes.

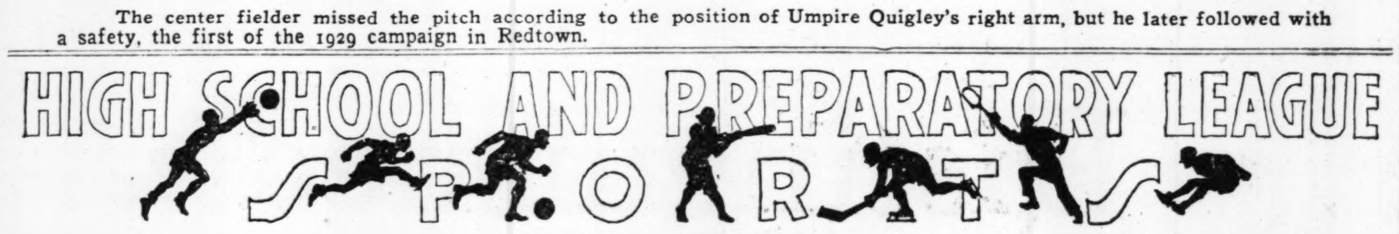
HIGH SCHOOL AND PREPARATORY LEAGUE SPORTS



Beaumont Will Be Crippled for Central Contest

The second week of play in the City High School League baseball campaign will see the defending champions, Beaumont, swing into action against Central, in the opening game of the double-header, Saturday. Soldan and Cleveland will meet in the second contest at the Public School Stadium.

If Ben Shaberg does not improve by the end of the week, Coach Kirk of Beaumont plans to shift Bill Slater to the outfield and use Bob Kalbitz as the starting hurler. Slater is the first-string pitcher and a heavy hitter.

Unless Central shows a complete reversal of form, Beaumont should have little trouble in winning its first contest. Central was weak in batting against Cleveland, hitting safely only three times. Weintraub will probably be chosen to hurl for the Mid-City nine.

Basing predictions on the results of the opening double-header, the game between Soldan and Cleveland should be a pitcher's duel between Schacklin of Soldan and Charlie Van Nest of Cleveland.

Both Cleveland and Soldan have slugging teams. The West Enders connected for a dozen swats against Roosevelt, while Cleveland hit safely seven times for a total of nine bases. Soldan had no extra-base hits.

The leading hitters:

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH GAINS VICTORY IN PREP BATTLE

By Robert W. Herr

In the opening contest of the Prep League baseball season, St. Louis U. High defeated Country Day, 4-2, on the University High grounds yesterday afternoon. The game was a pitcher's battle throughout, Krygiel letting the losers down with six hits, while the winners were able to gather but three safeties off Messick. The Junior Billikens bunched their blows, however, and took advantage of Country Day errors.

After Codasco had been set down in order in the opening frame, Schultehenrick was safe on Disbrow's error, with two out. The Junior Billiken third sacker stole second and scored on Sig Krygiel's single.

Codasco tied the count in the second when Hammett walked, stole second and third and counted on Disbrow's single.

In the fourth frame, a Codasco error, three walks and a timely single by Joe Connors enabled Murray and Minette to cross the plate with the winning runs.

The Blue and White counted its final marker in the fifth. Picco strolled, advanced to second on Schultehenrick's fly to left and scored on Hammett's miscue of Murray's grounder. Country Day came back strong in the sixth, and after Messick had been thrown out at second on Ferris' grounder, and Hammett had fanned, Morgan was safe at first on Picco's fumble. Ferris drew up at third on the play and crossed the plate on Disbrow's third safety.

Kirkwood and Jennings Play For League Lead

By Henry L. Freund.

Four league games and one non-league contest are scheduled for this week-end in the County baseball loop. University City draws the bye, and engages Webster in the non-league contest.

The Normandy-Wellston game originally arranged for Friday, has been advanced to Thursday, at the Normandy field. Normandy has won one game and lost one, whereas Wellston lost to University City in its lone appearance. Wagner showed a return to his old pitching form against Ritenour last week when he let his opponents down with two hits. If Wagner continues his fine pitching performance, Normandy should win.

Ritenour will have an opportunity to break into the win column Friday, when Maplewood is met. Maplewood beat Webster 6—5 two weeks ago, but lost to Jennings, 9—3, last Friday. Coach Wahlbrink is working with a team of youngsters who show a tendency to blow up at crucial moments. Pitching is another problem as Kerr and Gottlob are inexperienced. Ritenour has a number of veterans on its squad.

Ferguson engages Hancock in a game that should go to Ferguson. Hancock put up a real battle against University City before losing out in an extra inning 7—5. The team has shown a marked improvement in hitting and may pull a surprise.

The Kirkwood-Jennings game will be a thriller if early indications mean anything. Jennings has a crack battery in Kercheval and Hartwig and owns a hard-hitting attack. Kirkwood also possesses a sterling battery in Thompson and Fedder. Kirkwood easily blanked Webster 3—0 in its last appearance and Jennings trimmed Maplewood. Both squads are considered title contenders, along with University City and Normandy.

BLUE JAYS TO MEET LEBANON TRACK TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FULTON, Mo., April 16. — The Westminster College track team will open its season with a dual meet against McKendree College of Lebanon, Ill., here Thursday afternoon. McKendree has always been well up in the athletic rankings of the Illinois colleges and can be depended upon to give the Blue Jays plenty of competition.

Graduate Committee Control Of College Athletics Doomed Harvard Experiment Proves

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 17.—John R. Tunis, one of the best authorities on American college sports, thinks that the Alumni are to blame for most of the troubles in sports. The graduates, it seems, are the ones who demand the winners, and who are corrupting athletics.

Whether or not the evils which exist in intercollegiate athletics can be traced to the graduates, every one will agree that sports in the universities of the country belong to the men who play them, he writes. And, insofar as is possible, they should be directed and controlled by the undergraduates; if they do so control them many of the present abuses would be lessened or cease to exist. Unquestionably a saner and more sensible attitude toward athletics has crept into intercollegiate sport of late years, and this has been due to the undergraduate.

In many universities today, especially throughout the East, the tendency is to give the control of athletics to the undergraduate. It is especially so at Harvard, where, under the guidance of William J. Bingham, the director of athletics, the movement has gone ahead rapidly. In fact, it will seem very rapid to those who remember sports at Cambridge when Percy Haughton was there some 15 years ago.

Bingham's Novel Method.

Bill Bingham is a remarkable fellow. He came to Cambridge to work his way through college at an age when he was older than his contemporaries; but he was young in heart when he captained the track team in 1916, just as he is today.

He has the sympathy and understanding of the undergraduates and he understands the viewpoint of that person as few do who have been away from a university for any length of time. And his attitude is that wherever possible the men in college should run their own sports, something that is a novel belief not only at Cambridge, but at other American universities.

The Old Committee Idea.

Fifteen years ago at Harvard all sport was controlled by graduate committees. Thus there was a football committee, and sometimes these committees functioned properly and sometimes they were a farce.

Often the power would fall to one or two men who would meet in caucus in a private dining room for lunch, and settle important questions of policy, arrange and rearrange schedules, hire and fire coaches who pleased or displeased them, and generally made decisions on sport for several thousand young men who played them.

Then along came Bingham.

He said nothing and did little; but today there is not a committee left. The football committee does not exist as a functioning body, the rowing committee died in a burst of emotion about a certain coach several years ago, the baseball committee is a thing of the past.

To a large extent the various sports are in charge of the various captains. Thus it is the captain who, in consultation with the coach, arranges the schedules and settles matters concerning his sport.

All this is done so quietly that it escapes general attention.

And They Get Results.

Sport, then, is being given back to the undergraduates. Now one might imagine that without the helpful aid of these committees and these powerful graduates, winning teams would be a rarity.

As a matter of fact there have been more victorious teams at Cambridge in the past two years than at any time in 20 years. Those who believe that efficiency and organization and committees and lots of advice from graybeards are important, might be surprised at this systematic handing over the control of athletics to the men who compete.

Within the past two years a Harvard crew defeated one of Yale's leader-coached eights, a football eleven defeated the Blue for the first time since 1922, victories have been recorded in track, hockey, baseball and numerous minor sports. Judged solely on the question of results, this business of giving games to the undergraduates is startlingly successful.

HALL HAS LEAD OF 16 POINTS OVER COCHRAN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Willie Hoppe and Kinrey Matsuyama split even in two blocks of their 12-block 18.1 balkline billiards match here yesterday. Hoppe has taken three of the first four blocks and leads in total points, 1177 to 756.

Matsuyama took the afternoon block, 300 to 277, in 17 innings. His high run was 85; Hoppe's 21. Hoppe came back to win the night block, 300 to 297, in 14 innings. His best cluster was one of 86; Matsuyama's 124.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Allan Hall of St. Louis took both blocks of his 600-point 12-block three-cushion billiards match with Welker Cochran, 18.2 balkline star, yesterday. Hall now has won four straight blocks and leads in points, 200 to 184.

Hall took the afternoon session, 50 to 48, in 53 innings. His high run was 7, to 6 for Cochran. Last night the score was 50 to 44 in 56 innings. Each had a high run of five.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH TRACK TEAM MEETS MAPLEWOOD

The St. Louis U. High track squad is favored to down the Maplewood High runners when the two teams engage in a dual meet on the Maplewood field this afternoon. The St. Louisans, in their only previous meet this season, had little difficulty in defeating Normandy High, 139-69, and since Maplewood's best effort to date has been a 74-47 defeat at the hands of St. Charles.

Some real competition should result in the various events, particularly the sprints and weights. A keen battle for first is expected when Blanchard of Maplewood and Tierney of St. Louis meet in the 440-yard dash. Tierney has a slight edge. The two will also compete in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Lawler of St. Louis and Welsh of Maplewood should furnish a close exhibition in the shot put. In the javelin throw more close competition is expected, with Beeley of Maplewood meeting Cleary of St. Louis U. High.

Wray's COLUMN

Is It Worth It?

ONE "winter book," handled in Louisville, quotes a price of 3½ to 1 against the chances of Blue Larkspur in the Kentucky Derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs, one month from tomorrow.

If the pick of the field of approximately 150 entries goes to the post, it is doubtful if Blue Larkspur will bring that price in the mutuels, even though he is Kentucky-owned and will shoulder the bulk of the home population support.

So much could happen in one month that it is almost 3½ to 1 that any given candidate will not go to the post in the event. In Bradley's case it is known that Blue Larkspur is the stable pride and that he will start if he is not injured, and comes along in his training.

Still, it is inconceivable that any one would wager at this price today when the odds at the track will hardly be much lower—and there the bettor gets full assurance that his entry will start.

Whimsical Prices.

ONE of the remarkable features of this race are the quotations against High Strung and Roguish Eye, who finished one-two in the Belmont Futurity, in which Blue Larkspur ran ninth.

High Strung is quoted at 30 to 1 in the same book that makes Blue Larkspur 3½, while Roguish Eye is 10 to 1.

High Strung is listed as a "doubtful starter" because of a slight injury, but it is conceivable that there is ample time for him to train on, and be ready for the derby. He has not been declared. Roguish Eye is not only training, but training well and is very highly regarded. He outran High Strung to a nose in the Futurity and has grown into a fine, strong colt. He finished twelve or fifteen lengths in front of Blue Larkspur in the Futurity.

Still, he is 10 to 1 and Blue Larkspur 3½ to 1.

Money Talks.

THE explanation probably lies in two facts:

1. The remarkable confidence shown in Blue Larkspur by the Bradley Stable and his splendid condition today.

2. The large amount of money wagered on him in the future books. Most of this money came from Bradley, his friends and intimates, and from the stable connections.

A favorite's odds, in an open book, depend entirely on the amount of money wagered. In this case, Blue Larkspur's short price is undoubtedly due to the number of wagers on this horse; the size of the wagers on this three-year-old, plus the fact that the horse's owner is heavily supporting him.

Betters like to know that the "man behind the horse" is really behind him.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS SHOULD PLAY BIGGER PART ON OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

THAT AT LEAST IS CONTENTION OF GRIFFITH, BIG TEN HEAD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—There are still a few discords in the new-found harmony between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union.

These organizations, long enthusiastic enemies, have gone a long way toward burying the hatchet but John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western Conference and a leader in N. C. A. A. circles, still is not satisfied.

Long an outspoken critic of A. A. U. policies, Griffith believes that lasting peace is an impossibility until there is a change in the makeup of the American Olympic Association.

While reiterating his ancient charge that the Olympic association is "controlled by the A. A. U.," Griffith disavowed any intention of adopting a belligerent attitude toward the union, especially when definite steps toward peace have just been taken.

Griffith's contention is that since college men form the bulk of American Olympic teams, college officials should be the predominating factor in the Olympic association.

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., enters the controversy at this point with the observation that if A. A. U. officials hold most of the important positions on the Olympic Committee it is not because the A. A. U. holds the edge in voting power but because the majority of the association members believe the A. A. U. officials are the best men for the jobs.

Through its district associations, the A. A. U. controls 28 votes in the Olympic association, while the total college vote is 73, Ferris said in support of his argument that the A. A. U. could not steamroller its candidates into the principal positions on the Olympic committee.

PAUL PITCHES BEARS' FRESHMEN TO VICTORY

With a one-armed pitcher, Orville Paul, allowing only three hits, Washington U. Freshmen completely routed the Kirkwood High nine yesterday afternoon in a six-inning game at Francis Field by 14 to 0. Sturdy, Kirkwood second baseman, got two of the three hits for his team. The Bears' Freshmen will meet University City High today, also at Francis Field.

224 Withdrawals Cut Epsom Derby Race Field to 98

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 17.—Two hundred and twenty-four withdrawals in the past two days have cut the field in the English Derby at Epsom Downs, June 5, to 98. Two-thirds or more of that number will be eliminated a week before the famous race for 3-year-olds.

Farrell Gives Reasons for America's Rapid Golf Rise

By Johnny Farrell.
American Open Golf Champion.

LEEDS, England, April 17.—How far Americans have gone beyond their British cousins in golf proficiency was significantly brought home to me by young Henry Cotton, a professional, who visited America for no other purpose than to acquire experience in fast company.

FARRELL.

Cotton is a quiet youth of far-reaching capabilities. He is one of the rising stars in the British firmament, whose selection for Ryder Cup competition is an acknowledgment of his talents. Cotton is one of those chosen to replace some of the British veterans.

It is only a few years since the Scotch and the English were so much more skilled that we hesitated to intrude upon their major championships. They who made the crossing expressly for the purpose of bearding the lion in its den were considered no less than daring adventurers. Until Walter Hagen broke through at Sandwich in 1922, no American had ever seriously challenged the supremacy of the Taylors, Braids, Vardons, Rays and Herds.

How Things Have Changed.

Within the six years that have followed, the progress of the Americans has been swift. In that period we have completely changed the balance in our favor. It is quite true that Jock Hutchinson won in 1921 at St. Andrews. Being a Scotchman born and bred, his victory was instantly hailed throughout the British Isles as distinctly a continuance of native superiority.

When Hagen shouldered his way through the following season, British tongues were silenced.

And now, six years later, we will oppose this likable chap, Cotton, who informed me his father and brother had urged him to spend the winter in the United States so that he could acquire experience and be "toughened" by competition. Quite a tribute to American golf! What?

The reasons for this rapid development in American golf are manifold. Those do-and-dare attributes that Americans inculcate in themselves are paramount, perhaps.

Someone once remarked that the difference between golf played in the two countries was that the British were content to go after par, while the Americans strove for birdies and became peeved when they didn't get them.

However, American golf has had three great stimulations which have helped to advance the game so amazingly. The first was that memorable triumph of Ouimet over Vardon and Ray at Brookline. To this signal success, I ascribe the obsession for golf that Americans now revel in everywhere. It brought quickly into vogue a game that theretofore had been more or less a curio in the eyes of the public.

The second stimulation was the victory of Hagen at Sandwi the third was the develop Bobby Jones. Ever since majored in the national championship at Inwood in he has been an inspiratio thousands who have taken u

Distinguished Transportation for many years to come

THE purchaser of a Packard Eight does not invest in a car. He invests in distinguished and trouble-free transportation—not for one year, but for many years to come.

If he chooses to buy from income, as so many do, the beauty, comfort and distinction of his Packard remain a source of pride and satisfaction for many times the payment period—long after the purchase price has been forgotten.

For the Packard Eight is a long-lived car—precision built and precision protected. Its characteristic beauty is always up to date, for Packard has never depreciated cars in the hands of owners by frequent and radical changes in design.

Most owners, therefore, keep their Packards twice as long as they once kept ordinary cars. And this means that they enjoy the luxury of Packard transportation at costs no greater than they would pay for motoring in cars with far less to offer in prestige, in beauty and in performance.

Why not invest now in luxurious Packard transportation? Packard offers three complete lines at three distinct ranges of price. Each model in each line is a Packard in every sense of the word. Packard builds to a single standard of quality—the highest. The differences lie only in size, power and the degree of individuality available in appointments, upholstery and color.

The Packard Standard Eight (reduced March 4th) is priced at $2275 to $2675 at the factory. The Custom Eight lists at $3175 to $3850. The Eight De Luxe ranges from $4585 to $5985—with individual custom cars on the De Luxe chassis available on order.

When may we place a Packard Eight at your disposal for a demonstration drive?

If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay because the used car allowance equals or exceeds the down payment on the new car.

Backstroke Swim Marks Lowered by Lass of 15

By the Associated Press.

WHITINSVILLE, Mass., April 17.—World's records fail utterly to overawe Joan McSheehy, 15-year-old swimmer of Whitinsville, who is the national women's backstroke champion.

Twice this year she has bettered world's record time in backstroke events and twice this year she equaled a world's mark. She won the national backstroke chamshronship at the national meet in Chicago in March.

This sort of thing is not wholly new to Miss McSheehy, for she began to win recognition three years ago as one of the best of New England's women swimmers.

Back in 1927 she gained public attention by taking possession of the women's senior 100-yard backstroke title of the New England association of the Amateur Athletic Union, holding the short course record for that swim and gaining the junior 440-yard free-style title in the New England association.

Set Six Backstroke Records.

Standing out as one of her most brilliant performances since that time was her feat of May 16, 1928, in an exhibition backstroke event, when she was credited with breaking six world backstroke records and establishing a seventh.

Her time bettered the best previous records for 200 yards, 500 yards, 600 yards, 700 yards, 800 yards and 880 yards.

This year Miss McSheehy first equaled the old mark of 33 2-5 seconds for the 50-yard backstroke, then clipped two-fifths of a second from this record.

Later she was credited with equaling her own 33-second time over this distance and with cutting three-fifths of a second from the time of 54 3-5 seconds for the 75-yard backstroke.

5 reasons why 5 families bought used cars

At the right are statements typical of interviews with hundreds of families—in cities, towns and in the country—who have purchased used cars.

Used cars are unused transportation

More than 3,000,000 American families have learned that a second car is not only a great convenience but an economy. The second car need not necessarily be a new car. Many used cars have thousands of miles of unused transportation in them and can be purchased at very low prices. General Motors dealers offer a wide selection of used cars, plus the convenient GMAC Purchase Plan.

SPRING SHOWING OF GENERAL MOTORS CARS
April 20 to 27

HUNDREDS of thousands of people inspected General Motors' new models when displayed together during the national automobile shows. Now, for the benefit of the millions who did not have that opportunity, General Motors has arranged a special Spring Showing to be held individually by its dealers. You are cordially invited to see the cars at local dealers' showrooms.

"I am a carpenter. By owning a car I can work on any job that comes along in any of the surrounding towns. My car was a used car. It cost very little and makes money for me every day."

"We bought a used car which we call our utility car. Every other week I take my own and a neighbor's children to and from school. The week in between, my neighbor drives and I get the week off."

"We kept our old car when we bought a new car, instead of trading it in. It's such a convenience to have two cars that we hardly know how we got along with only one."

"When our children grew up and began to have engagements of their own, we found that one car was not enough. We could not afford two new cars. So we bought one new car and a used car."

"We live out of town. Our new car is the family car. Our used car is what we call our 'work car.' It does all kinds of jobs in all kinds of weather."

Knocks Down 24 National Guardsmen at Kirksville, Seriously Injuring One.

By the Associated Press.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 17.—A taxicab driven by Jewell Brunk ran into the rear of three squads of Company K, local Missouri National Guard unit, as they were drilling on the street Monday night, knocked down all 25 men and seriously injured Private David von Escen.

Eight others required medical attention and nearly all suffered cuts and bruises.

Brunk, who is charged with feloniously operating a car, stated he did not see the men until he struck them and was unable to stop until he had ran through all three squads. Company K frequently drills on the streets as the armory hall is too small for squad movements.

anufacturers and Wholesalers of 12 Valley States Meet in One-Day Conference.

Modern methods of merchandisg and distribution were discussed day by about 750 executives of anufacturing and wholesale corations of the 12 states of the ississippi Valley at a one-day conerence at Hotel Jefferson under e auspices of the Chamber of ommerce.

The conference, first of its kind be held in this section, is known the Mississippi Valley Merhants' and Wholesalers' Conferce. Co-operating with the hamber are the leading commeral and industrial organizations of e states involved and the Metroolitan Life Insurance Co. of New ork. Discussion rested largely on e influence of style, color and esign on the stabilization of instry.

The speakers included executives some of the leading industries the section. William McChesney artin, governor of the Eighth ederal Reserve District, is chairan of the conference, which will ose with a dinner tonight at hich William B. Stout, president the Stout Metal Airplane Divion, Ford Motors Co., of Dearorn, Mich., will speak on "Aviaion in Relation to Current Sales ractices."

Price Gives Way to Style.

"Price is no longer the dominatg factor in the sale of merchanise; it has given way to style," aid S. M. Bond, president of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute of Cleveland, discussing "Merchandisg from the Wholesaler's Point of iew."

"The wholesaler must have firstand knowledge of what consumrs are interested in, for merchanise is not actually sold when the etailer buys. The wholesaler's reponsibility does not cease until the merchandise has been passed on to consumers.

"Price and quality without style have no appeal to the buying pubic of this age. This is true of the most commonplace articles of wearing apparel, as well as to everything that enters the home; t applies to the people who live in ural communities as it does to the ty dwellers.

"Good roads and automobiles now provide an easy and pleasant rip to the farming element to drive o large towns or cities, where modern styles are seen on the streets and in the stores. Radios and fashion journals also keep them fully informed on prevailing styles, and, when a taste for up-todate styles has been cultivated, price no longer makes an appeal in behalf of carry-overs or passe merchandise. The last dumping ground for manufacturers' and buyers' mistakes has vanished."

Bond called attention to the study of profitable and unprofitable sales in various lines now in progress by the Department of Commerce, and declared that such analyses were immensely valuable n increasing efficiency and profitableness of operation for the wholesalers. He told retailers that hey could no longer succeed as torekeepers," and advised them o develop salesmanship to bring uyers to their stores, dressing heir show windows as attractively s possible.

Rand Discusses Salesmanship.

"As the heart is the driving organ which gives strength and vitality to the human body, so, in business, distribution or sales represent the vital force which keeps e wheels of production turning d the banking credit safe," declared Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co. of St. Louis.

"One of the first requirements of effective sales administration is to secure salesmen of the right type—men of character, ability and nergy. Articles possessing unusul merit are often lost in highly competitive markets because they are not introduced by capable salesmanship. Business and business management have learned from experience that inefficient representatives do not develop satisfactory territories.

"The next step is to give that ales force merchandise of sound alue from a competitive standoint, attractive in appearance and ell adapted to public demand. "The wholesaler must have first-hand knowledge of what consumers are interested in, for merchandise is not actually sold when the retailer buys. The wholesaler's responsibility does not cease until the merchandise has been passed on to consumers.

"Price and quality without style have no appeal to the buying public of this age. This is true of the most commonplace articles of wearing apparel, as well as to everything that enters the home; it applies to the people who live in rural communities as it does to the city dwellers.

"Good roads and automobiles now provide an easy and pleasant trip to the farming element to drive to large towns or cities, where modern styles are seen on the streets and in the stores. Radios and fashion journals also keep them fully informed on prevailing styles, and, when a taste for up-to-date styles has been cultivated, price no longer makes an appeal in behalf of carry-overs or passe merchandise. The last dumping ground for manufacturers' and buyers' mistakes has vanished."

Bond called attention to the study of profitable and unprofitable sales in various lines now in progress by the Department of Commerce, and declared that such analyses were immensely valuable in increasing efficiency and profitableness of operation for the wholesalers. He told retailers that they could no longer succeed as storekeepers," and advised them to develop salesmanship to bring buyers to their stores, dressing their show windows as attractively as possible.

Rand Discusses Salesmanship.

"As the heart is the driving organ which gives strength and vitality to the human body, so, in business, distribution or sales represent the vital force which keeps the wheels of production turning and the banking credit safe," declared Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co. of St. Louis.

"One of the first requirements of effective sales administration is to secure salesmen of the right type—men of character, ability and energy. Articles possessing unusual merit are often lost in highly competitive markets because they are not introduced by capable salesmanship. Business and business management have learned from experience that inefficient representatives do not develop satisfactory territories.

"The next step is to give that sales force merchandise of sound value from a competitive standpoint, attractive in appearance and well adapted to public demand. The permanency of a mercantile institution rests very largely on the continued quality of its merchandise. The quality and character of the products of our great institutions often, if not invariably, reflect the quality and the character of the men who make those products. It is better to sell something that is better than it looks than to sell something that looks better than it is.

The Strong Sales Manager.

"The sales manager should be an experienced man in distribution, a master salesman, who can help his salesmen in difficult situations, encourage them to surmount obstacles and properly appraise their work whether good or bad. The strong sales manager studies individual characteristics of his men, learns something about their home life and family, and uses this knowledge for the benefit of the salesmen and the house.

"Sales forces are not made up of links that are joined together as are factory and office organizations. Since the salesmen are widely separated in their different territories and each man is acting on his own initiative, there must be a force at headquarters to guide and direct and inspire the salesman to get out of his own efforts the best results.

"The good salesman is the honest salesman who strives to represent truthfully the thing offered for sale. In order to do this he must first know what is the truth not only about his merchandise but about his house. Success in salesmanship must rest on confidence. This places on the sales manager the definite responsibility of giving accurate information and instruction to his salesmen, for they must win the confidence of their customers and merit that confidence if they meet with permanent success.

"Sales effectiveness is greatly increased when the entire force realizes that its company is sticking to fixed policies and that those policies cannot be broken down."

Increasing Use of Electricity.

"Research as an Aid to Improved Sales Methods," was the topic of Marshall E. Sampsell, president of the Central Illinois Public Service Co. of Chicago, who discussed several surveys conducted by his company in recent years and their effect on the development of the company's business.

"My purpose," he said, "is to emphasize that we searched for facts, and then directed executive attention to that vitally important division of our business, selling. In the last three years we have succeeded in raising the national average in the domestic field from 365 kilowatt hours in 1925 to 450 kilowatt hours in 1928, with an average income of about $30 a year from each domestic consumer, as against $27.80 in 1925.

"The Central Illinois Public Service Co., early in 1926, entered upon an extensive analysis and exhaustive study of its residence lighting customers' accounts, in an effort to ascertain the effect upon residence lighting consumption of various forms of rates and other factors that might influence the consumption of residence lighting customers.

Lower Rates Increase Consumption.

"It was found that the towns served on a rate based on the demand by the room used approximately 23 per cent more kilowatt hours a customer a year than the towns served on other types of rate. As a result of these findings, the company adopted for all towns served a residence lighting rate based on the number of rooms contained in the residence.

"It was believed that the new room rate would result in material increases in consumption per residence customer, and experience has proven the correctness of our conclusions."

Sampsell declared that rate reductions made his company had resulted in increased consumption. "An average increase in consumption by each customer from 327 kilowatt hours in 1927 to 350 in 1928 showed that the type of rate adopted resulted in a greater use," he said, "and also aided in recovering entirely the effect of the rate reduction made on Aug. 1, 1927.

"The company has constantly conducted sales campaigns of energy-consuming merchandise, to increase the average amount of energy used by each customer. As a result of these campaigns and improvements in operating efficiencies, rates were further reduced as of April 1, 1929. The customers assist the company in reducing their own rates by using more energy, thereby bringing down the over-all per kilowatt hour cost of delivering energy.

"Getting facts as an aid to improved sales methods is actuated

No Cause for Controversy Over Claims in Antarctic, Byrd Tells British People

International Courtesy Recognizes Exploits of Previous English Explorers, Commander Says in Message.

AT the request of the editor of the Evening Standard of London, Commander Byrd has sent to him, and the New York Times radio station and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch a message for the British people, as follows:

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, April 15.—We are happy to accept your suggestion that we send a message through you to our friends in Great Britain. We wish to be sure that they understand that we approach our problems with respect for those who have preceded us. They were more the pioneers than we who follow. The best we can hope to do is to add a little to the mass of scientific data they collected.

Their trials and the march of science have lessened for us the difficulties they met. We know now from first hand as we could not have visualized from their modest records the frightful hardships they endured, and we wonder if it is probable that their own countrymen admire their deeds so much as do we 40 Americans who can tell a new story of their struggles.

Even if international law, vague as to Antarctica, may not be satisfied with their claims of discovery, international courtesy acknowledges them. Sportsmanship is more important here than the strict letter of a rule. Therefore, whatever new land we have discovered or may discover within the British claims, we see no reason for controversy.

As to science, it knows no national boundaries. Antarctica is big. There is much to be done. The more who come here the better. We will have a common cause with others who sail southward for knowledge.

So we wish to renew through you our offer of the courtesy of our facilities both ashore and afloat to the most scientific of the early pioneers, Sir Douglas Mawson, who has himself so generously offered us co-operation after aiding us with his advice.

RICHARD E. BYRD.

Byrd has been brought in close contact with the British people under circumstances which enabled him to know them intimately and to form many warm friendships among them. He has referred to those circumstances many times in his lectures.

"I have been drawn close to the people of Great Britain by the play of circumstances," he said in one lecture. "As a boy I was nursed back to life from a desperate illness in the Royal Naval Hospital at Plymouth. I was again drawn to them in striving side by side with them in a common enterprise. Several years later the bond was made still tighter by sharing a common sorrow.

"These experiences enable me to see beneath the surface of the British people. I found there an indescribable kindness which they so often cover with reserve."

Ill In British Hospital.

The first time Commander Byrd came in close contact with the British was in 1911, when he was a midshipman on the U. S. S. Iowa, then at Plymouth. He was ill with typhoid and received treatment which saved his life. If it had not been for this care, his adventurous career would probably have ended before it began. Byrd often recalls that the Earl of Mount Edgcom kept the room of the young sailor full of flowers.

When he was in command of the air forces on the Eastern Canadian coast, Byrd formed a friendship with Flight Commander Cull of the British navy, which has lasted ever since. Commander Cull is godfather to his daughter, Balling Byrd. Commander Byrd's relationship with the Canadian and British flyers under his command during the war is one of the pleasantest chapters in his career, he has often said, and recompensed him in some slight degree for not being able to go abroad.

Aids Dirigible Rescue Work.

When the dirigible R-2 was wrecked in England, a disaster which Byrd escaped because the crew list for that flight had been made up when he arrived, he helped in the rescue work, toiling side by side with English and other American officers in trying to save some of the many men who lost their lives. Later he took part in the funeral services in Westminster Abbey. As only a handful of the American detachment was left, British officers and men filled the gaps by the gun carriages. Commander Byrd wrote in his book, "Skyward":

"The English did homage that day to the American flag that covered the biers. England won me then and there. I cannot describe what that crowd did to me. Not a sound was heard but the rumble of the cortege. Not one of the women had dry eyes. Not one of the men or boys had his head covered. The spirit of them got to me and I realized then and there that my dream of international good fellowship was not so senseless or useless, that aviation in tragedy as well as in success held within it an impalpable something that could bring peoples to a better understanding."

PRESTIGE OF OFFICE CUTS CURTIS' RENT FOR SUITE IN TWO

Vice President Gets $22,500 Quarters at the Mayflower for "Around $10,000" a Year.

WILLARD OFFERED HIM ROOMS GRATIS

Coolidge and Marshall, It Appears, Were Also Favored With Reduced Rates in Their Terms.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Competition between two large Washington hotels for the prestige of housing the Vice President has resulted in giving Vice President Curtis a bargain in rent. The luxurious 11-room suite which he occupies at the Mayflower, and on which the regular rate is $22,500 a year, is rented to Curtis for "around $10,000" a year, it was learned today.

Incidentally, it appears that other Vice Presidents, including former Vice President Calvin Coolidge, have been favored with reduced rates in return for the prestige and advertising which their presence was supposed to bring. Social precedence apparently is not the only perquisite which goes with that office.

Vice President Curtis, in partially confirming the report of his arrangement with the Mayflower, declared yesterday that the Hotel Willard had offered him a five-room suite for nothing. It was at the Willard that Coolidge and the late Thomas R. Marshall lived during their terms as Vice President.

Rivalry for Noted Guests.

Until the Mayflower was opened five years ago, the Willard enjoyed the distinction of being the capital's leading hotel. Since then there has been fierce rivalry for prestige and the business that goes with it. Each has striven to be known as the "official" stopping place.

The hotel business in Washington is somewhat peculiar, and advertising is not the only advantage that comes from housing high Government officials. Among the generous spenders who visit the city are men having business with the Government, and the best spenders of all are those who want something from the Government. As a rule, they prefer to stop at a hotel where many high officials reside.

Curtis is the first Vice President to make the Mayflower his home. With him reside his sister and "official hostess," Mrs. Edward E. Gann, and her husband, Mr. Gann. When they moved in soon after the election, the event was considered a distinct social and business triumph for the Mayflower over the Willard.

Curtis' Apartment Sumptuous.

The Vice Presidential apartment is sumptuous in size and furnishings. It consists of a foyer salon, dining room, smoking room, library four bedrooms, two servants' rooms and a kitchen. The furnishings, according to the hotel management, cost more than $75,000. The dining room has a massive inlaid walnut table which will seat 26 persons. The salon is the size of two ordinary hotel parlor rooms.

The circumstances under which the Vice President became a tenant were related to the Post-Dispatch correspondent by R. L. Pollio, the hotel manager.

"When we aspired to the position of the leading hotel of the capital," he explained. "It became necessary to provide exceptional accommodations for visiting royalty and other distinguished personages who visit the city. So we installed the 'presidential suite' and the 'vice presidential suite.' They are identical in size and arrangement, and the furnishings are similar. We have operated them at a considerable loss. Because they were occupied so little of the time."

In response to a question, he said they had not been occupied more than 100 days out of each year.

"Naturally," the manager continued, "we were eager to have Vice President Curtis come here to live. It is an honor, and, to be perfectly frank with you, it is worth a lot of money in advertising. Furthermore, we wanted a permanent tenant for the vice presidential suite, and we preferred to have the Vice President.

"Consequently, we solicited the Vice President and Mrs. Gann. We knew the Willard was trying to get him, and we went after him with the most attractive proposition that we could afford to make. He and Mrs. Gann were delighted with the apartment, and he accepted our terms. That's all there is to it. We are glad to have him here, and he is under no obligations to us."

"Around $10,000 a Year."

Pollio was reluctant to indicate the terms which had been concluded with Curtis, suggesting at first that "you might say it is around $10,000 a year." Finally he made the following explanation:

"The regular standing rate for the apartment is $22,500 a year, but, as I have said, it was vacant more than two-thirds of the time. The market for a suite like that is limited. So we figured up the average annual income which the suite had yielded during the last three years, and we made Mr. Curtis a rate which is practically the equivalent of that."

"Then you are still losing money on it," the reporter suggested.

"We don't regard it in that light," Pollio replied. "Any difference between the rental and the actual cost of operation is more than compensated, in our opinion, by the honor, the prestige and the advertising which come to us from having the Vice President in the house."

As a matter of fact, assuming that the rates paid by transient occupants have been at the rate of $25,000 a year, and that it has

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

NEW POLICE BOARD FORMALLY IN CHARGE

Lon Hocker Is Elected President; No Immediate Change in Policy.

No immediate changes are contemplated in the policies or personel of the Police Department, the new Board of Police Commissioners announced today after formally taking charge of the department and electing officers.

Lon Hocker, attorney, was elected president of the board, as had been forecast. Former Mayor Frederick Kreismann, an insurance agent, was elected vice president; Daniel Bartlett, attorney, was made purchasing agent, and N. P. Zimmer, another lawyer, treasurer.

Hocker, as spokesman for the new Board, made this statement to reporters:

"We are young here and have a whole lot to learn about operations of the Police Department, but we see no prospect of immediate changes either in the policy of the old Board, which seems to have been a good one, or in the heads of the department.

"You know, we don't believe in making changes unless they are necessary. If changes become necessary, we will meet that situation when it arises.

"This will be strictly a business administration. Politics has no place here."

For the present the board will hold its weekly meetings on Fridays, but during the summer the meetings will be on Thursdays. President Hocker, an ardent fisherman, explained:

"You know a lot of people like to get away from the city over the week-end. I have a little place in the country where I like to wet a line and throw a fly now and then."

Hocker's last previous appearance in a Police Board chamber was as defense attorney for Chief of Police E. P. Creecy, who was tried by another board and ousted; in 1910.

The new Police Commissioners, appointed by Gov. Caulfield, conferred with the retiring commissioners appoinetd by Gov. Baker—Col. Allen C. Orrick, Arthur J. Freund and Henry Kortjohn Jr. Dr. Frank L. Magoon of the old board was absent, as was former Mayor Kreismann of the new board.

In leaving the new Headquarters Building, constructed during their administration, the old Commissioners bade good-by to various employes.

Col. Orrick, who declined reappointment to the board, said his health and pressure of private business would not permit further service. "Four years is enough for any man," he remarked. And he added: "Our relations with the public have been very pleasant."

PARIS EXPELS ROSICRUCIAN

Alastair Crowley Says He Was British Secret Agent in War.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 17. — Alastair Crowley, who claims to have been a British secret service agent during the World War, left Paris today for Brussels after his French identity card had been taken from him by the Government.

Withdrawal of Crowley's identity card was tantamount to expulsion from France. Crowley said yesterday that he knew nothing of any charges against him but was going to Brussels in the hope of being able ultimately to return to Paris where he has lived for the past six years. He has some reputation as a writer on Rosicrucian doctrines and magic.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS ALL TO BE TAKEN TO CIRCUIT COURT

Police Chief Instructs Officers to Refer Such Cases for State Prosecution as Felonies.

IF THIS FAILS, THEN TO THE CITY COURT

Gerk Orders All His Captains to Co-operate in Strict Observance of the New Policy.

Persons arrested for driving machines while intoxicated will hereafter be prosecuted in Circuit Court, instead of Police Court as heretofore, Chief of Police Gerk announced today after a conference with Circuit Attorney Miller.

In a message to members of the Police Department, Chief Gerk ordered that all evidence in such cases be taken to Assistant Circuit Attorney Griffin, warrant officer. If Griffin decides that the evidence is not strong enough to justify prosecution under the State law, police are instructed to file the case in Police Court.

Under the State law, the offense is a felony, punishable by not more than five years in prison, or one year in the Workhouse, or a fine of $100, or both fine and imprisonment. Under city ordinance it can be punished with a Workhouse sentence of six months or fine of $500, or both.

Judge Bader of Court of Criminal Correction No. 2 recently announced a policy of turning over to the grand jury all drunken driving cases in which workhouse sentences had been imposed in Police Court, or dismissal of the charge.

Judge Butler of Court of Criminal Correction No. 1 has intimated that he will continue the same policy the court has pursued for some time, that of either sustaining workhouse sentences or dismissing them. He favors workhouse sentences in flagrant cases.

Chief Gerk's message to commanding officers was as follows: "In future, prosecution of cases against persons charged with driving motor vehicles while intoxicated will be as severe and vigorous as it is possible to make them. The Police Department must cooperate to the limit of its ability in this work by seeing that the necessary evidence in all such cases is available and complete.

"Therefore, in making arrests on this charge, the arresting officer, in all clear cases of intoxication, will be expected and required to procure all available evidence and names and addresses of witnesses. He will then take such report, with copy, personally to the Circuit Attorney's office, as in other felony cases, and appear and prosecute the charge before Mr. Griffin, the warrant officer, instead of filing a complaint in City Court.

"If, for any reason, the evidence

The Unemployment Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN reference to your editorial, "The Unemployment Problem; Will Hoover Solve It?"

This is interesting. Do you really believe that Hoover would, if he could, relieve the unemployment situation? It is not an unemployment situation in the sense of meaning that there is not always plenty of work in this country, as well as any other, loudly calling to be done. Why be so befuddled? Why not call it what it is—a damnable financial system concocted to bring just such a condition about, and to keep the great mass of men just as near the brink of dependence and mean subjection as possible.

Let's explain. The other day I saw a sign reading, "Let's clothe you for as little as $1 per week." Think of that. Here in America—the wealthiest country in the wide world.

I am a farmer. I drive a mile to town over a badly kept road. A few hundred yards from this road is a gravel plant acquired by the monopoly and "shut down" to eliminate competition. At this plant, as at many others, there are mountains of sand and gravel waiting to be taken from the place where it is to the place where it is needed.

We are living in a world where everything is, or could be, overproduced, but the worker, the producer, does not get a fair share of the fruits of his toil, and this accumulated surplus becomes an evil thing and turns upon him and destroys him. The thing cannot be remedied by Hoover, but by the people themselves.

Kings, Emperors and Presidents have never been big enough for their jobs. They are tools in the hands of those who stand behind. History has proven this. As early as 168 B. C., man, the unscrupulous type—there are always too many of them—were acquiring farms by loans and foreclosure, often the farms of men impoverished by war service. You see! We get nowhere by appealing to or relying upon "the powers that be.". It is "fixed" as they want it. Another power has to arise and correct them. "Unemployment" should come as rest and relaxation to the toilers of the earth and not as a threat, a terror and a dire calamity.

Will it ever be written that a man was found big enough and brave enough to correct the greatest evil that ever took possession of the human mind?

ROBERT ALEXANDER.

Weasel Words.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF MR. COOLIDGE had been sincere when he stated "I do not choose," he would have used intelligible words instead of weasel words that have to be explained now. If he were sincere, why didn't he say so plainly? The truth is, he, like Roosevelt, is a glutton for "place" and power, and really wanted to continue. He still uses excuses and weasel words. T. F. MAHER.

Why Miss Talley Has Abdicated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ your editorial, "Miss Talley's Abdication." You would understand why she is abdicating were you to read a review of Miss Talley's debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, written by William J. Henderson, music critic on the New York Sun. This article appeared the Sunday following the debut. Mr. Henderson, whom you no doubt know, is dean of the New York critics. Had Miss Tally accepted Mr. Henderson's article, she would not be retiring to a "farm."

I am a New Yorker and have heard Miss Talley in all of her roles. As time went on, she showed no signs of improvement, whatever. Unfortunately, the young lady was not equipped to enter so important a company as the Metropolitan.

Beside a number of admiring Kansas City friends, this young lady had an ambitious mother, who refused the counsel of great artists, but forged ahead. The result is, instead of Miss Talley improving in the environment of this excellent company of fine artists, she has gone back, unable to live up to the demands put upon her. Her concert work is always disappointing.

What a pity! Had Miss Talley continued her study for several years, she might have retained her place among the finest artists in this country. So much for forcing an issue. To be a successful member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, one must carefully prepare to meet the tremendous demands made upon the voice. To be lacking in that means failure. ROBERTO HUES.

The Humane Society.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WOULD like to use your column to bring to the notice of the public an organization that has done much good for the community. This organization is the Humane Society of Missouri. It is seldom alluded to except in a scoffing way, yet everyone benefits from it either directly or indirectly.

This organization is truly a friend of the friendless and a deliverer of the oppressed.

If any executive of the Community Fund sees this, I wish he would explain why the Humane Society does not get any of the fund. S. B. McG.

MR. HOOVER'S MESSAGE.

Mr. Hoover's first message to Congress is a great disappointment to those elements in his party that thought of the special session in terms of conquest.

The farm leaders in Congress who want instant relief by some sort of legerdemain are disappointed by Mr. Hoover's statement that such a great problem cannot be solved in a day. So are the tariff barons disappointed by his statement that tariff revision should be restricted to what will help the farmer and merely provide for shifts and changes, without hurting our foreign trade. If this is all the new tariff bill is to be, the people who have been clamoring before the Ways and Means Committee for several months in anticipation of political spoils, as well as the foreign countries which have threatened reprisals against us if we destroy their markets in the United States, have been beside the point.

In brief, Mr. Hoover's message is nonpolitical to a degree that rewards the best expectations of a scientist in the White House. If he is indefinite in his farm plan, he has at least laid a foundation upon which the problem can be solved or at length proved insoluble. Politics are disposed to promise magic. Not so Mr. Hoover. His is the patient, painstaking way of test and trial.

The President reminds the special session that it has a limited agenda. Except for reapportionment and repeal of the national origins immigration law, which he urges, its business is the farm problem. He wants Congress to stick to it, and it should.

MEMOIR OF A TAMMANY BOSS.

> You have been nominated, and you will be elected. You will be the District Attorney. Keep this in mind. If anyone asks you to retain a man you don't like, don't retain him. If anyone asks you to do something you don't want to, don't do it.

That was the advice given in 1921 to young Mr. Banton, who had come out of the West to seek his fortune in New York. He had just been nominated for District Attorney, an office from which he will retire next December after eight years' incumbency. The adviser whom he quoted was the late Charles F. Murphy, then at the peak of his power as boss of Tammany. No purist in politics ever gave sounder or more wholesome counsel.

A KANSAN WHO WASN'T THERE.

Ad astra per aspera is Kansas' motto. And Kansas has reached the stars. As the special session of Congress convened Monday the Senate was called to order by Vice President Curtis of Kansas. In the reserved gallery the cynosure of all eyes was Mr. Curtis' sister, Mrs. Gann, victor in the bloodless battle that has rocked the Washington monument. Among the new Senators sworn in was the most debonair Kansan of them all, Henry J. Allen, editor, publisher, former Governor, pamphleteer and raconteur.

One Kansan was missing who, had he been more of a politician, might have been conspicuously present; might, as the senior Senator from Kansas, instead of Mr. Capper have escorted Mr. Allen to the rostrum. The absentee was Victor Murdock, who left the Republican party in 1912 to follow the leadership of Roosevelt.

Mr. Murdock enlisted in the army of the Progressives, not for a campaign, but for the "duration of the war." When, therefore, in 1916, the Colonel recanted and returned, bringing back with him most of his followers, Mr. Murdock was not among the penitents. At that second Progressive convention in Chicago—tattered remnant of the first swinging crusade—Murdock preached the gospel of the square deal with zeal and sincerity and tragic gallantry. Born and reared in the camp of politics, Mr. Murdock had no illusion as to the consequences of his choice. He was saying farewell to his public career in which as an insurgent Representative in Congress he had won distinction in the overthrow of Cannonism.

After serving on the Federal Trade Commission by appointment of President Wilson, Mr. Murdock returned to Wichita, resumed the editorship of the Eagle, where he is fighting lustily and ably for all his convictions.

THE NEW CURRENCY.

The smaller paper currency to be issued about July 1 will save the Government enough paper annually to cover 1000 acres, or about 43,681,000 square feet, a remarkable economy.

J. W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency, delving into the realm of comparative statistics, declares that if the old-size notes, printed annually, were laid on top of each other it would make 555 stacks each as high as the Washington Monument; if laid flat would make a sheet large enough to cover 37 farms of 100 acres each; and if laid end to end would make four belts around the earth at the equator.

A splendid innovation on the part of Treasury officials, indeed, and now if some brilliant Government servant in that department will invent a type of currency that, when laid end to end, will make both ends meet, he will have our lifelong gratitude.

A STARVED COMMISSION.

The Missouri Public Service Commission is to continue on a starvation diet. A bill designed to provide the board with sufficient funds to perform its legal duties was brusquely killed on Monday. The courtesy usually accorded a measure was denied in this instance. Before the author of the bill had completed his explanation of its provisions the House voted to "postpone indefinitely" further consideration.

The Public Service Commission's docket, as every member of the Legislature doubtless knows, is hopelessly clogged. Indeed, that hardly expresses it. The volume of "unfinished business," of work that ought to be done, is stupendous. As our Jefferson City correspondent hastily summarizes it, "Less than half of the nearly 700 utility companies under the commission's supervision have been valued for rate-making." Most of the completed inventories are so old they are practically obsolete.

With the amplest resources the commission could hardly keep abreast of its job. As it is, the penurious attitude of the Legislature has all but incapacitated it.

Under the terms of the bill just rejected utility companies were to bear the cost of examination, in the form of a tax of one-fourth of one per cent of their gross revenue, the commission being authorized to make the levy. In the opinion of the Post-Dispatch this would be a fair and practicable method of meeting the expense. The point urged by opponents that the measure would vest in the commission a legislative function, namely, the power to tax, is, of course, a pertinent objection, though not, we think, of fundamental character. For this reason: The taxing power, if abused, or if experience shows it to be unwise, can be withdrawn by the Legislature.

In any event, some such plan should be adopted, or a proper appropriation should be made, or the Legislature, mustering the courage of its apparent conviction, should abolish the Public Service Commission.

DANGEROUS DOCTRINE.

We are sorry not to agree with such an eminent and liberal jurist as Judge William S. Kenyon of the Eighth District United States Court of Appeals that the Government is ever justified in such unlawful practices as entrapment.

In an opinion written by Judge Kenyon and concurred in by Federal Judge Symes of Colorado the judgment of Judge Martineau, also of the Court of Appeals in the Eighth District, that the Government is never justified in unlawful practices to catch the lawless, is reversed. The case is one in which Judge Martineau severely criticised Roscoe C. Patterson, now United States Senator from Missouri, and formerly United States District Attorney at Kansas City. Patterson acquiesced in bribing a prohibition agent. Judge Kenyon points out that the Government understood an attempt was being made in a liquor case to deprive it by bribery of one of its principal witnesses, whereupon the Government itself resorted to bribery to defend itself. It had, in his opinion, the right to investigate and detect this effort to tamper with a witness, "even if it employed means which might seem to dissemble in order to obtain the result."

This opinion, from which Judge Martineau, we are happy to say, continued his dissent, is in our judgment on all fours with the famous wire-tapping case in which the United States Supreme Court justified resort to such a practice in Seattle to catch bootleggers. Justice Brandeis, dissenting from that view, expressed, in our opinion, what must in the end be the position of all courts if our institutions are to stand. He said:

> Decency, security and liberty alike demand that Government officials shall be subjected to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen. If the Government becomes a lawbreaker it breeds contempt of law. It invites every man to become a law unto himself, it invites anarchy. To declare that in the administration of the criminal law the end justifies the means—to declare the Government may commit crime in order to secure the conviction of private criminals—would bring terrible retribution.

Yet that is precisely what Judge Kenyon justifies in the Kansas City entrapment case. Justice Holmes also added his protest against such a practice in dissenting from the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the wire-tapping case. He said:

> Apart from the Constitution, the Government ought not to use evidence obtained and only obtainable by a criminal act. * * * For my part I think it is a less evil that some criminals should escape than that the Government should play an ignoble part.

In the opinion of the Post-Dispatch the protests of Justices Holmes and Brandeis are unanswerable. If not, what is to become of the American Constitution, and by whose hand will that matchless instrument of human liberty, the Bill of Rights, have been brought to its death?

THE LOTTO RAIDS.

Is the law enforcement business in the county so dull that Sheriff Lill and his men must work off their surplus energy raiding lotto games? We may be wrong, but we have the impression that these professional sleuths could better earn their salt by hunting bigger game. There have been some unsolved murders and bank robberies in the county in recent years which might engage an ambitious Sheriff's attention, and the county is a favorite rendezvous for all sorts of thugs and gangsters who need surveillance. An Arsene Lupin, were he permitted to do his slough-footing between Florissant's undulating pastures and the lovely Meramec hills, would find plenty to do.

It is said the lotto games were raided on the complaint of husbands whose homes and children are being neglected while wives and mothers play lotto. We should like to know how many husbands are so helpless to manage their home affairs that they must appeal to the law to aid them. If there is more than a corporal's guard of such creatures, we must forfeit some of our faith in the manliness of man.

We make no brief for lotto games, especially the professional sort, but we refuse to believe that the thousands of women who attend them are in need of Sheriff Lill's paternalism. Most of them, we daresay, are eminently respectable housewives who play lotto as a relief from the humdrum of existence, and who prefer that kind of amusement to the movies or tenth-of-a-cent bridge or afternoon teas—and why not?

When the present St. Louis Police Board went into office it displayed a good deal of zeal in shutting down St. Louis lotto games. But the public outcry was so great and the activity itself so petty that the board abandoned its campaign. Sheriff Lill might profit by that experience.

AL SMITH'S STORY.

Former Gov. Smith has joined the "now-it-can-be-told club." He is to write the story of his life for a weekly magazine. That he will be a popular feature may safely be ventured. A close second, we should say, to Mr. Coolidge, with the possibility, perhaps, of eclipsing the former President. The distinction between the two, broadly speaking, is that Mr. Coolidge is an autobiographer because of his office, Mr. Smith because of himself.

Certainly it is a striking tribute to Mr. Smith's personality that a reverse which ordinarily condemns its victim to the "iniquity of obscurity" has not appreciably dimmed public interest in the magnetic alumnus of "The Sidewalks of New York."

One may not forecast the Smith narrative other than to say that it will be told with buoyancy, candor and in what the critics call pellucid English. For in letters Alfred E. Smith is a stylist, with a clarity and simplicity remindful of Lincoln.

With the essential facts of Mr. Smith's career the public is familiar, but those facts presented from the man's own viewpoint and enriched by his own imagination, should give us all some entertaining hours.

FROM THE CRADLE TO THE GRAVE.

A Recruit for the Wet Ranks

The Nation, New York Liberal weekly, which has sympathized with prohibition for nine years, has followed the New Republic in kicking over the traces; terming the present situation intolerable, the Nation appeals for a countrywide referendum on the subject.

From the Nation.

IN ILLINOIS a woman was shot dead, her husband beaten into insensibility, and her 12-year-old son made liable to prosecution for criminal assault during a raid of prohibition agents on her home. In South Carolina a 12-year-old Negro girl, unable to pay a fine for carrying a bottle of whisky across the street, was sent to jail for 30 days. In Michigan a woman was sentenced to jail for life for having in her possession a pint of gin. In Minnesota a man was ordered by a prohibition agent from his sick bed and taken 130 miles in an automobile to St. Paul, where he died in a hospital of double pneumonia, supposedly contracted on the trip. The British steamer I'm Alone was sunk on the high seas by Coast Guard patrol boats, a member of her crew killed, and her captain put into irons. There is a record of 135 alleged law violators killed by Federal enforcement officers and of 55 officers killed by persons they were proceeding against.

Items like these are reported almost daily in the newspapers. They seem to be about the only facts that it is possible to be sure of in connection with the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution. Statistics about the consumption of alcohol can be and have been adduced by both sides in the controversy. We are told that there is less and more drinking than there was before the prohibition amendment was passed; that there are more and fewer deaths from alcoholic causes, prisoners in the various jails of the country, and husbands who squander their pay on Saturday nights and come home to beat their wives. But wherever the truth lies in these matters, we know that men and women have been killed—some in the proper pursuit of legitimate business—and that other men and women are now in jail for longer or shorter terms for the infraction of a law that is broken with impunity by a large number of their fellow citizens.

It is a simple matter to say categorically, obey the law, or enforce the law at whatever cost. Either command involves certain implications that are abhorrent to American ideals of justice. For America was founded on the notion that an unpopular law, a law that thousands upon thousands of Americans believe to be unwarranted and unjust, is better broken than obeyed. From the day when the tax on tea resulted in a ship's load of it being dumped—by an irresponsible crowd of hot heads—into Boston Harbor this has been so; and if hot heads perpetrated the unlawful Boston tea party, the opinion of sober men came in time to support it. Thousands of sober men are now at odds on the question of prohibition. Some are on one side, some are on another.

The New York World points out, apropos of the Wisconsin vote on the repeal of the State prohibition law, in which the wets won by a large majority, that in the past two years referendums on prohibition have been held in 10 states: Illinois, New York, Nevada, Massachusetts, Montana, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Colorado, California and Missouri. Of these the wets won the first six by a wide margin and lost the last four by a narrow one. They are not all Eastern states; they fairly represent the country as a whole. They offer the spectacle of a majority of nearly a quarter of the population of the United States coming out and voting wet. At the same time we have the less pleasant spectacle of Mr. Morgan of Ohio, a member of the House of Representatives and an irreconcilable dry, accused by customs officials of bringing four bottles of spirits into the country in violation of the Volstead act; of Representative Michaelson of Illinois indicted for smuggling liquor into the country in a trunk; and we hear Senator Cole Blease of South Carolina, a dry State, uttering the highly specious argument that he does not transport, import, or purchase liquor, but "if a friend of mine tonight should ask me up to his home for a drink, I'd be delighted." And finally, to add to the utter confusion which befogs consideration of the subject of prohibition, we know that while there are honest men and fanatics on both sides, on the side of the drys are supposed to be the solid ranks of the bootleggers and manufacturers of illicit spirits, for reasons that are purely mercenary.

What, then, is this prohibition? Is it a simple law that must be enforced like any other law? Or is it as mixed up with emotion and mores and principles and behavior as was the stamp tax a hundred and fifty years ago? It is broken daily, hourly; it is enforced by violence, murder, and the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars yearly—where it is enforced at all. We have had nearly 10 years of it. It is time, as Mr. Hoover says, to take stock. Are we, as our European neighbors think us, a violent, lawless, unreasoning nation? Or can we, soberly, sanely, with justice and decency, submit this question to the most penetrating inspection? Is America wet? Is it dry? Is it half-and-half? Once more The Nation appeals for a country-wide referendum on the subject. The existing situation is intolerable.

OIL CONSERVATION.

From the New Republic.

THE agreement among large producers of petroleum, controlling about 80 per cent of the supply, to restrict 1929 production in the Western hemisphere to the 1928 total, is a halting step toward conservation of a necessary and rapidly wasting resource. We can take it for granted that the oil men are less concerned about conservation than they are about the low prices resulting from large production. While it is important not to take out of the ground more than is really needed, and thus to avoid the wastes of storage, it is equally important to stop altogether the wasteful methods of recovery which arise from competitive exploitation. An agreement among the competitors in each field to restrict their output individually will not prevent the wastes of present methods as they could be prevented by real co-operative methods of drilling, or unitary control of the field. The present agreement looks like a violation of the antitrust laws. It is absurd to enforce competition where it is so wasteful as in oil production, but it would be equally absurd to permit monopoly without enforcing conservation and protecting the consumer by some regulation of prices.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, April 17.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON MANSFIELD, Representative in Congress from the famous Gulf Coast district of Texas, is not superstitious. But there is nothing on earth that could induce him to burn a stick of sassafras wood.

The numbers 13 and 23 hold no terrors for him. He never hesitates to walk under a ladder any old time—even on Friday, the thirteenth. Whole droves of black cats may cross his path with impunity.

But to burn a piece of sassafras wood—never. No matter if the weather goes [illegible] degrees below zero.

In explanation Mr. Mansfield says that in his early boyhood just after the close of the Civil War, coffee in West Virginia, where he then lived, was regarded as a great luxury. It was as scarce as cooking stoves, which none but the rich and the near rich could afford. The principal table beverage of the country folk consisted of a tea made from the roots of sassafras trees.

There was a persistent superstition in that section of the country that bad luck would certainly follow those who would burn or otherwise destroy sassafras trees.

ONE DAY while he was gathering wood for fuel he chanced to cut down and drag in a nice sassafras tree. The tree was cut into cord wood lengths and placed on the fire before any member of the family noticed that it was the forbidden sassafras.

A great commotion ensued. For a time it appeared that he would have to seek other quarters than in the ancestral farm home. The neighbors heard of it, and predicted that bad luck would follow in a short time.

Their prophecies were borne out.

Two days later Mansfield was mercilessly manhandled when he got the first and only real beating of his life.

The same week an overflow occurred in the river on which the family was living at the time, and washed away a brand new "stake and rider" fence he had just finished building around an eight-acre field.

A large tract of land that he had prepared for planting corn in the spring was inundated.

THE overflow came at the end of a long cold winter, and great quantities of ice were washed out upon the public roads. Right in the midst of this condition of affairs, the family meal bin became empty and young Mansfield was selected to go to the mill some six miles up the river.

With a two-bushel sack of shelled corn and seated on the hurricane deck of Old John, the family horse, he started out.

He soon found the road well-nigh impassable. When half way to the mill he found the road completely blocked with huge blocks of ice a foot or more in thickness and piled to a height of six or seven feet. He atempted to ride around the obstruction on the side next to the river. There he encountered a block of ice in the narrow passageway lying at an angle and extending to the brink of the river. There was nothing to do but ride across it.

Old John confidently stepped on the block of ice. Suddenly his foot shot out from under him, and horse, corn and rider dropped over a six-foot embankment into the river.

BELINDA. By Hilaire Belloc. (Harpers.)

THOSE who relish the subtler sort of fun should read "Belinda." There's not a loud laugh in the book, but there's many a chuckle, and even the least notable passages keep the glow of amusement alive. It's a burlesque romance in the highly proper early Victorian manner—the sort of story that exceedingly nice young "females" could read without harm in the good old days when ladies swooned with the slightest emotion and only men and other lower animals had legs.

Belinda, daughter of a rich country gentleman, falls in love with Horace Maltravers, the impecunious young heir of an adjoining estate that is sadly run down. Father, a pompous old donkey, much given to sonorous brayings, has practically promised the girl to another neighbor, Sir Hugh Portly, who, though presumably wealthy, is in fact a bankrupt and a designing villain. Low cunning brings about a sad misunderstanding between the two amusingly reserved lovers, and Horace sets out to die of Byronic grief in a foreign land. His adieu to England, delivered upon that sad occasion, is as follows:

"'Adieu!' he exclaimed. 'Adieu! Tall Cliffs of Albion! Though Fates implacable demand my exile and forbid me to see ye more, yet be assured that my soul remains within your keeping. Fade! Fade! O Shores of My Country! Her son will retain his heritage in your name so long as Britannia grasps the Trident and the immortal shade of Nelson sleeps in glory beneath the cupola of St. Paul's!'"

But in the end the unspeakable villain is foiled and true love triumphs, Horace in the meanwhile having come into a lot of money. Here is the reconciliation:

"'Ah,' cried Horace in sudden passion with arms outstretched, 'my Belinda—nay, I will use that phrase—forgive the wretch who doubted—who dared to doubt—your divine loyalty, your unfailing heart! Would that I had perished by my own hand ere I stooped to admit such treason to my breast!' Thereat he fell upon

Would that I had perished by my own hand ere I stooped to admit such treason to my breast!' Thereat he fell upon one knee, with bowed head, and his lovely partner—Reader! Impute it not to immodesty in a tender Virgin—gently laid her hand upon his hair and murmured. 'Horatio.' . . .'"

Belinda's father was no less gratified than were the lovers.

"Heartily did he thank Heaven in his heart (that night in his chamber upon his knees) for the singular mercy his Creator had shown to the devoted object of his daughter's affections. Bitterly did he reproach himself, as he prayed, for the disdain he had felt for Horatio's former poverty. Nor could he now murmur his name at the Throne of the Almighty without the respect due to so considerable an increase in the young man's station among the gentry of the country."

The wedding, conducted according to the "Caledonian Communion" by the Rev. Mr. Atkins, was a perfect wow, and we are told that "tears stood in the eyes of the good old man as he alluded with a native delicacy to the possibility of offspring, himself a celibate, and, therefore (as we must believe), unblessed with children (for the emoluments of his office were insufficient to a matrimonial venture). * * *"

THE SPINNER OF THE YEARS. By Phyllis E. Bentley. (Rad E. Henkle Co.).

Miriam Hoad had had less than a fair share of happiness and she had come to think of the Universe, or Providence, as the spinner of the years, who "like a knitter drowsed," in skilled unmindfulness, had "woven with an absent heed since life first was." What happened was one of the "eternal artistries in circumstance." Mortals were caught in the spinner's web, for good or ill, but mostly for ill, but there were ways to avert the ill, by being just and loving. It was in the main a futile creed, but it brought comfort to Miriam Hoad and enabled her to bear with fortitude the hamperings of the web woven with an absent heed, unrebellious because the will that wove was neither benevolent nor malicious, but simply neutral, unconscious and purposeless.

It was in some such web that Imogen Armitage was caught, or so it seemed to her at the last, when it pleased her to bring the mischances of her life under the rule of Miriam Hoad's philosophy. Life, looked back upon, was an intricately woven pattern, with strands that brought good and evil, and sometimes the same strand that brought good to one brought evil to another.

There was a strand that quite plainly and horribly represented the influence of wealth, in her family, and the Thornton family, into which she married after the tragic death of the boy whose memory she loved more than the man she had married.

It is about the lives of the Armitages and the Thorntons that the web is woven in Miss Bentley's story of family life as it was lived by these two families in the West Riding of Yorkshire. If indeed there is a spinner of the years who weaves according to Miriam Hoad's conception, there is no better place to trace the strands of the pattern than in the family life with its interlacing responsibilities and loyalties. Especially when they are not lovely or lovable families, as the Armitages and Thorntons were not. None of them, at least, except Imogen Armitage, who became Imogen Thornton, and there were times when even she, under provocation, was none too lovely or lovable. It may be doubted whether anybody could have done better, married to a person like Brearly Thornton and surrounded by Armitages and Thorntons.

It just goes to show what wealth can do to two families, one that has it and one that wants it, when the spinner of the years sets about weaving his web.

TELLS OF STRUGGLE OF JEWS IN RUSSIA

Rabbi Samuel Thurman Finds Haskalah Movement Has Brought Cultural Growth.

The struggle of Jews in Russia to gain intellectual freedom and their many trials and tribulations under the rule of the Czars were discussed last night in a lecture by Rabbi Samuel Thurman of United Hebrew Temple, at a meeting of the Washington University Association at Mary Institute, Lake and Waterman avenues.

Speaking on "The Haskalah (Enlightenment) Movement in Russia," he told of the battle for spiritual and scientific enlightenment that has been waged for centuries by the Russian Jew who, though bred in an environment of darkness and tyranny, has achieved an enviable position in the cultural world.

"The world outside of Russia," Dr. Thurman said, "has called her the land of darkness, of Czarism, of political despotism, religious bigotry, backwardness and ignorance, but beyond speaking of these things the nations have concerned themselves very little with the social and moral welfare of the 125,000,000 people living in the empire.

America First to Act.

"All the governments of the world received Russian Ambassadors on an equal footing with those of the most enlightened and liberal nations. Only under tremendous moral pressure, after horrible massacres in Kishneff and Kiev, did our own country abrogate a treaty which discriminated against Jewish citizens traveling in Russia. America was the first to take a moral stand that a man's religion did not affect his citizenship."

Dr. Thurman traced the progress of Jews in Russo-Poland through the flourishing and comparatively tolerant days from the Eleventh Century to the early years of the Seventeenth Century, when the Greek Catholic Church began its struggle for a foothold in Russia.

"Jewish scholars then traveled in foreign countries to study at celebrated seats of learning," Dr. Thurman continued. "Soon they began again to establish at home what they were compelled to seek abroad, universities of academic culture. Russo-Poland became the center of the Talmudic world, and the fame of its institutions spread. The pursuit of knowledge was the highest ambition cherished by mothers for their sons, and "Learning is the best merchandise," became a household phrase in the Jewish home.

Knowledge for Masses.

"Then came the massacres that followed the defeat of Poland by Russians and Tartars. More than 500,000 Jews, it is estimated, were killed, and when the storm calmed down those who survived found themselves deprived of the accumulations of centuries. Through these bitter years, there was born the Haskalah, its members inspired by the unquenchable desire to disseminate knowledge among the masses.

"Teachers, philosophers, rabbis, artists, all were striving for an intellectual freedom. Through the reigns of various rulers until Alexander I, the Jews were permitted increasing liberties, but in 1815 the persecutions began once again.

"But this crusade as those in the past and others to come were unsuccessful in crushing the Jewish urge for learning, and from time to time during succeeding years, Jewish scholars, particularly those in medicine and philosophy, gained recognition and temporary respite for their people from the ruling class in Russia.

"With the freeing of the serfs in the Nineteenth Century, came a lessening of intolerance toward the Jew and that forward movement has continued, slowly at times, but surely. The history of the Haskalah movement in Russia, not only for the Jew, but for the non-Jew, is yet to be written in all its moral and spiritual implications, and out of it shall come a light which shall be the torch of truth and culture for generations to come."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 17.

NO STREET seems able to maintain its aura of glamour like old Broadway. All over the world it is a symbol for the glorified Main Stem — "the street that whips the universe." And no one is quite so incredibly sentimental about the thoroughfare as the New Yorker.

He will choke up over its fair weather fellowship, snivel over its two-minute enthusiasms, rhapsodize over its gaiety and gulp a tear-jerking threnody for its broken hearts. Broadway is Nirvana and George M. Cohan, who spends all the time he can spare in a Long Island village, is a god.

The Broadwayite, suckled in an outworn creed, will still sing of bright cafes, magnificent theaters and luxurious night clubs along the bright trail. The truth is, most smart cafes are east of Fifth avenue, all theaters, save one or two outmoded structures, are in side streets, and most night clubs jutting on Broadway are "take joints."

The New Yorker is actually more dazzled by Broadway lights than the country cousin. As the whitest white way in the world, it is brilliant as an unshaded electric light is brilliant and oftimes as exciting. But as the Broadway of mawkish sentimentalities it is just a lot of peanut brittle.

Outside of a few stupendous motion picture cathedrals, two or three first-class hotels, Broadway has become a mere quick succession of photo parlors, orange drink stands, souvenir and magic shops, chain drug stores, chop sueys, waffle parlors, cut price haberdasheries, upstairs tailors and down cellar pool halls.

It has the kaleidoscopic coloring of a fireworks exhibit and is interesting in the same way a circus side show attracts. Nor is it the so-called national playground. It is more the museum. The veriest celluloid collared yokel does not go to Broadway for his frolic. He goes to gape.

But the metropolis in its pretense about Broadway is no different from any other large city. Each has the glorified promenade used as the peg upon which to hang traditional myths. And it may be said of Broadway that it assays highest of all in the spectacular.

A NEW YORKER in high shoes is an oddity. On the coldest day last winter traffic cops with pull-down caps, blanketed in heavy overcoats and wearing fur mittens, stood on wind-swept corners directing traffic in lowcut shoes.

I HAVE a friend with whom I attend musical shows now and then. He is one of those lean and pious duffers who always seems to be up to his neck in some abstruse problem yet for some unaccountable idiocy thinks he has nimble feet. Between acts in the lobby he will try to execute steps he has seen on the stage, and if looks about him could kill! I always slip away and gaze at pictures on the wall as though he were a total stranger.

ONE of those quite obvious ladies appeared at a luncheon place the other day swathed in a magnificent silver fox.

"A rich uncle kick out?" inquired an acquaintance.

"No, the old tightwad let me go in furs today. And wait for his yelp!" was the reply.

THINKS CANADA WILL BE ZINC PRODUCER

Deputy Minister of Mines Tells Institute of Plans for Development.

With the improvement of transportation facilities, Canada will take its place among important zinc producing countries within the next few years, Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of Mines of Canada, told members of the American Zinc Institute today at the final session of a three-day convention at Hotel Statler.

"Ninety per cent of the production is in British Columbia, although large deposits are known to exist in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Nova Scotia. The mineral wealth is virtually untouched."

Dr. Camsell will address the Mining and Metallurgy Society of the Missouri School of Mines at Rolla tonight, at the invitation of M. D. Orten, professor of economics.

Will H. Coghill of the United States Bureau of Mines gave a technical talk on zinc mills of the Tri-State District around Joplin.

Officers of the institute were re-elected by the board of directors yesterday and President Ralph M. Roosevelt of New York was directed to appoint a committee to perfect a plan for a market broadening and research program adopted by the organization, and to consult interests not represented at the convention.

The general plan provides for the collection of 50 cents a ton on all slab zinc produced, smelters sharing the cost of the survey equally with ore producers and assessing the concentrate at the time of purchase. Such an assessment would make available about $300,000 a year, based on present annual production of about 600,000 tons of slab zinc. Stabilization of the zinc industry and sale of 1,000,000 tons is the goal of the plan.

Officers re-elected in addition to the president are: A. P. Cobb, New York; P. B. Butler, Joplin, and John A. McCarthy, New York, vice presidents; Stephen S. Tuthill, New York, secretary, and Howard I. Young, Mascot, Tenn., treasurer.

The following directors were elected for three-year terms: Edward W. Furst, Cleveland, O.; Benjamin Lissberger, New York; John A. Robinson, Miami, Ok.; Edgar L. Newhouse Jr., New York; Arthur Thatcher, St. Louis; F. C. Wallower, Joplin; B. N. Zimmer, New York, and Roosevelt.

BUSINESS MEN DISCUSS STYLE AS FACTOR IN TRADE

by the same thinking that inspires scientific research which has been the foundation of advancement of many industries, not the least the electric light and power industry."

Building New Markets.

J. Kindelberger, president of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., offered a simple code in answer to the question, "How Can the Manufacturer Develop New Markets?"

"By giving his business more concentrated thought, through faith, work and gumption, and through quality and proper packing," was the answer.

"My suggestion would be that one night of the week should be set aside for concentrated thought on the development of your business," Kindelberger said. "The average man, in looking for new markets for his product, will invariably look afar off, take the longest and hardest way around, and use the most expensive method. The chances are that 99 times out of a hundred the 'diamonds' he is looking for will be in his own back yard.

"In my firm, we believe it a good idea to key up the whole organization, even including the office boy, to constantly be on the lookout for new possible uses for our commodities. There is no hokus-pokus nor Aladdin's Lamp to the development of new fields. Concentrated thought will do it.

"Keep your eyes open for the changes that are coming, because they carry with them many others. Your share of the prosperity that may come to you will depend upon your energy and foresight."

Vote on Qualities of Success.

Speakers at the afternoon session: Jason Whitney, president, Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, Chicago, "Achieving Efficient Dealer Distribution;" A. R. Erskine, president, the Studebaker Corporation, South Bend, Ind., "Style and Design in Selling;" and Walter G. Baumhogger, vice president, Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago, "The Rapidly Changing Consumer Demand and the Need for Keeping 'Tuned In.'"

James L. Madden, third vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who was to discuss a series of nationwide surveys conducted by his company to determine the attitude of the general public toward design, style and color in manufactured products, did not appear. It was announced that he had been detained in New York by illness.

A special feature of the program was a straw vote on "The Ten Qualities of Success." Sixty different attributes were listed on a ballot which was submitted to each of the delegates to determine which 10 were most important.

SENATE GROUP OK'S BILL AGAINST MACHINE GUNS

Recommends Passage of Measure Barring Their Sale; Already Adopted by House.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 17.—A measure aimed at gangsters and robber gangs has received the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee after having passed the House of Representatives.

It is a bill introduced by Representative Everett Meyer of Kansas City, making it unlawful to sell or own a machine gun, excepting veterans' organizations and state and Federal army and law enforcement units.

When the bill was passed in the House, Meyer said it would help solve the crime situation, and assist police departments in stopping gang warfare and wholesale killings in robberies and other crimes.

The Senate committee voted to report the bill with a recommendation that it do pass.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR LETTERS ON DISPLAY

Fur Trader Had Not "Smalest Idea" of War of 1812 Which Began Soon After He Wrote.

Glimpses of war and the growth of a great fortune are interwoven with the main themes of prices and "good shaved deer skins" in letters of John Jacob Astor to Charles Gratiot, lent to Missouri Historical Society by Bernard P. Bogy, a descendant of Bernard Pratte, who was associated with Astor in the fur trade.

Though the spelling sometimes would astonish a modern stenographer, the 100-year-old business letters present a refreshing absence of the stale phrases which up-to-date business men are just beginning to get away from. Astor wasted not a word. Though he some times referred to letters of the St. Louis fur trader, he accomplished it without a single "yours of the 23d inst."

Gratiot's letter books in French, with translations, are in the keeping of the society by gift of his grandson, Paul B. Gratiot, and great-granddaughter, Mrs. J. C. Blythe, of 6135 Victoria street. Their home is on the original land grant to Charles Gratiot, and the street took its name from his wife, who was Victoire Chouteau.

"We are happy in the hope of peace and have not the Smalest Idea of a war with England," Astor wrote on Feb. 28, 1812. The war of which he had "not the Smalest Idea" began three months later.

In his order for "good shaved deer skins," Aug. 10, 1814, while the struggle was on, he warned: "They must not go by way of New Orleans, as from thence they cannot come here. I would rather have them at St. Louis than at Orleans."

"No prospect for peace," he wrote with characteristic brevity in a postscript to another letter two months later. With the same chariness of ink and paper, he began on Feb. 12, 1915, five days before peace was officially completed, "you will have received the news of peace.

In the following April he indicated that he feared the worms at New Orleans almost as much as he had feared British power at sea, for he ordered that 15,000 or 20,000 pounds of "good shaved deer skins"—his one stereotyped phrase—be shipped to him in New York by way of Pittsburg and not New Orleans, fearing worms in the Southern climate would destroy them. The State of the infant Republic's finances, staggering under the quarrel with its mother nation, was indicated in the postscript "Please inform me whether Treasury notes pass with you and at what rates."

Years before the immigrant's fortune had mounted to $500,000, and he had formed the grand scheme, the possibility of which had been demonstrated by Lewis and Clark, of a line of trading posts clear across the continent to supply his exporting business in New York. By 1815 he was able to instruct Gratiot to draw on him in Baltimore or Philadelphia, for he had funds in both places, and to urge, "the larger your purchases are the better. If 100,000 pounds I should like it very well."

$200 Ring Missing After Fire.

Mrs. Soloman Shles reported to police that a diamond ring valued at $200 and $50 in currency were missing from her home, 2737 Dickson street, after a fire yesterday. She said she kept the ring and money in a dresser drawer. The fire caused slight damage.

A Secret This Boy Knows

I am healthy and happy because mother gives me ACIDINE every night. The doctor told her it would surely stop colds and sick stomachs. Doctor said it was a new discovery and would do the trick. It surely has. I haven't had a bit of indigestion or any colds, and it is dandy to take. Tastes just like peppermint candy.
I heard the doctor telling mother and dad it would do them good too, especially if they had over-indulged—whatever that is. He said it would kill poisonous acids and prevent rheumatism and sick headaches, which we kids hear something about occasionally.
Our druggist said even if you drink six ice cream sodas, ACIDINE will save you. Have your mother keep it handy always, too. It is health insurance for the whole family.

Uses the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique to Keep Her TEETH Sparkling WHITE!

Read what she says:
"Teeth must flash white across the footlights," says charming Marilyn Miller, "or else all charm is lost."
"I pay special attention to the teeth, as do most members of my profession. Some time ago I made it a point to ask my dentist which tooth paste to use and he recommended Kolynos on a dry brush. I must say my experience bears him out; for my teeth are undoubtedly cleaner and whiter for the use of this splendid dentifrice."

The foam pushes its way into all the crevices between the teeth. It cleans out and disinfects those places where germs lodge and cause decay. It cleans and purifies the entire mouth.
All drug and toilet counters sell Kolynos. Try it and see your teeth 3 shades whiter in 3 days.

DIAMONDS

The savings made by our enormous purchases and the cash discount, together with the fact that we sell for cash ourselves, with no credit losses and no interest charges, enable us to quote the lowest prices in the world for high-grade diamonds.
We import our diamonds direct from Europe.

Our broad guarantee, with every ring purchased, is backed by capital exceeding $105,000,000. Every diamond we sell is analyzed by experts, graded according to quality, and sold by weight.

In buying a diamond ring, there is but one standard of comparison. Many dealers, to meet our competition, offer diamonds at about the same prices we do, but they do not quote the weight of the diamond. To protect yourself, regardless from whom you purchase a diamond, insist that the dealer quote the carat weight of the stone.

Dollar for dollar, our prices per carat cannot be equaled anywhere.

We have a complete assortment of diamond rings, with white gold or platinum mounting.

Of special interest is a group of pure white stones in white gold mounting, priced at $100.

SAYS POWER MEN GAVE TEAS IN FIGHT ON CALIFORNIA LAW

State Senator Asserts Interests Spent $501,000 in State in 1922 to Defeat Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—State Senator Herbert C. Jones of San Jose, Cal., testified today before the Federal Trade Commission that efforts of power interests to defeat the California Water and Power Act in 1922 included paying for afternoon teas of women social leaders and the employment of labor leaders and civic organizations to create sentiment against the measure.

Appearing before the Commission's inquiry into publicity activities of California Public Power Utilities, Jones related the results of an investigation by a California Senate Committee in 1923, of whch he was charman, ntc expendtures by power concerns in opposing the act which had been defeated in the 1922 election.

He testified his Committee's inquiry showed the power interests spent $501,605 to defeat the measure, which would have created a State Commission to control power projects.

"It was impressed upon the Committee," he declared, "that that side won which had the most money." He added that the proponents of the act had spent $159,999 on the campaign.

is found insufficient to justify prosecution in Circuit Court, so that the warrant should be refused by Mr. Griffin, the case can then be filed under the city ordinance and prosecuted in City Court.

"Commanding officers are warned that there must be no deviation from this rule and that from now on the Circuit Attorney's office will decide what the nature of the prosecution shall be in each intoxicated driving case."

In the past the arresting officer has kept one copy of the physician's report to file in Police Court, the other being sent to the Circuit Attorney.

Numerous convictions for driving while intoxicated, appealed from police court to the Court of Criminal Correction, are dismissed because, in the lower court, testimony of policemen was to the effect that city hospital physician had found the defendants to be intoicated. This testimony is barred in the Court of Criminal Correction because it is construed to violate the confidential relation of physicia nand patient.

been occupied an average of 100 days a year, the suite has yielded approximately only $7000 a year Pollio declined, however, to comment further on the figures on the ground that it was "a confidential matter between the hotel and the Vice President."

Curtis Angry Over Free Rent Story

This was the position taken by Vice President Curtis, himself, only he took it much more vigorously

"I know there is a story floating around Washington that I am getting free rent, and I want to denounce it as a miserable lie," he declared angrily. "I wish I could see the scoundrel who started it I'd like to give him a piece of my mind. I wish people would mind their own affairs and leave mine alone.

"The hotel people came to me and made a proposition, and after looking the rooms over, I accepted it. The first offer they made is the one I accepted. I didn't haggle over it, and I didn't ask them to reduce it. The Willard offered to give me an apartment for nothing. I told them I didn't want anything for nothing."

ARRESTED FOR SHAKING HANDS

Two Fans at Baseball Game Were Binding a Bet, Police Say.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 17. — Frank Weinberg, broker, shook hands with Jake Rosenberg at the baseball game between the Cubs and Pirates yesterday and were arrested. Police, who later released them under $25 bonds, said the handshake was to bind a bet on the game, and such was against the law.

Weinberg was not especially upset by the police action. If they had not interfered, he would have lost $150, for the Cubs, whom he favored, were defeated.

DECLARES MIAMI HAS 5000 BOOTLEGGERS

U. S. Customs Inspector So Testifies at Inquiry on Attack on Liquor Runner.

By the Associated Press.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., April 17.—Testimony that 5000 persons were engaged in the liquor traffic in Miami created a sensation at yesterday's hearing of three members of the crew of the coast guard boat alleged to have used machine gun and pistol fire to halt a liquor runner as it fled up the Miami River early Sunday morning. Stray shots struck buildings ashore and a house boat moored at the river's edge.

William E. Prince, Federal customs border patrol inspector of the Florida east coast from St. Augustine to Miami, testified the Miami River inlet is a "hot spot" for the loading of liquor. He said boats frequently were loaded with "swamp liquor" in Hialeah, a western suburb, floated out to the bay and run back as "imported stuff."

Prince estimated that of the 5000 persons he said were engaged in liquor running 1000 were on Miami beach, 500 in Coral Gables, and a large number in Hialeah. He gave Miami's proximity to the British Bahamas as the chief reason for the activity in the liquor traffic and the problems met by inforcement officers.

Harold Lopes, lookout on the Government boat, testified all three of its crew fired at the liquor runner during the chase. He said he himself fired six shots from a pistol. Boatswain J. R. Ingraham, in command of the boat, fired a few pistol shots and Motor Machinist's Mate Sam Jones approximately 46 machine gun shells.

Lieut. Bernier, counsel for Boatswain Ingraham, introduced a statement into the record, in which the liquor chaser's skipper maintained the use of the machine gun was justified because pistol shots and orders had failed to stop the liquor boat.

WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 17.—[illegible]

[illegible] who had concluded that for at least the present the bullish effects of proposed farm relief measures had been more than discounted. On the other hand, talk was current that a good volume of export business in wheat from North America had taken place on declines in prices, and that the demand from abroad included more or less United States hard winter wheat.

In some quarters, it was contended that owing to liberal amounts of wheat having been taken out of the pit as a result of profit-taking by previous sellers, a natural rally was to be expected after the big price breaks which had been witnessed. One consequence of this talk was considerable purchasing at times and an increased disposition of many traders to keep off the selling side of the market.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Favorable weather reports combined with relatively easy Liverpool cables were reflected by further liquidation with some Southern and commission house selling in the cotton market today. After showing net declines of about 15 to 18 points, prices steadied on covering, but the mid-afternoon market was quiet within 3 or 4 points of the lowest.

Futures closed steady, 10 to 12 points lower; May, 20.20-22; July, 19.88-89; October, 19.57-59; December, 19.72-73; January, 19.68-69; spot quiet; middling, 20.45.

Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 6 to 7 points under rather general selling, which was evidently influenced by a favorable view of the weather news and relatively easy Liverpool cables.

Early offerings were absorbed by covering, with both trade and speculative shorts reported buyers of near months. But there was considerable cotton for sale and bulges of 2 or 3 points were not fully maintained. The market was barely steady before the day advanced far.

The outlook for clear weather over the belt was accompanied by prospects for rather low temperatures in the Eastern belt. This was not considered of much importance so early in the season and the weekly report of the Weather Bureau seemed to be more favorable than some recent buyers had anticipated.

The market was quiet later in the morning, with business consisting chiefly of further May liquidation and switching from May to later deliveries at a premium of about 30 to 40 points over July. Trading seemed to take its trend from the improved weather reports, however, and prices at midday were within a point or two of the lowest at net declines of 6 to 7 points.

BRITISH GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. ABANDONS BRITISH SHARE PLAN

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 17.—Plans of [illegible]e British General Electric Co. to [illegible]sue 1,500,000 new "British" [illegible]hares have been definitely aban[illegible]oned, the Associated Press [illegible]earned on the highest authority [illegible]oday.

The dispute which flared be[illegible]ween American stockholders of [illegible]e General Electric and the Brit[illegible]h company, resulting in Thomas [illegible] Chadbourne and Herbert Bay[illegible]rd Swope coming to England to [illegible]epresent the American holders, [illegible]ill be settled amicably and nego[illegible]ations toward that end are con[illegible]nuing.

The plans involve refinancing of [illegible]e General Electric issue in a way [illegible]atisfactory both to Sir Hugo [illegible]irst, chairman of the board, and [illegible]e American stockholders.

It was understood authoritative[illegible] that the London Stock Exchange [illegible]efused to handle the new stock [illegible] the British company originally [illegible]lanned to issue it.

Inquiry at the office of Sir Hugo Hirst, chairman of the board, when rumor first was heard [illegible]ailed to confirm the reports, a [illegible]pokesman saying that "at present [illegible]o statement was being made." To [illegible]urther questions he added that as [illegible]ar as was known negotiations [illegible]ith representatives of the Amer[illegible]can stock holders who had pro[illegible]ested against restricting the new [illegible]hares to British holders, was still proceeding.

The British Foreign and Colon[illegible]al Corporation, which originally [illegible]as slated to handle the issue, said [illegible]at it had no information and [illegible]ould not make any statement on [illegible]e matter.

Thomas L. Chadbourne and Herbert Bayard Swope arrived in England several weeks ago to pre[illegible]ent the claims of American stockholders in the company.

BRITISH GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. ABANDONS BRITISH SHARE PLAN

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 17.—Plans of the British General Electric Co. to issue 1,500,000 new "British" shares have been definitely abandoned, the Associated Press learned on the highest authority today.

The dispute which flared between American stockholders of the General Electric and the British company, resulting in Thomas L. Chadbourne and Herbert Bayard Swope coming to England to represent the American holders, will be settled amicably and negotiations toward that end are continuing.

The plans involve refinancing of the General Electric issue in a way satisfactory both to Sir Hugo Hirst, chairman of the board, and the American stockholders.

It was understood authoritatively that the London Stock Exchange refused to handle the new stock as the British company originally planned to issue it.

Inquiry at the office of Sir Hugo Hirst, chairman of the board, when rumor first was heard failed to confirm the reports, a spokesman saying that "at present no statement was being made." To further questions he added that as far as was known negotiations with representatives of the American stock holders who had protested against restricting the new shares to British holders, was still proceeding.

The British Foreign and Colonial Corporation, which originally was slated to handle the issue, said that it had no information and would not make any statement on the matter.

Thomas L. Chadbourne and Herbert Bayard Swope arrived in England several weeks ago to present the claims of American stockholders in the company.

Mexican Revolt Effects on Industrial Situation in That Country Reviewed

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—As embers of current revolt in Mexico burn away, the industrial situation is being subjected to examination. Americans vitally interested in mining operations in Northern Mexican states where the revolt ran strongest have found reason for surprise at the actual degree to which production has been maintained.

"It is now clear that old and established metallurgical operations in Northern Mexico can go on practically undisturbed," said George H. Bailey, financial secretary of the American Mining Congress. "This is the state, generally speaking, for the large smelting and refining plants maintained at Mexican points by large companies like the American Smelting & Refining, the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining, and the American Metals Co. Their managements have been fretted, but in most cases reserves of ore and fuel on hand have prevented serious discontinuance of output and the metal market price is proof that there has been no serious interruption of supplies of lead or silver from Mexico to American industrial users. The greater copper producers, like Greene-Cananea have also completely escaped molestation.

"With another class of enterprises, however, such as some of our members in Mexico, which are just beginning, or are prospecting, there has been serious stoppage," Mr. Bailey continued. "One company I know about has had to keep 50 carloads of machinery in hastily run up warehouses for months. An ex-president of the Congress, Bulkeley Wells, a well-known mining operator, undertook by arrangement with the Mexican Government to survey geologically 800,000 acres of mineral territory, by airplane and field party. He has had to suspend entirely for the moment.

"The great damage probably is in the check to development."

Railroad financing novelties made neecssary to meet marked changes noted of late in public preference as to security forms have obtained unquestioning sanction from the Interstate Commerce Commission. A Southern Pacific company proposal to issue $65,166,000 in 4½ per cent gold bonds with warrants attached by which holders will gain an option to buy stated amounts of the system's common stock during a term of years was indorsed by the commission yesterday without delay or inquiry.

Good rail bonds, in former years, have been sold mostly without such additions, but bankers and rail finance officers of late have concluded that their marketability is enhanced by associating the bond in tangible fashion to the fortunes of common stock, public appetite for common stocks having manifestly greatly bettered in the last 18 months. The commission has now set clear precedent for letting the preference be met.

Treasury statements for the month place the total cash in circulation in the United States at $4,747,590,227, or $39.75 per capita of the country's estimated population. Gold coin, bullion and gold certificates in circulation account for more than $1,300,000,000 of the total.

American packing industry representative in Washington accepted most calmly this week a cabled report that the German Government had prohibited importation of corned beef into that country. A quick study of records disclosed that no American corned beef has been going to Germany for a considerable period, and that the trouble was purely one for consideration by the Argentine and Brazilian plants which are furnishing that commodity to German consumers. From the United States, Germany is taking pork products.

INCOMING STEEL BUSINESS HAS FALLEN OFF SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, April 17.—Iron Age reports that incoming business in the steel industry after several weeks of unprecedented volume, has fallen off slightly this week. "Incoming business," it states, "is no longer equal to shipments except in the Chicago district. A letup in bookings was not unexpected in view of the unusually heavy commitments of producers and may indicate nothing more than an interlude between buying movements. The present concern of the steel industry is not to add to its obligations, but rather to produce and ship tonnage being specified."

The Iron Age composite price of pig iron has dropped from $18.54 to $18.46 a ton the past week, which cancels the gain of the previous week. Finished steel, however, remains unchanged at 2.412 cents a pound.

Earning Reports.

NEW YORK, April 17.—The pamphlet report of Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation for 1928 shows net profits of $8,713,063 compared with $8,057,998 in 1927. Foreign business, said the report, increased 10 per cent over 1927, the best previous year. Installation of sound producing apparatus in various theaters in its chain was adjudged the corporation's most important task last year aside from the construction of new theaters.

Net profits of the United Biscuit Co of America and subsidiaries for the first quarter of this year increased to $399,322 compared with $178,394 in the corresponding 1928 quarter. This was equivalent to 80 cents a common share against 44 cents on fewer shares in the 1928 quarter.

CONVERTIBLE RAIL BONDS ARE BOUGHT

NEW YORK, April 17.—Active buying of the rails convertibles and some of the attractive industrial and utility issues pushed the bond market a little higher today on its steady upward march of the last week.

It was the most lively trading session of the week and some fairly good gains were made, particularly in the convertibles, to which a rally in stocks imparted strength. The most active members of the rail list was the St. Paul 5s. They closed, however, with little net change.

A slight easing of time money rates favired the U. S. Government and they continued to improve. However, money rates still were too high to allow any marked increase in trading volume.

The First Mortgage Bond, usually is a fractional part of a large mortgage which has been divided into small amounts for the convenience of investors.
By the division of these large mortgages into bonds of small denominations the investor of moderate means is enabled to participate in excellent investments, which formerly were available only to the very wealthy.
There are many elements of safety in their investment when first mortgage bond buyers patronize reliable investment houses, banks, trust companies or real estate agencies, because these institutions handle only such securities as measure up to their rigid safety requirements.
Regularly in the Post-Dispatch are the advertisements of investment institutions of known integrity which describe attractive investment offerings for investors of large or moderate means.

Terms of U. S. Steel Corporation Stock Subscriptions Disappoint Some.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 17.—A good deal of selling came into Steel common on the stock exchange early in the day because of disappointment with the terms fixed by the corporation for subscription to additional stock under its bond retirement plan.

Recent strength had raised reports that the terms would prove much more satisfactory than had been originally anticipated. This was true, but only in a moderate degree. Some weeks ago it was generally assumed that the offering would be made on the basis of one new share for six held at $150, which would have made "rights" worth about $5, whereas the actual terms announced fixed the value of the "rights" at about $5.60. The terms arrived at, while they may be more or less disappointing from a speculative viewpoint, were generally regarded as distinctly satisfactory from the company's standpoint.

As expected the much discussed policy of the Federal Reserve Board, designed to check speculative activity, has quickly found its way into discussion early in the special session of Congress called essentially to deal with farm relief and tariff matters. Discussion of the situation provided the chief topic of interest during the day in the House, with several members delivering bitter attacks on the Board. For the moment, however, the speculative market did not appear to be greatly exercised over the possibility of developments from that direction.

A moderately easier tone in the time money market with loans for longer maturities being available at 8½ to 8¾ per cent, compared with 9 per cent recently, provided one of the day's most favorable developments. The better tone in that direction was generally ascribed to the steady influx of foreign funds seeking employment here, and the growing indication that such lenders are apparently more anxious to get such money out on a fixed maturity basis rather than have it employed in the day-to-day market. At the same time it is understood that bankers generally are disposed to look upon the money situation with a good deal more satisfaction than recently, presumably for the reason that correction accomplished in the last few weeks has been substantially more than had been hoped for.

Another ray of hope was found by the generally held belief that the weekly report of the Federal Reserve on collateral loans, due after the closing tomorrow, will show a further substantial reduction in the aggregate of such borrowings. Up to last week brokers' borrowings had been reduced some $366,000,000 from the March 20 peak. This shrinkage having been accomplished in a period of three weeks. While it is not expected that the decrease looked for tomorrow will measure up to the $135,000,000 cut reported a week ago, it is confidently believed, however, that the reduction will be amply sufficient to bring the cumulative drop to well over $400,000,000.

No time was lost in bringing U. S. Steel "rights on to the Curb, trading in the subscription privileges arising out of the new stock offering being begun shortly after the opening of the market. The turnover in the "rights" was heavy throughout the day, adding substantially to the activity of the general market there. The range, of course, was influenced by the action of the stock on the 'big board," and consequently was rather narrow.

With the situation in the actual metal market experiencing a turn for the better, copper stocks were prominent on the rally during the day. For the time being, at least, copper metal prices appear to be scraping bottom after their slump of 6 cents from the high levels of last month and an effort is being made to stabilize the market. In contrast with pressure of custom metal on the market recently, demand was much improved, with both domestic and foreign consumers buying rather freely late yesterday and early today. Red metal shares, which in the course of the recent liquidation had accumulated quite a short interest, were quick to respond to the turn under the leadership of Anaconda an Kennecott.

Youthful Pep Comes Back in Middle Age

Phospho-Cod brings back lost vigor and energy to hundreds

Why let old age come on before its time? There's no reason why middle-aged people can't be as active, energetic, and full of pep as young folks.

A fine old prescription, known as Phospho-Cod, does the trick. Its success has been so astounding that Walgreen Drug Stores guarantee it absolutely. They make you this offer: if, in twelve days, Phospho-Cod doesn't double your pep and energy, they will refund what you pay for it.

Phospho-Cod brings you the pep-restoring, health-building peptones of cod livers, together with purifying extracts and hypophosphites which help throw off the poisons that weaken the system. And, it's a pleasure to take it, for it has a flavor like rare old wine.

Don't be satisfied another day without your full share of pep and energy. Get Phospho-Cod, and let it bring you back to that condition of body and mind which makes you equal to any task, however big. Win back the strength and vigor which enable you to finish the day strong, with plenty left for the pleasures in life. Phospho-Cod is priced well within the means of everybody, and is on sale at all

LOTTO OPERATOR PLANS TO DEFY THE SHERIFF

Considers Opening New Hall to Force Court Test on Closing of Game.

The three St. Louis County lotto halls closed as public gambling establishments by Sheriff Lill Monday night, remained unopened yesterday afternoon and last night, but a test case is planned to determine whether the Sheriff was acting within his powers.

The places closed were Wellsotn Hall, 6224 Easton avenue; Lindy Hall, 6130 Easton avenue, and Rittmeyer's Hall, 8917 South Broadway. Robert Boothe, manager of the first place, was to have opened his New Wellston Hall, at 6222 Easton, yesterday. More than 1000 men and women, including a group from Belleville and Mascoutah, gathered at the hall and were disappointed when told there would be no lotto.

Although Boothe would not discuss his plans, it is understood he intends to open his new hall tonight in defiance fo the Sheriff's order, and, if raided, will sue to enjoin the Sheriff from further interference on the ground his lotto games are social affairs rather than gambling.

SEES HER STOLEN CAR PARKED ON STREET, NOTIFIES POLICE

Teacher Recovers Sedan Taken 10 Days Ago; Man Arrested Admits Theft.

On her way to Beaumont High School today, Miss Alice Wolf, a teacher, of 380 North Taylor avenue, saw her sedan, which had been stolen, parked in front of 1321A North Vandeventer avenue.

She notified police who went to the place and arrested a man who said he was Thomas Pohl, 28 years old, a chauffeur. He admitted, according to police, that he took the machine from the corner of Delmar boulevard and Vandeventer avenue 10 days ago. The sedan disappeared from a garage at 4432 Olive street March 31. When found today, Mississippi license plates had been substituted for the plates it originally bore.

TEN YEARS IN REFORMATORY FOR TAKING $519 IN HOLDUP

The trial of Carl Parsons, 20 years old, for robbery was stopped by the defendant today when he changed his plea to guilty and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Hartmann to 10 years in the State penitentiary, later commuted to the Boonville Reformatory because of his youth.

Parsons was on trial for the $519 holdup of Paul Fortier, 5914 Highland avenue, and Esther Bunt, 5979 Highland, Dec. 28. He admitted this and two other holdups. An accomplice, James Euley, who pleaded guilty recently, received an eight-year sentence.

ORIENTAL NAMES FOR SPRING SILKS

ORIENTAL names are introduced into the fabric vocabulary for spring by Rodier, the French fabric manufacturer, who gave the words kasha and djersakasha to the fashion language. Tchinsou and sumida are the most important of the new materials with Eastern names.

Tchinsou is a lightweight silk with texture like a super-quality chiffon of fine weave. Much of it is printed with small delicate designs influenced by Japanese art and colorings. Sumida is a heavier silk with a finish like very fine cashmere wool. It is also used for printed patterns, of oriental character. The two silks are combined for square and triangular scarves of vivid colorings and oriental or modernistic printed patterns.

Wool voile promises to be an important spring dress material. Rodier shows it extensively in plain color and fine checks.

Beige is the basis for the summer collection of the premier French manufacturer of woolens. He shows many cream and brown mixtures and fancy weaves for coats. Plain beige and beige mixtures are the leading color for coat materials, with dark blue following. Almost no black is included in Rodier's spring fabrics and not a great deal of black and white.

Novelties for sweaters are a porous wool fancy weave jersey called "moussa miltrous," meaning thousand holes, and a featherweight jersey for sweaters and scarves named djersaplume or feather-jersey.

Hungary Wants to Force More Babes

THE Hungarian Government's attempt to take legal steps against childless families has aroused the opposition of a group of distinguished lawyers.

They advocate the theory that history shows no instance of a Government requiring citizens to give the State children.

A pinch of salt added to hot starch will give it a high gloss.

Girl Carillon Player Only 16 Years Old

EACH week the chimes of the Winchester Unitarian Church peal forth with solemn hymns or brave, patriotic tunes. But few of the listeners know that the hands that operate the carillon are those of a 16-year-old girl.

Marjorie Hayden, a high school junior, is thought to be the youngest carillon player in America. She plays Saturday afternoons, Sunday mornings and Sunday afternoons.

SHRUBS AND TREES.

NEVER allow the roots of shrubs or trees which are being transplanted to be exposed to the sun, to drying winds or to frost. Keep them wrapped in damp moss, or heel them in the ground.

Whenever you cut or prune wood, make a sharp, clean cut; leave no ragged or jagged ends on roots or top.

Be sure that holes dug to receive plants are large enough to receive all roots without cramping.

Spread out the roots in a natural position and work fine loam among them. Be sure that no air holes remain, but that all roots are in contact with earth, which is firmed and compacted.

Never allow any undecayed manure to come in contact with the roots, nor undecayed leaves, or wood, in any quantity.

Be careful not to plant too deeply, but always set the plant about an inch lower than it grew in the nursery row. The mark of the surface will usually be plainly seen.

Remove all broken branches in the top, and cut back at least one-half of the previous year's growth of wood.

In cutting back dormant stock, as in pruning, be careful to cut just above a bud and close to it and let this be an outside bud; that is, one which will send the new wood which grows from it away from the center of the plant. This keeps the center open, to let in air and light, and lessens the likelihood of crossed stems.

Shrubs and trees should be allowed to grow naturally, unless they are to be shaped to conform to a set pattern; and it is important to place them in their new location, in the same position relative to the sunlight to which they have been accustomed. They will usually incline a trifle toward the sun. Set them so this inclination need not be changed, as it will take energy to change it. In the open, plants will incline slightly toward the south; but in sheltered and partly shaded places they will bend in the direction from which the sun shines upon them.

Never pass by an exposed nail without removing it. It will save accident to both clothes and person.

Simple Science for Everybody

HOW DEEP IS THE SEA?

FOR centuries the problem of how deep the sea is has troubled the minds of men.

In ancient times they feared the monsters that they thought inhabited the black depths. And in modern times they seek to learn the sources of earthquakes which so often originate on the floor of the sea.

We have known for some years that there are mountains and valleys on the floor of the sea, just as there are on land, but we have never been able to measure very accurately either how deep they are, or how long, or where they run.

The deepest sinkhole we know of is southwest of Japan and it is said to be six miles deep. Our highest mountain would easily disappear inside it.

Formerly the ordinary way of testing the depth of the sea was to weight piano wire and slowly drop it from on board a ship until it had sunk through miles of water to the bottom. It took an hour to let the wire down five miles and another hour to pull it up.

But now a new mechanism has been invented by which the depth of the sea can be accurately determined in about 10 seconds.

This piece of machinery is called the sonic depth finder and it is fastened to the bottom of a ship. The little mechanism sends out rapping noises and then waits to catch their echoes. The depth of the sea is revealed by the speed with which the echo returns, for experiments have shown how long it takes sound waves to travel through water.

When the sea is five miles deep, as it is in the great Nares hole in the floor of the Atlantic, it takes about 10 seconds from the instant of rapping for the echo to return—five going down and five coming back.

The sonic depth finder can be used even when a ship is moving because it works so fast. It can take as many as 14,000 soundings an hour. As a result of its discovery we will probably be able to chart the mountains and valleys and volcanoes on the ocean floor as accurately as we survey the land.

In the end we may find the sources of many earthquakes, for most of them come from the bottom of the sea.

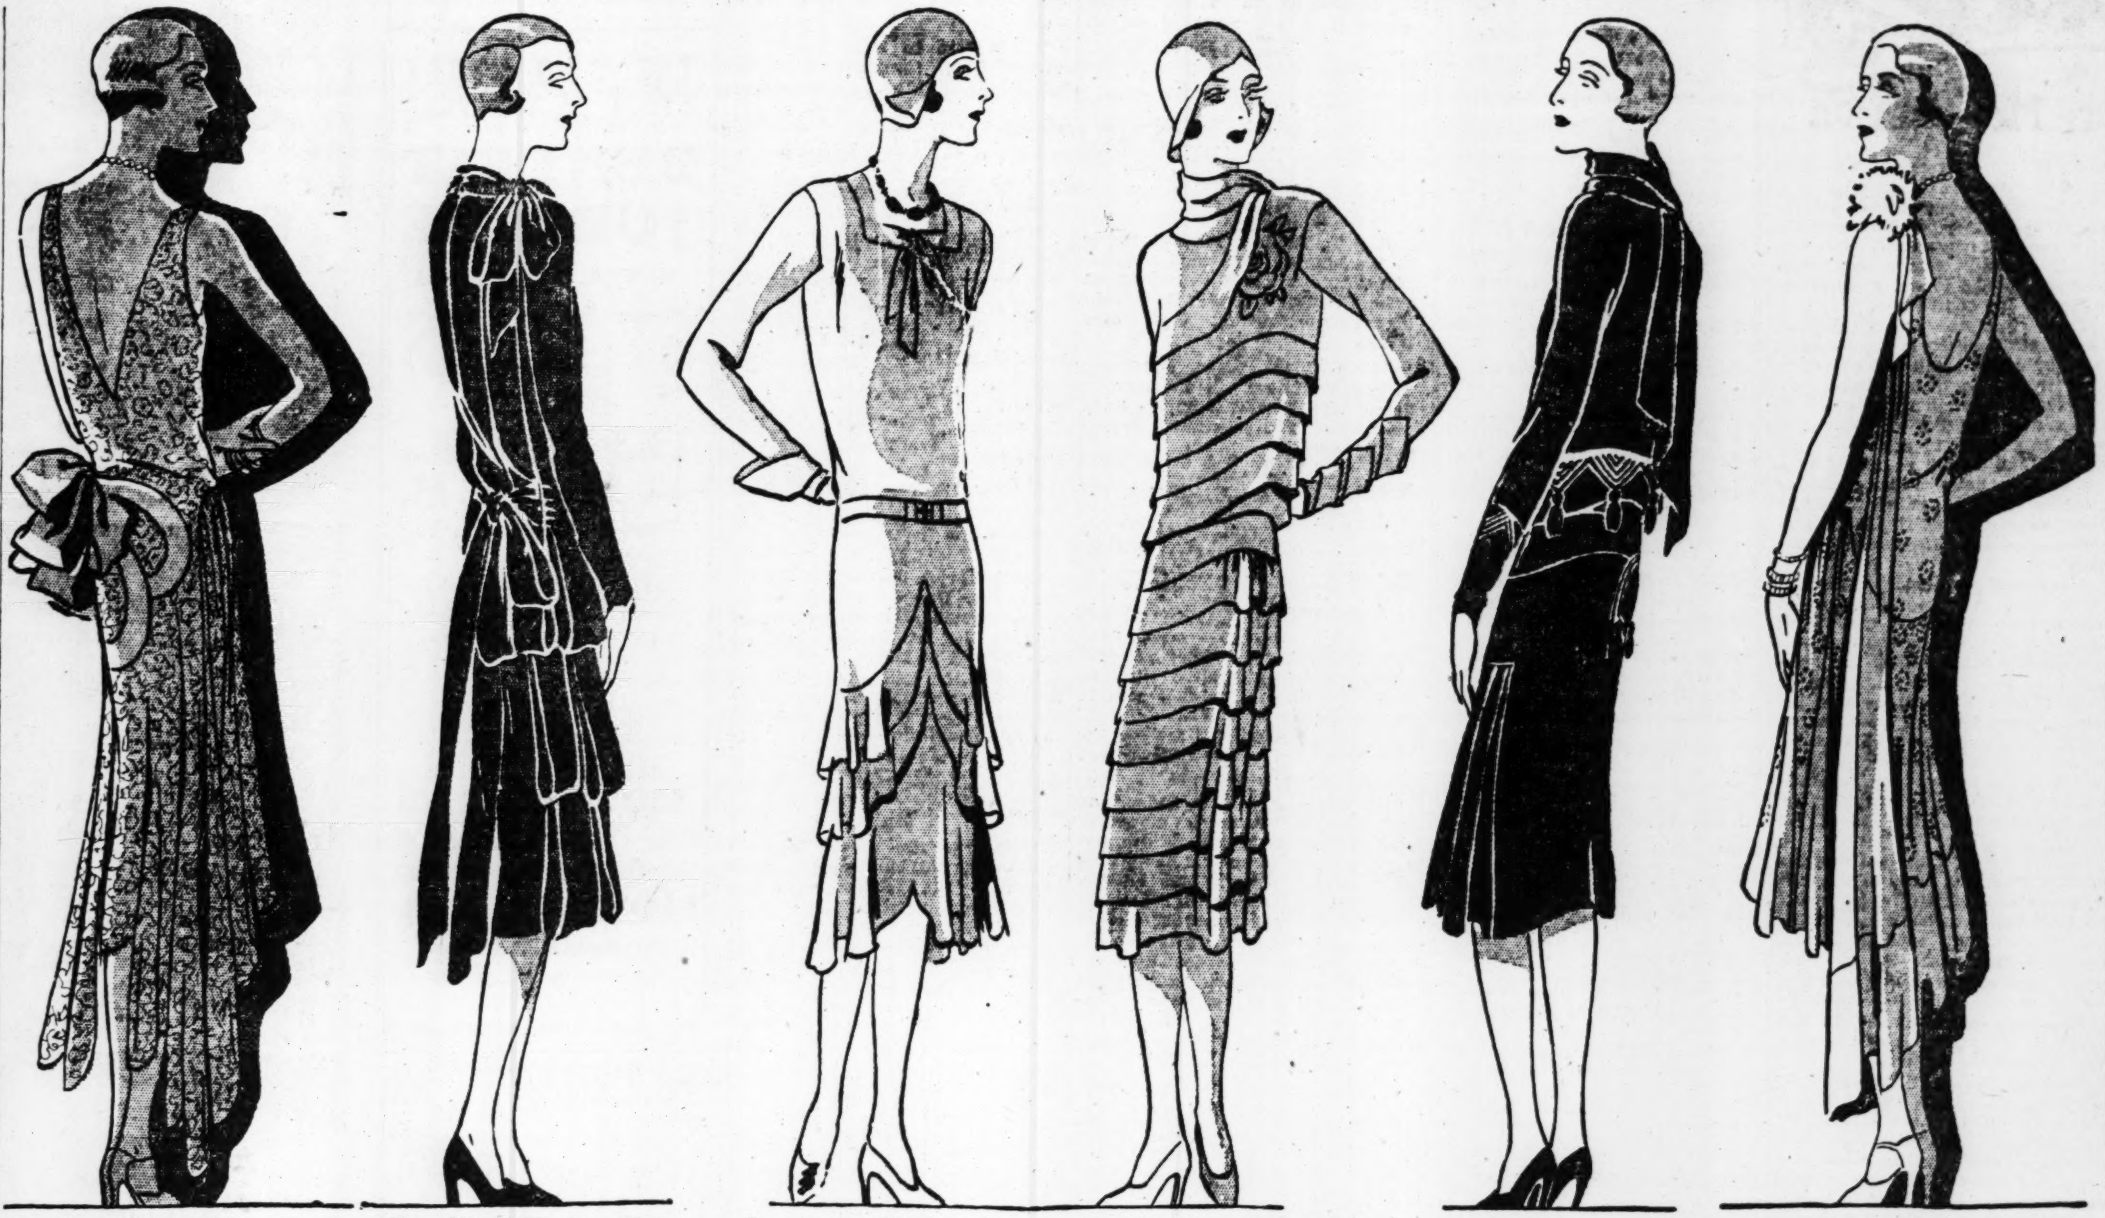
Latest Paris Gowns Are Definitely Feminine But Offer Wide Choice

A Leading Characteristic of the New Models Is Their Raised Waistline, Accompanied by a Hipline That Is Clearly Defined, Revealing Contours Without Accentuating Them.

By MADAME CHARLOTTE
Directrice and Designer of Premet's PARIS.



Lace is still used for some attractive evening gowns and this one carried out in black has the season's characteristic contrast note in an incrustation of green chiffon and a green bow on the hip.

Navy blue faille is used for this afternoon gown which has the tier skirt arranged in loops like ribbon. There is harmony in the scarf bow on the right shoulder and the arrangement of the sash.

Gray cravat silk is used for this dress which has a touch of white at the neck and cuffs. The flounces en forme slope down at the back and their movement is followed by the hemline of the skirt.

Superimposed tucks in a clear shade of royal blue form an original note in this gown for town wear. They wrap over and button at the back from the yoke to the hem, while similar tucks slant up the cuffs.

The bolero movement is apparent in this black frock with touches of gold introduced at the waist and on the sleeves. There is fullness cleverly contrived at the sides of the skirt by pleats from the yoke.

This is one of the contrasting hem gowns that play such a prominent part in the Premet collection. Of white chiffon it is embroidered with diamante. The hem of the dress and border of the scarf are poppy red.

NCE the month of May arrives, given the hope of favorable weather, all American men visiting Paris will be able judge for themselves in what a rked manner the summer fash s of 1929 differ from those of t.

This is a rapid age, and nothing pts itself more quickly to con ions of life than the dress of dern women. This is easily mprehensible, for dress is an egral part of her life, reflects r activities, her moods and her ickly changing personality.

You are doubtless tired of being ld that fashion is becoming mor minine. Yet this is a fact to hich we cannot close our eyes. e are in a period of prosperity nd peace, therefore we want othing that reminds us of the ard and toilsome years of privaon directly following the war. Then women were forced by rea ns of economy and the fact that any of them still followed man h vocations to dress with a so iety and uniformity that meant ath to the creative possibilities the haute couture of Paris.

But art dies hard. We were de mined to create, and though we d to go slowly, for nothing is rder to force than feminine blic opinion, we have ultimately rived at a point where we have dually induced women to wear alluringly feminine afternoon evening gowns of which there such a multitude of choice this son.

NE of the leading characteristics of my new models is their raised waistline. This es a very youthful aspect to figure. It is naturally accom ied by a hipline, that is clear defined, for the trend of mod fashions is to display the lines the body without in any way entuating them. I was asked other day by a fashion expert ether the new silhouette would olve the return of the corset. nkly, as far as I understand hion, I say most emphatical—No!

The corset belongs to an age t is past. Undoubtedly the inine figure changes in a de e, according to the life that men lead. I cannot imagine y girl of the modern generation mitting to the physical tortures ured by her mother and grand her in the days of the wasp st. A little belt and a soutien e is all that is necessary to lay the new frocks to the best antage—that is to say, in the becoming manner. Some y slim girls do not even need support. We live in a period n the natural lines of the fig are considered the most beau . No corset, however perfect, give anything but a restrained artificial effect. I know that e houses are rather in favor of corset in a modernized form. I must say that for my own dels I am all against it.

the realm of sports clothes ou will notice that fancy jerseys re less prominent, except for classical sweater. In the case coats and ensembles, it is being laced this season by fancy lain in a delightful mixture of col gs, in which there is a pretty of pink and black or gray that particularly attractive. I should to say here how much I ap ciate the collection of lainages wn by E. Meyer of the rue des ts Champs. It is youthful, dern and particularly adapted the needs of the present day, I have made great use of his rics in my large summer col ion of sports models, day coats tailormades.

ow let us turn to the difficult ter of afternoon frocks. After ew seasons of real sterility in category of dress we are now the high road to real creative ression. My new collection tains afternoon gowns to suit men of every type of figure and every age. Naturally, in the mer the afternoon dress comes its own, for we hope that cli c conditions will enable us to these charming gowns with the disguise of a wrap.

Some people think my new line inspired by the fashions of 1880. is not the case. What I am wing is of a much later origin, ugh absolutely modernized. My dresses are inspired by the hions that prevailed from the nineties to 1913. But, as a tter of fact, whatever gave me ideas, the actual dresses are ely 1929.

N afternoon gown should show great elegance and refinement. It should in no nner reflect anything of the rts influence that is now a g of the past except for morn occasions.

ou will find a great deal of k in my afternoon and evening dels, for nothing can rival the reme elegance of black, either young girls or for middle-aged en—if such a creature is to found nowadays!

am also using a great deal of of all shades. Perhaps noth is so universally becoming. ow plays its part. It is a pleasing novelty, but not so easy to wear. I have a model in violet faille that calls forth admiration wherever it is seen. White is always charming and always safe, so it finds a place this season as in the preceding ones.

There are many individual touches in the new afternoon gowns. One is that many gowns have the hem lined with a contrast. I have dresses of plain material lined with printed fabric. This gives a charming effect in movement. One of my most successful afternoon frocks has a white collar and cuffs on navy blue. It opens down the front to show a simple white slip, and the scalloped hem which dips slightly at the back is lined with white, of which a narrow piping borders the hem.

I am using a great deal of Rodier's plain and printed voile de laine, which he gives the technical name of Rodellic. This is a charming summer fabric and is equally successful whether employed for gowns or for summer wraps.

IN this collection you will find much faille and those charming taffetas printed in the wrap which give such a pretty cloudy effect to the design. Those are used for frocks of varied and original lines, some with little frills bunched round the hips, others with horizontal folds at the waistline, and though not definitely longer, for I do not think the moment has come for women to be encumbered with superfluous draperies, the general trend in the afternoon is toward an uneven hemline.

For the evening there is great variety. Here again the faille and taffeta models give a note of real novelty and I think that this season such gowns will not only be worn tentatively but that they have a real vogue among the truly chic.

Beautiful flowing lines prevail, the figure outlined but not constricted, great length at the back and sometimes at the sides, but sufficient shortness in front to give that becoming lilt and the effect of a charming leg outlined against the background of flowing draperies.

The ensemble idea is more and more important in the realm of evening dress. We have little embroidered bridge coats to slip over matching evening gowns. Cape scarves are made of the same material as the dress. This is a fashion that has really been created by the demand of smart women. During our often chilly European summers women who dine at the open air restaurants surrounding Paris, in hotels and in private gardens are often obliged to slip something over their shoulders and they like to have something that looks as if it had been specially designed for their gowns—not just any wrap chosen at hazard.

Many of my evening gowns have a contrasting note at the hem. You will see a white satin gown lined with poppy red. It has a scarlet poppy at the shoulder and I like it to be worn with poppy-colored slippers.

The conventional evening cloak is often replaced by the short paletot, frequently made of taffeta. This is a fashion that has evolved as a direct consequence of the uneven hemline which often makes the classical evening coat look dowdy.

I like evening slippers to match the dress itself except in the case of a contrasting hemline such as the one I mentioned above.

Evening bags I consider best left to the skill and ingenuity of the jeweler, for the creations of this type to be found in the salons of our great bijoutiers are unrivaled and give a note of real elegance to the simplest evening gown.

For the daytime I like the bag to be made of the same material as the coat. I shall soon be showing models of sports bags that are made of the same fabric as some of my most successful ensembles.

Nothing could be more careful and studied than the ensemble idea this season and I should like all my clients to give it special attention, for it is the hallmark of real good dressing, such as all women wish to attain.

FOR the last seven years a widow who is the mother of nine children has filled the post of jailer at Barbourville in the Kentucky mountain district.

She was appointed to succeed her husband, who was killed when accompanying a Sheriff's posse in search of an escaped prisoner. During her term she has seen one of her sons shot and killed by a prisoner who made a break for liberty after a revolver had been smuggled to him.

Mrs. Dempsey West, the 52-year-old jailer, is now completing her third regular term.

Alice White

Saves dress and film goes on!

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—Alice White's ingenuity recently saved a temporary suspension of production on her new film—and a loss of thousands of dollars an hour to First National studios.

In the midst of a ballroom scene, Miss White spilled punch down the front of her chiffon dancing frock. Consternation reigned—then Alice White herself saved the day.

Calling her maid, she instructed her to wash the dress in Lux. In 30 minutes the dress, dried quickly by electric fans, looked like new!

"Every girl knows how marvelous her frocks look cleansed in Lux," Miss White said—"and our own wardrobe department uses Lux regularly. Tests prove clothes can be kept gorgeously new looking ever so much longer with Lux. Today's incident merely illustrates dramatically the marvelous work Lux does in double-quick time."

PADDY'S POND IS POPULAR.

Where many gather you will see
The evil with the good will be.
—Old Mother Nature.

EVERY one for a long distance knew that Honker had arrived. It was known all through the Green Forest. It was known all over the Green Meadows. It was known up at Farmer Brown's. Honker makes no secret of his coming and going. That is how every one knew that Honker and his flock had returned from their winter home in the Sunny South and had stopped at the pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest.

It was surprising how many people found they had business at the pond of Paddy the Beaver. Yes, sir, it was surprising. Honker and his flock had hardly settled on the smooth water of Paddy's pond when certain folk began to move that way. It was just at dusk that the flock had arrived. Many of the Green Forest folk, as you know, are abroad at night, and most of these folk at once turned toward Paddy's pond. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy left the Old Pasture early, but no earlier than did Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote. All of them headed straight for the Green Forest.

"I suppose it is foolish to go 'way over there, my dear," said Reddy Fox, "for I don't suppose there is a chance in the world that we shall be able to catch one of those Geese."

"Perhaps not," replied Mrs. Reddy, "but we certainly will not have a chance if we don't go. Of course, Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote will be there, but you never can tell what will happen."

Yowler the Bobcat, soft-footed, moving like a shadow, headed for Paddy's pond. Buster Bear headed that way. So did Mrs. Lightfoot and the two young Lightfoots. Lightfoot himself heard the voice of Honker and longed to be there, but he would not leave his retirement. Jumper the Hare was one of the first to arrive. Hooty the Great Horned Owl started for Paddy's pond as soon as he heard Honker's voice. Billy Mink came hurrying up the Laughing Brook. So it was that by the time Honker and his flock were ready for sleep there were many watchful eyes peering out from the shadows around the pond of Paddy the Beaver.

Some of these visitors came openly to the water's edge. They were Honker's friends. They had no thought nor desire to harm Honker or any of his flock. But others there were who kept themselves hidden. Yowler the Bobcat was one. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy and Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote were others. They kept themselves well hidden, not only from Honker and his flock, but from each other. They were there selfishly. Each one was hoping that chance would bring one of those big birds within reach. Each one knew that the other hunters were somewhere about, so each was jealously watchful.

A wise bird is Honker Goose. He had seen none of these hidden enemies, but he knew they were there. He knew out of the experience of many such journeys. And so, as the Black Shadows crept across the pond, Honker rounded up his flock and saw to it that they were all in the middle of the pond for the sleep and rest they so much needed.

When Baking Custards.

Baked custards should set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven to make them creamy and firm. If they are baked too fast they will separate and become watery and tough.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

"HE'S DUE tomorow morning. But he only goes as far as Micklemack, you know. A good half-day's trip by wagon. He has a buckboard and a purty fair team of horses. Been makin' the trip for 40 years, they say. His name is Stoops. Lives at Micklemack, where the hunters and fishers start out from in the summer-time."

Barnaby slept soundly that night in spite of himself. A pounding on his door aroused him at daybreak. Roosters were crowing, far and near. His nostrils were pleasantly assailed by the odor of frying ham or bacon. Suddenly life seemed worth living. He was very hungry.

Mr. Stoops was a taciturn individual with a leathery brown face so deeply lined and weather-beaten that Barnaby could compare it only to an animated English walnut of great antiquity—and emptiness. He had bright little eyes, a long thin mouth that seemed to be entirely without lips, and a sparse gray beard. There was a way to compute his age with some degree of accuracy, for he vouchsafed in one of his rare bursts of loquacity (which, by the way, began and terminated in the scantiest sentences) that he was getting on for 12 when the "pilgrims" (that was his name for the strange people) came from some'eres down east in covered wagons and settled over there beyond the forks.

"'Bout the time of the war," he explained generously.

"You mean the Civil War," said Barnaby.

"What else?" said Mr. Stoops, with an air of commiseration.

Mile after mile fell behind them. The air was soft, piney and redolent of spring—a sleepy air despite the spice that was in it. They passed but few habitations along the road, which wound its way across stumplands through grim green woods, around clear ponds of blue water and beside chuckling creeks—a seemingly endless journey to the once ebullient Barnaby who now had all he could do to keep from nodding in his seat beside the driver. Progress was slow. The complacent team of bays, none too young, responded to the almost rhythmical caresses of Mr. Stoops' "gad" on their impervious rumps by the merest gesture of tail, a polite way of letting him know that they had received his communication and would, in course of time, take the matter under consideration. They did not increase their speed, however; if they changed pace at all it was of their own free will and not at Mr. Stoops' behest; they frequently slowed down to a walk, thought the matter over soberly for several minutes, and then, as if suddenly and simultaneously spurred by the vision of oat-boxes and hay-mangers, began to trot again. In this way they kept pace with the westbound sun, so that by the time it reached Micklemack at half-past 12 o'clock the gallant team of mares arrived there too with something of a dash, their erstwhile lackadaisical ears alertly pointing forward and quivering.

There were four houses in Micklemack, four barns, four outhouses and four bird houses at the top of four poles.

"Micklemack's growing," said Mr. Stoops. "That house down the road there is new. Only two years old."

"I don't see anything that looks like a hotel or restaurant," said Barnaby, wanly.

"I guess my wife can feed you," said Mr. Stoops.

At 2 o'clock a tall, raw-boned man sauntered into Micklemack, coming from the woods to the north. He was smoking a corncob pipe and he could spit with astonishing accuracy and distance without removing the stem from his lips. He seemed to be rather proud of it, for he did it with obliging frequency.

"Name Blades?" he inquired, coming up to the porch and eyeing the stranger with interest.

"Gene Regner," introduced Mr. Stoops briefly.

"My name is Blades," said Barnaby.

"Come on then," said Mr. Regner. "This your dunnage?"

"Yes. Think we can manage it?"

"Easy. Between us," said Mr. Regner. He first accepted from Mr. Stoops a small packet of letters tied up in coarse twine, which he thrust into a commodious coat pocket with the remark that the mail 'peared to be a little heavier than usual, to which Mr. Stoops agreed by nodding his head. Then he produced a couple of long, stout straps and ran them through the grips of the kit-bags; having done this, he heaved the bags onto the high porch and, fashioning a sort of harness, secured them snugly to his broad back. Barnaby looked on in silence while he joggled the load until it rested comfortably in place, whereupon, without a word, he picked up the suitcase and, jerking his head toward the smaller articles on the steps in a gesture commending them to the charge of their owner, he started off up the road.

Barnaby paused to say good-by to Mr. Stoops.

"He's not a very chatty person, is he?" he remarked, looking after the lank Regner.

"Well, he gets drunk only about twice a year," said Mr. Stoops, and as there was nothing more to be said in extenuation, he went on: "I guess you'd better be movin' along if you're figgerin' on keepin' up with him."

Presently the gaunt leader, puffing at his pipe with the regularity of a toiling locomotive, left the deeply rutted wagon [illegible] and turned into the forest, [illegible]ly followed by his companion.

There was no clearly defined trail or path, merely a cone-covered floor of damp earth out of which grew thickly in bland disorder an apparently inconquerable maze of pine trees. Nothing whatsoever to serve as a mark or a guide to direction; one simply wandered in a sea of tree boles without sun or compass to go by, with nothing to point the way save the incomprehensible nose of the born woodsman.

A sense of awe, such as he had never felt in the night-gripped trenches of France, crept over Barnaby; a sort of terror that was but slightly assuaged by the trust and confidence the presence of Gene Regner was supposed to inspire. They had not been in the forest for more than 10 minutes before he realized that he was lost; except by the merest luck, he could not have found his way back to the open road without the aid of the woodsman.

Regner, occasionally shifting the suitcase from one hand to the other, never flagged; he walked swiftly, unerringly through the pathless, murmuring, sighing maze, always a few paces in the lead, never turning his head to see if his companion followed, never by word or sign indicating that he was aware of the existence of the man who dogged his footsteps.

Presently, as if for the sake of company, he began to whistle a low, mournful tune,—the pipe still miraculously between his lips. Barnaby, urged by the same impulse that moves a boy to whistle when passing a graveyard by night, tuned up with a sprightly air from one of the popular New York musical shows. Mr. Regner apparently did not hear him; the discord failed to annoy him. He merely went on whistling his ancient tune,—or was it a requiem?

Finally Barnaby called out in exasperation:

"Hey!"

Mr. Regner stopped.

"Tired?" he inquired, succinctly. His moody eyes swept the tall, strong figure with something like scorn,—certainly it was not compassion.

"Where are we?" demanded Mr. Blades, coming up beside him.

The guide seemed surprised. "In the woods," he replied.

"Good Lord, I know that,—but where in the woods? Are you sure we're headed right?"

"Course I am," said Mr. Regner, curtly. "I could walk through these backwoods with my eyes blindfolded."

"So could I," said Mr. Blades. "But that doesn't prove anything. How much farther is it?"

"Only about three mile an' a half."

"Woods all the way?"

"Yep."

"Isn't there a road or a trail or"—

"Sure. Nothin' but road. This is all road. All you got to do is to keep in the middle of it." Mr. Regner grinned at his own humor.

Barnaby was panting a little. He took off his hat and wiped his forehead.

"Whew!" he said. It seemed to be the only thing to say.

"Whenever you're rested," suggested the other, resignedly.

"See here, are you one of them?"

"One of what?"

"You know—the people I'm going to—er—visit."

For the first time that afternoon, the guide took the pipe out of his mouth. It was an impediment.

"Don't say it," interposed Barnaby quickly.

"I'd like to," said Mr. Regner, almost pleadingly.

"I'll take your unspoken word for it," said Barnaby. "You see, I am supposed to be a relative of one of the principal ghosts. I'd much rather you didn't say what you're thinking of saying."

Mr. Regner replenished and lighted his pipe in silence.

"I guess you won't take offense if I jest simply say I kerry the mail back and for'ard three times a week without gettin' paid a cent for doin' it."

"Then, why do it?"

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

BUYE—You might ask the management of the theater where the magician gave his performance for the name of his booking agents and in that way learn where he is.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

E. E. W.—Pensions are not granted to widows by the States of Illinois and Missouri.

E. L. L.—Get a peddler's license at the City Hall, for selling eggs from house to house.

E. C. D.—You should foreclose your first deed of trust and sell the property under it.

IN DOUBT—In Missouri a judgment is not barred by limitation until 10 years after it is rendered.

J. B. D.—Damages could not be collected from the State of Arkansas under the circumstances described.

STILL AT SEA—You could bring a landlord's suit for possession of your property, because of the renters who are in arrears and this is recommended in your case.

TROUBLED—The real estate agent does not need the deed to sell your property. He can copy the description and return the deed.

J. ED.—The man who is holding the note can advertise the property for sale as soon as the note is due. He must advertise 20 days before sale.

YOUR READER—It is given as an opinion that you could not be held responsible if boys climbing for balls fall through the roof of the shed on your property.

D. U. V.—As to different court sessions for obtaining a divorce, a divorce suit can be filed at any time. The Courts of Domestic Relations try cases from Oct. 1 to July 1 usually.

GEORGE.—The amount of exemption allowed in Missouri in case of bankruptcy of a married man, in business, not owning real estate or household goods, as described, is $300.

MR. G.—It probably is not possible to get a patent on such a discovery as mentioned, although details are not given. You might adopt a trade name for your product and register that.

A CONSTANT READER—As to why it is necessary for the trade name of the stores to be registered in each State when they have a Federal copyright on their label and trademark, it is not, unless they want to bring a suit in the State courts for infringements.

C. C. K.—Your wife's property could not be taken over to pay liabilities as described unless she had some knowledge of the illegal use being made of her property.

A READER—The county marriage license offices are usually closed on Saturday afternoons. You may sometimes get a license issued by special arrangement.

B. J. T.—To be a notary public write to the Secretary of State for a blank and fill it out. It will cost $7 or $8 and the annual premium on a $5000 bond. When the application is made out it should be sent to the Governor.

M.—As to what classes of prisoners are kept in the city jail and what kind are sent to the workhouse, generally those are sent to the workhouse who cannot pay a fine and are sentenced to work it out.

H. G.—There is no pension for widows given by the State of Missouri. (2) Your second question not on a legal point has been referred for answer in miscellaneous answers.

B. AND Q.—Property in joint names need not go through probate. Other property must, to clear the title. (2) A widow has $15,000 exempt from inheritance taxes. A child has $5000 exempt.

A SUBSCRIBER—Whether or not you can do anything about the rainwater from the neighbor's yard flooding your yard, depends on the natural drainage of the two lots. If yours is the higher lot he cannot so improve his so as to cast surface water on your lot.

A SUBSCRIBER—The mother in the second marriage can retain possession of the child by that marriage, which was the marriage referred to in the previous answer. You can file suit in the Circuit Court to have the second marriage annulled. Consult a lawyer. The first marriage is legal and cannot be annulled.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

NOT SIGNED—A request for names of operators of the electric needle, also for names of women who are physicians, is not signed, and therefore does not correspond with any stamped, addressed envelope in file. Please write again signing name and these will be forwarded.

HOPELESS—Sterility may be a condition of either sex. To locate the trouble proper tests, and examination by a competent physician are absolutely necessary. Some causes can be removed by appropriate treatment. Names of physicians are not published, but may be mailed if you ask for them sending stamped, addressed envelope.

JUNE M. — Experience should furnish the answer to your question. If no ill effects result from not wearing glasses for a short time and for any reason it is desired to leave them off there seems to be no valid reason why you should not do so, unless you are doing so against the advice of your oculist. The enlarged blood vessels on the balls will gradually disappear as improvement progresses.

L. S.—Please send your address on a stamped envelope for addresses of those who use the electric needle to remove superfluous hair, as business addresses may not be published here.

ANXIOUS—There are different remedies recommended for rheumatism, and further advice can be given, and the diet you ask for inclosed if you will send for this signing your name to the request, as you say the stamped, addressed envelope has been sent.

Contrary Raisins.

If the paper sticks to the package of raisins, place them in the oven for a few minutes and the wrapping may be removed easily. It will also cause the raisins to separate and fall apart.

Fried Cucumbers.

Fried cucumbers make a good accompaniment for meat. Peel the vegetable; cut into half-inch thick slices and soak in cold water for an hour, then dry with a cloth. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, roll in flour or corn meal and brown on both sides in hot butter. Egg and cracker crumbs may be used if preferred.

Rhubarb in the Diet

AT this time of year the appetite craves certain foods and one of these is rhubarb, which is now appearing in the market in quantity.

As rhubarb contains from 92 to 95 per cent water it is not high in food value, but this deficiency is supplied by the large quantity of sugar required in its preparation, and when it appears upon the table rhubarb really ranks well up as an energy food.

Then, too, it contains certain mineral salts as is evidenced by its tartness, and these make it a valuable addition to the diet.

STOCK RISE MEETS CHECK NEAR CLOSE

Heavy Realizing Movement Carries Many Issues Down 1 to 8 Points Below Early Levels.

AIRCRAFT GLIDE HELPS DECLINE

Brokers' Loans Decrease Only $2,000,000—Drop in New York Bank Accommodations Offset.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A broad upward movement in prices which carried scores of issues up 2 to nearly 10 points was checked just before the close of today's market by a heavy realizing movement, which carried many issues down 1 to 8 points below their earlier high levels, and sent a few below last night's final quotations.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement although many large traders took profits to guard against the possibility of a disappointing Federal brokers' loan statement. Wall Street generally has been looking for a drop of $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 in loans.

Loans Down Only $2,000,000.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending April 17 were announced after the close of market by the Federal Reserve Board today as $5,425,000,000, representing a decrease of $2,000,000 over the total announced for the preceding week by the board, but of $3,000,000 over the total shown in the board's figures for the week ending April 10.

The report showed that loans for own account decreased $38,000,000, but loans for account of out-of-town banks rose $31,000,000 and for account of others were $4,000,000 greater.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank made no change in its rediscount rate of 5 per cent, it was announced after close of market.

Trading showed a moderate expansion in volume with several blocks of 5000 to 10,000 shares changing hands in such issues as Bethlehem Steel, Yellow Coach, General Motors, Atlantic Refining, Pan American B, Standard Oil of New Jersey and New Haven, the first two reaching new high ground.

Aircraft Glide Helps Decline.

A sudden drop from 111 to 103½ in United Aircraft, which has enjoyed a spectacular advance this week, was a contributing factor to the late selling movement. Adams Express dropped from 731 to 710, American Express dropped 8 points from its early high and Commercial Solvents 5.

National Lead fell back 3½ points on the announcement of President Cornish at the annual stockholders meeting that the stock was selling too high to purchase for offering to employes.

Commodity markets again pointed downward. Wheat sold off about 2 cents a bushel on bearish weather advances, and corn dropped about a cent a bushel for the same reason. The recession in cotton futures also was influenced by the better crop outlook and the heaviness of the Liverpool market.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. German marks held steady. Sterling held steady. Dutch guilders were strong and Spanish pesetas were weak, selling down to around 14.72 cents.

Call Money Easier.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, but dropped to 7½ in the early afternoon, with a plentiful supply of funds available. A further easing also was apparent in the time money market in which relatively little business has been transacted of late. Wall street is convinced that the peak of the spring commercial demands has been passed, and that money rates should work lower, barring a resumption of wild speculation for the advance in securities prices.

Expectations of record-breaking first quarter reports by the leading producers accelerated the demand for the steel stocks. Sloss-Sheffield jumped 6½ points and Bethlehem Steel moved up 4 to a new peace-time high at 115⅝. Republic Steel and Crucible each advanced about 3 points, closing about 2 points net higher. Bethlehem at the close sold at 113½ for a net gain of 1⅝ points.
